SCHOOL ISSUES UP SATURDAY

★ ★ ★ ★

Residents, District Exchange Viewpoints

Residents and school district officials got in their last licks this week both in support and in criticism of referenda scheduled for a vote this Saturday and described in detail in this week's lead story.

Principal objection expressed at Monday's regular school board meeting was by Frank L. Smith, 1801 N. Kennicott Ave., whose letter questioning the school issues was printed in last week's Herald Fence Post.

HE AND A number of other residents of Hasbrook Subdivision, just south of Palatine Road surrounding Kennicott, objected primarily to plans for construction of Greenbrier School before addition to Patton School, which serves primary grades in the Hasbrook area.

He asked for construction of the Patton addition and only seven rooms on the Greenbrier site, rather than the 12 proposed in the referendum.

He said that sentiment in the entire Hasbrook area seemed to be against the building plan, and that residents thought that Patton School not built to capacity and Greenbrier School to be built larger than next year's projected enrollment were a waste of tax money.

AMONG SPECIFIC complaints were transfers of students from Patton to Wilson School at the third grade level, and the distance they would have to walk to Wilson.

Smith asked why children could not cross Palatine Road from Greenbrier subdivision to go to Patton if necessary. He said a motion for the Hasbrook Civic Association to endorse the school proposal had failed at the last meeting, and the group is new standing neutral in the matter.

School board Pres. Joseph Faner told Smith, "You haven't been looking at the over-all problem in the school district as we have."

HE SAID growth trends in the northern area of the village have changed in the past year, and that while an addition to Patton School was once considered imminent only 16 building permits have been granted in the Patton attedance area below Palatine Road this year.

This, Faner continued, is compared with the rapid development of Greenbrier subdivision and other homebuilding in the attendance area north of Palatine Road.

He said the Greenbrier School, if approved, would take pressure of all those children (about 150 next year) from Patton School to allow for more growth in the Patton area.

GORDON BOYER, 1801 N. Patton, said, "I think we have been misled," adding that when he bought his home Supt. Ralph Clabaugh said Patton was to be a complete K-5 school.

Clabaugh agreed, but said the district does not dare overbuild and had anticipated more growth in the area at the time that statement was made.

Smith also questioned specifics about the tax levy rate increase.

FANER answered that most of the increase, which should total more than $200,000 additional tax to the district, would go toward teachers' salaries to staff Thomas Junior High School opening next fall, and the proposed new primary schools.

Another question on the referendum came this week from residents around the Westgate School site, proposed for Dwyer School.

Some residents in that area contend that a new site should have been proposed with a new school to even the attendance pattern and leave the Westgate site free for summer recreational activity.

But Asst. Supt. Robert P. Campbell said there was not another site available in the attendance area at a practical price or location.

Oppose Eighth Liquor Permit

Five package liquor dealers of Arlington Heights, represented by attorney Stephen Jurco, have requested to be heard before the village board on the proposed increase of the village's package liquor license quota from seven to eight.

Those objecting to the proposed eighth license are Lee Willard's Liquors, Minimax Liquors, Parkway Liquors, Elms Liquor Land, and Westgate Walgreen Agency Drugs.

The action was spurred by the request of Osco Drugs, part of the new Jewel shopping center at Wing and Davis streets, for a class "B" package license.

THE VILLAGE board last week instructed Village Atty. Jack Siegel to draft an ordinance providing for the eighth license at the request of Trustee Jack Walsh, chairman of the board's public safety committee.

Walsh explained that the committee would have a report for the next meeting on the advisability of an eighth license, and that readiness of the ordinance would avoid delay if the board decided to act favorably.

The objecting package store owners contend that the number of such stores now in operation is more than adequate to service the existing demand.

They claim that any further increase at this time would only serve to reduce the volume of the present dealers, but would not bring any increase in volume to the village as a whole.

THE GROUP has also requested that the village board consider placement of the proposed additional license, contending that a license granted to Osco Drugs would bring another package store into an area already well supplied rather than on the outskirts where population is expanding and business zoning has been granted.

Nick Barkulis, owner of Elms Liquor Land, said the group would not have the same objections if the added license were proposed for a northern or southern area in the village rather than downtown.

Survey Hits Jackpot Of Unreported Taxes

More than $350,000 in assessed valuation has been added to the Wheeling Township property tax rolls through comparison of aerial photographs of the township with microfilmed tax records from the Cook County Assessor's office.

Township Assessor John T. Peters last month completed the visual inspection of approxiaerial maps designed to pick up buildings which had escaped listing on the tax rolls.

Peters estimates the added assessed valuation will result in an excess of $25,000 in actual taxes annually—most of which will go to elementary school districts in the township and High School District 214.

COMPARISON between records and the photographic maps showed 1,400 exceptions to the microfilm assessment figures. This number was reduced to 485 after building permits in the office, but not yet on the tax rolls, were checked against new structures shown on the map.

Peters has prepared assessment notices for the remaining 485 structural changes at a total valuation of $342,225. In addition, 11 additional assessment notices were prepared covering additions to residences on which a permit was found in the office.

In these instances, the permit was dated prior to Oct. 1, 1959, and should have been entered on the tax record by this time.

THE TOTAL estimated addition to assessed valuation for structures discovered, plus building permits not entered, comes to $352,600.

And apparently the search is ended. Peters indicates that more than 2,000 "out" cards were not placed in county files making that many tax roll cards unavailable for comparison with the aerial photos.

Of these, all but 453 were checked against building permits on file in the township office, but Peters suggests that the remaining cards be obtained and checked to determine if thesre are more unnoted buildings which should be added to the rolls.

THE AERIAL survey and subsequent comparison and microfilm work leading to the tax discoveries was authorized at the annual town meeting last April and budgeted to cost $12,000.

Peters expresses his feeling that the expenditure has been well justified, "particularly when it is considered that back taxes may also be collected for the preceding five years."

Broken down into elementary school districts, the addition will mean increased assessed valuation of $127,450 for District 25, $116,500 for District 21, $56,050 for District 23, $34,400 for District 57, and $18,200 for District 26.

DISCOVERIES for the rolls included several large residences, swimming pools, garages, a fuel oil plant and two additional buildings, and a large addition to a motel.

"CUTTING UP" AND looking pleased at their efforts are Elk Grove Village President James Gibson, Cook County Superintendent of Highways Andrew V. Plummer, County Board President Seymour Simon and President John G. Woods of Arlington Heights. The quartette were participating in the ribbon-cutting ceremonies marking the opening of the newly-rebuilt Arlington Heights Road last Friday.

Ahead of Schedule

Arlington Heights Rd. Opens with Ceremonies

The newly rebuilt Arlington Heights Road was officially opened to traffic last Friday in twin ribbon-cutting ceremonies seven months ahead of schedule.

Participating in the programs were officials from Cook County, Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Village and neighboring municipalities.

The group was headed by Seymour Simon, president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners. Simon originally promised the road construction during his election campaign last year, and followed through with a post-election announcement of the scheduled road rebuilding.

The ribbon was still waiting to be cut at Central Road when President John G. Woods of Arlington Heights noted the almost $1 million four-lane highway would be used to greater advantage with a tollroad access and exit. Woods said this "hope" was shared by President James Gibson of Elk Grove and Centex construction, developers of Elk Grove.

"THERE IS NO standing still —we must keep rebuilding or wither and decline," was Simon's key statement of the day.

Among officials and civic leaders present at the event were Mayor Herb Behrel of Des Plaines and Schaumburg Village President Bob Atcher. Simon particularly noted Stuart Paddock Sr., Mrs. Daisy Daniels (Arlington Heights historian), George Busse of Mount Prospect who was the former Elk Grove Road commissioner, and Evan Stebbins of Centex.

Officials from Milburn Brothers, contractors for the roadway, were praised by Simon for completing the road ahead of the proposed date.

With Simon were County Commissioners Frank Bobrytzke, Charles S. Bonk and Jerome Huppert, all of Chicago; Gerald Dolezal of Cicero; William N. Erickson of Evanston and Fred A. Fulle of Des Plaines. Andrew V. Plummer, county superintendent of highways, also attended the ribbon-cutting ceremonies.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS
MUNICIPAL BUILDING

BOWED HEADS and a moment of silence marked the end of Veterans Day ceremonies conducted by the Arlington Post 981, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Monday around the flagpole of the village's municipal building. Both Army and VFW units participated in the memorial service.

Tax Increase And Building

Voters in Arlington Heights Elementary School District 25 will go to the polls this Saturday, Nov. 16, to vote on a proposed building program and tax increase which district officials have described as necessary to maintain the districts educational standard.

The two issues at stake on separate referendum ballots are:

1. Increase of the maximum educational tax levy rate from $1.25 per $100 assessed valuation to $1.46, and

2. Approval of the issuance of $710,000 in bonds for a special building fund and authorization to build and equip two new schools totalling 20 rooms with the fund.

Though the tax rate proposal simply seeks to establish a new maximum, it is virtually safe to assume that the entire 21 cent increase will be added (if the issue passes) to tax bills collectible in 1965.

FOR THE owner of a house with $10,000 assessed valuation, this would mean an increase in taxes of $21, or four per cent more than the $513 paid this year on the same house.

For the district this would mean approximately a 10 per cent increase in total revenue for the educational fund, major section of district finance. The rate increase would be 17 per cent, but receipts in the fund include state aid as well as direct taxes — making up the balance.

The proposed building plans would mean, if passed, that the district will stay close to its legal maximum bonding power — five per cent of the total assessed valuation in the district.

THE BUILDING fund tax rate would not be increased by passage of the measure since the rate is determined on the basis of total bonded debt, and that figure has remained constantly near the legal maximum for years.

As assessed valuation in the district increases, the maximum bonding power increases. First the total amount necessary to retire bonds and pay interest for the year is determined, then that amount is divided by the total assessed valuation in the district to establish a rate.

In all other school district funds the rate is first established then the amount which may be collected is determined by multiplying this times the total assessed valuation.

THE TWO schools proposed for construction are Greenbrier, at the intersection of Verde and Roanoke Drives north of Palatine Road, and Dwyer, on Dwyer Avenue south of Grove on the existing Westgate School site.

The Greenbrier school is proposed to be 12 rooms, expandable to 18 at a later time, to serve kindergarten through fifth grades in the entire attendance area in the district north of Palatine Road, excluding a triangle bounded by Rand Road, Palatine Road, and a somewhat jagged imaginary extension of Kennicott Avenue.

The Dwyer School is proposed to be eight rooms, also expandable later, intended to serve kindergarten and first grade from the Westgate attendance area with the possibility of some overflow from Dryden School.

BOTH STRUCTURES, according to tentative plans, would follow approximately the building pattern of recent school construction such as Dunton School to the south end of the district.

To be eligible to vote in this election, residents must for the first time in a district school election be registered voters.

Previous to passing of a law at the last session of the Illinois legislature, those voting had only to be 21, residents of the state one year, the county 90 days, and the district 30 days.

VOTER REGISTRATIONS will be taken at the County Clerk's office, 116 N. Clark, Chicago, up to and including election day. Normal 28-day card processing time is not necessary for a school election.

Polling places, open from noon to 7 p.m. Saturday, will be Dryden, Dunton, Kensington, North, Park, Ridge, Westgate, Wilson and Windsor Schools, with precincts following attendance area lines.

One Morris Lands In Hospital, Cops Seek His Brother

After a long police record of family fights, James Morris, 36 S. Highland, Arlington Heights, landed in the hospital Nov. 10 and charged that his brother, Gerald J., was responsible for a knife wound in his chest.

The incident was reported by Mrs. Dolores Frisch, sister of the two, and James Morris later signed a police complaint against his brother for aggravated assault.

Police have been unable to locate Gerald Morris since the incident to serve the warrant for his arrest, though he came into the police department before the stabbing was discovered in an attempt to swear out a complaint against his brother.

ACCORDING to the police report, the two had been drinking together in a downtown tavern around midnight Nov. 9, and began arguing with each other over a mention of their mother.

They adjourned to the sidewalk near the intersection of Campbell and Vail, and the stabbing occurred.

Lawrence Morris, uncle of the two, was also in the tavern, but denied any connection with the incident. He told police James Morris had a knife and could have wounded himself to get his brother in trouble.

A court date on the incident and complaint has been set for Dec. 4, though Gerald has not yet been served a warrant.

THE ENTIRE Morris family has previously been put under a peace bond requiring cash forfeiture if any of them got in any more trouble.

The family's record includes more than one fight between father and son, brother and brother.

Zone Class Error Is Corrected

The Herald reported in error last week that a new institutional zoning classification had been approved by the Arlington Heights village board.

Consideration of adoption of the new zoning class was actually deferred by the board to a subsequent meeting to permit study of all of the provisions.

Suburb Homemaker Winner Announced

Winner of Paddock Publications search for 1963 Suburban Homemaker of the Year is announced in a special 14-page section inside this week's edition.

In addition to details of the winning entry's qualifications, the section includes feature articles about each of the 40 outstanding homemakers nominated in this year's competition.

The local winner was honored at a special ceremony Wednesday night, where she was also presented with more than $1,000 in gifts. She now competes with finalists from across the country for the title of National Suburban Homemaker of the Year and a $5,000 cash award. The national winner will be announced Nov. 22.

12 Owners May Start Storm Sewer Project

Construction of the first stage of the proposed Weller Creek Drainage district storm sewer project may be handled by a group of 12 owners of large plots in the 888-acre drainage basin.

The group represents 450 acres of the total land area.

The press for early construction of the estimated $40,000 combination drainage tile and overflow ground swale is the refusal of the Chicago Metropolitan Sanitary District to issue any sanitary sewer permits to the subdividers until the storm drainage problems of the area are at least partially solved.

Building has been held up in the Weller Creek drainage area for a year because of the sanitary sewer connection permits. The only connection made to the sanitary sewer since August, 1962, was the line to Forest View High School which opened in September last year.

THE PROPOSED $40,000 drainage project would run from Busse Road across the Mount Prospect Country Club to Weller Creek. The combination swale and tile drainage work would be done as specified by the Mount Prospect Park Board which owns the country club. The park district, under the tentative agreement with the property owners, would act as custodian of the escrow account to cover cost of the construction.

Heading the effort to open up the Weller Creek Drainage area for building is Roy Patzer, engineer for E. L. Trendel developers.

Patzer said this week the sanitary district has said it would look favorably upon applications for sanitary sewer permits provided 1) the proposed $40,000 initial storm drainage project went ahead and 2) the individual developers would provide for some type of satisfactory surface treatment for drainage water, either on their own property or provided for elsewhere jointly.

Satisfactory surface treatment means detention basins either in the individual subdivisions or in an area substituted there for, Patzer explained.

AMONG THE builders now waiting for permits in order to start home construction are E. L. Trendel with his Cedar Glen subdivision south of the high school, Salvatore DiMucci for his property west of Busse Road, the Ludwig Marcy and Sons' Shalamar Apartment project across from Forest View High School, and the Nottingham subdivision.

Others are Colonial Heights, Carl Klehm & Son and Ken-Roy Realtors.

Patzer has suggested that the original plan calling for 30-inch concrete conduit be altered to allow 36-inch corrugated steel conduit. He said this change would effect a savings of nearly 30 cents a foot.

He estimated the $40,000 construction cost could be reduced by $5,000, with other possible savings which might be effected as well.

THE ASSESSMENT for the project may be figured on the basis of "weighted figures" Patzer told school board members of High School District 214 Monday night. Forest View High School is in the middle of the drainage area and board members are anxious to solve the storm drainage problems.

The "weighted" assessment would figure the high school property and property for single family homes as single assessment, Patzer explained. Owners of commercial or apartment land would pay double this amount, he said.

The estimated share for the high school in the projected first-stage plan is $3,200. The highest assessment—an estimated $14,000—would be that of DiMucci who holds 140 acres, or roughly one-third of the 450 participating acres.

THE PROPOSED $40,000 storm sewer project is included in the proposed $2 million total Weller Creek drainage program, according to Harvey Klehm, drainage district trustee. Klehm said the project is included in the plan at a figure of only $30,000.

Under terms of the proposed agreement among the owners any part of the 450 acres could drop out of the plan. In this event the other property owners affected by the increase in their share of the $40,000 drainage line would have 15 days in which to "pick up their part of the total tab," Patzer stated. He said if the other landowners did not want to carry the load of those choosing not to pay then the project would be dropped and the agreement would become null and void.

Santa will be on hand to talk to the children, starting the weekend of Nov. 30. Complete details are expected to be determined within a week.

Girl Facing Rabies Test

Arlington Heights police are searching for a black and white cat which either bit or scratched 5-year-old Marybeth Cook last Monday.

The young girl was playing with the animal in front of her home at 540 S. Dunton Ave. when the incident occurred.

IF THE CAT is not found, impounded and checked for rabies the girl will have to undergo a complete series of rabies shots to insure that she has not contracted the deadly disease.

The child described the cat as black, with white on its face, neck and feet, and said she had been bitten, though animal welfare officer Eugene Korn reported the wound looked somewhat like a scratch. (AF

Tuition Policies Conflict with Law

Three administrative policies of Arlington Heights Elementary School District 25 are apparently in direct conflict with a law passed at the last session of the Illinois legislature, but the school board has elected to finish the school year on the status quo.

According to Supt. Ralph E. Clabaugh, who brought the matter before the board, the law requires that tuition charges for children living outside the district must equal the per-capita cost of education of a student in the district.

Present district policy is to allow eight weeks attendance without tuition for people living outside the district, but planning to move in during the term.

THOSE MOVING out of the district during a school term are also allowed eight weeks without tuition cost.

The third policy is to allow children of teachers in the district to attend school free whether they live in the district or not.

Board member Victor Myer asked if the district could not get the advice of its attorney on what course to take and how to interpret the new law.

But board president Joseph Faner said, "I would just as soon see us hold off until next fall on any change in policy." In an informal poll of the board he drew no objections.

Price Drop?

District 25 Supt. Ralph E. Clabaugh told the school board Monday that a cafeteria profit and loss statement to be presented at the next board meeting may show justification for reducing the price of cafeteria meals in the district. (AF

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS — Residents of Elementary School District 25 will go to the polls Saturday to vote on two separate referenda — one for a 21 cent increase in the educational tax levy rate and the other for a $710,000 building proposal for two new schools. For details, see Arlington Heights Herald.

ROLLING MEADOWS — Overtures by Arlington Heights to renew talks on future boundaries between the village and Rolling Meadows were rejected this week by the city council, still bitter because Arlington dropped negotiations started a year ago by Mayor John J. Woods. Details in Rolling Meadows Herald.

WHEELING — Formation of a Human Relations Council or Commission is being attempted by the Community Council, "an organization of organizations." A pilot report has been sent out to member groups. Details in Wheeling Herald.

BUFFALO GROVE — The village board riddled with questions, insertions and additions a proposed pre-annexation agreement between the village and developers of a 964-acre tract called Glen Grove for which 2,000 homes and a "golf course" are planned. Public hearing on the agreement is to be Nov. 19, and the public hearing on the proposed zoning Nov. 20. Details in Wheeling Herald.

MOUNT PROSPECT — A hassle is developing between the park district and school district on moving baseball diamonds. For details, see the Mount Prospect Herald.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS — Attorney to School District 23 Board of Education, Henry F. Vallely, is credited with breaking an impasse between board, architect-consultant and general contractor in order that payment may be authorized for work completed in July on West Junior High addition.

Sheriff's police are searching for a large black bird that reportedly has attacked several children. Details in Prospect Heights Herald.

SCHAUMBURG — The Village of Schaumburg will hold a formal dedication on November 23 for its new community center, a group of converted farm buildings now estimated to be worth $1 million with the surrounding park land. Rep. Donald Rumsfield will give the address for the dedication, which is being held for about 400 invited guests, including officials of a dozen neighboring villages. Details in Hoffman Herald.

PALATINE — Consoer, Townsend, and Associates, engineering firm of the village, is serving its relations with Winston Park developer as a result of difference of opinion over construction and design criteria. Consoer, Townsend is the village engineer, also. See details in Palatine Enterprise.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE — Trustees will decide tonight (Thursday) whether to spend on additional $30,000 to construct an elevated water tower. Village President James Gibson has asked that a "waterspheroid" be constructed, rather than the conventional, multi-legged type tank.

—Chicago Magnet Wire officials have been asked to explain delays in reporting test results. The company has been warned by the village to eliminate odors that have drawn complaints from residents.

—Most of the physicians in the Centex Construction Co. owned offices in the shopping center reportedly are seeking new offices. Some are known to be disatisfied with the company's leasing arrangements, and its monopoly control of office space in the village. Details in the Elk Grove Herald. (B8

Contractor Pledges Action

Discuss School Delay

W. F. Fitzsimmons, general contractor for Thomas Junior High School under construction in Arlington Heights, appeared before the District 25 school board Monday to explain construction delays and promise "every possible effort" to complete the school on the date originally planned.

Fitzsimmons told the board delays so far have been due to fault on a contract by Alert Steel Co., with whom he entered into agreement July 3 for six-week delivery on all fabricated structural steel for the job.

He said the job is still being held up by lack of a critical five per cent of the steel, though it is already three months past the supposed delivery date.

HE SAID the steel company had assured him that the structural elements were in stock, when actually they had not even been formed. Other steel contractors he contacted had promised eight-week delivery, he continued, so after making credit checks on the company he took their offer to save time on the job.

By the time he discovered that delivery was not coming as scheduled, Fitzsimmons said, it was too late to change contractors since that would only have meant further delay.

Board Pres. Joseph Faner asked what prospects were on the critical five per cent of the steel contract which remains to be delivered, and Fitzsimmons answered that the steel is formed and in the company's yard, but that it hasn't been brought to the job yet.

HE DESCRIBED the company as "difficult to deal with," "unreasonable," and "no good."

Among those structural elements remaining to be delivered are three beams preventing a whole wing of the school from going together, he continued.

Fitzsimmons said he has since found out that the Chicago school system has had trouble with this supplier as well, but that he did not know this at the time he contracted.

"It is our (the district's) job to get that school built," said Faner. "Your reputation hangs in the balance."

FITZSIMMONS acknowledged this, and promised that he would "spare no expense getting the school delivered on time if at all humanly possible."

"Everything is scheduled and ready," Fitzsimmons said. "I don't see any pitfalls if we can get by this guy (the supplier)."

He added that the contractor had already cost everyone on the job a lot of money, and that the rush schedule necessary for completion on time would mean more crowded conditions and difficulties with several subcontractors on the job at once.

FITZSIMMONS also indicated to the board he intends to backcharge the steel supplier and reimburse people on the job for their extra trouble if he could substantiate himself legally.

He told the board not to be alarmed, though, that the legal fight would not delay construction or involve the district.

Structural steel work on the Thomas School was originally scheduled to be completed by the end of September. Now in a revised schedule the completion date is set for mid-November.

MMONS told the boar

FITZSIMMONS told the board he has been able to work around the construction delay to a limited extent, but that much of the work has had to be stalled.

"Almost all other material is already on the job, and has been for some time," he said. He added that there is even quite a bit of steel lying about, but that it is for later construction stages.

Faner and Supt. Ralph Clabaugh offered services of anyone connected with the district if there was any way possible to expedite delivery of the needed steel components, but Fitzsimmons put the other off temporarily for a last effort on his own.

Completion date set on the revised construction schedule presented to the board Monday is the same as originally planned, though some construction phases such as carpentry lag as much as a month and a half.

12 Owners May Start Storm Sewer Project

Construction of the first stage of the proposed Weller Creek Drainage district storm sewer project may be handled by a group of 12 owners of large plots in the 888-acre drainage basin.

The group represents 450 acres of the total land area.

The press for early construction of the estimated $40,000 combination drainage tile and overflow ground swale is the refusal of the Chicago Metropolitan Sanitary District to issue any sanitary sewer permits to the subdividers until the storm drainage problems of the area are at least partially solved.

Building has been held up in the Weller Creek drainage area for a year because of the sanitary sewer connection permits. The only connection made to the sanitary sewer since August, 1962, was the line to Forest View High School which opened in September last year.

THE PROPOSED $40,000 drainage project would run from Busse Road across the Mount Prospect Country Club to Weller Creek. The combination swale and tile drainage work would be done as specified by the Mount Prospect Park Board which owns the country club. The park district, under the tentative agreement with the property owners, would act as custodian of the escrow account to cover cost of the construction.

Heading the effort to open up the Weller Creek Drainage area for building is Roy Patzer, engineer for E. L. Trendel developers.

Patzer said this week the sanitary district has said it would look favorably upon applications for sanitary sewer permits provided 1) the proposed $40,000 initial storm drainage project went ahead and 2) the individual developers would provide for some type of satisfactory surface treatment for drainage water, either on their own property or provided for elsewhere jointly.

Satisfactory surface treatment means detention basins either in the individual subdivisions or in an area substituted there for, Patzer explained.

AMONG THE builders now waiting for permits in order to start home construction are E. L. Trendel with his Cedar Glen subdivision south of the high school, Salvatore DiMucci for his property west of Busse Road, the Ludwig Marcy and Sons' Shalamar Apartment project across from Forest View High School, and the Nottingham subdivision.

Others are Colonial Heights, Carl Klehm & Son and Ken-Roy Realtors.

Patzer has suggested that the original plan calling for 30-inch concrete conduit be altered to allow 36-inch corrugated steel conduit. He said this change would effect a savings of nearly 30 cents a foot.

He estimated the $40,000 construction cost could be reduced by $5,000, with other possible savings which might be effected as well.

THE ASSESSMENT for the project may be figured on the basis of "weighted figures" Patzer told school board members of High School District 214 Monday night. Forest View High School is in the middle of the drainage area and board members are anxious to solve the storm drainage problems.

The "weighted" assessment would figure the high school property and property for single family homes as single assessment, Patzer explained. Owners of commercial or apartment land would pay double this amount, he said.

The estimated share for the high school in the projected first-stage plan is $3,200. The highest assessment—an estimated $14,000—would be that of DiMucci who holds 140 acres, or roughly one-third of the 450 participating acres.

THE PROPOSED $40,000 storm sewer project is included in the proposed $2 million total Weller Creek drainage program, according to Harvey Klehm, drainage district trustee. Klehm said the project is included in the plan at a figure of only $30,000.

Under terms of the proposed agreement among the owners any part of the 450 acres could drop out of the plan. In this event the other property owners affected by the increase in their share of the $40,000 drainage line would have 15 days in which to "pick up their part of the total tab," Patzer stated. He said if the other landowners did not want to carry the load of those choosing not to pay then the project would be dropped and the agreement would become null and void.

Mrs. Hall Wins $500 on Quiz Show

A word in time made $500 for Mrs. Barbara Hall, 1702 W. Fremont, Arlington Heights, last week in New York.

It all began two weeks ago with a vacation to the big city. She and her husband both auditioned for the CBS television program "Password."

They went to a production of the show and stayed afterward with about 150 others to express interest in appearing on the next one.

Her husband was eliminated in extensive interviews and practice quizzes which narrowed the field to fewer than 10 entrants, but Mrs. Hall went on.

She was to appear on the Thursday daytime Password show Oct. 31, but time ran out and she went instead on the nightime show taped Nov. 5.

THE TAPED session was shown last Thursday in the Chicago area, and the Halls, back from their vacation, invited friends in to watch her win the $500.

The program offers cash prizes for contestants who guess a given word on the basis of clues given by their partners.

Celebrities serving as partners for the Nov. 5 show were Vivian Vance and Douglas Fairbanks Jr.—Mrs. Hall was paired for the evening with Vivian Vance.

THE APPEARANCE was no accident. The Halls in planning their vacation trip had included attendance at three audience-participation shows with the intent of getting on one or more.

Mrs. Hall adds that the show was not without its touch of irony. One of the passwords which led her on to $500 in winnings was "cruise." Her husband works for the Matson Steamship Co. as a sales representative for tours and cruises.

WIND's Williamson To Be at Dance

WIND's Dick Williamson will visit Arlington High School tomorrow (Friday) night for "Danceville, U.S.A.," sponsored by the Arlington Heights Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The dance in the large gymnasium will feature a rock 'n roll band, surprise guest stars and giveaway albums for dance contest winners. Dancing will be from 8 p.m. to 11:30.

Williamson, Chicago radio and television personality since 1958 when he was signed by WIND, was seen on "Danceville, U.S.A." last summer on WBKB-TV.

WILLIAMSON has an extensive background in radio. Following his graduation at Northwestern University and a term of service in the United States Navy, he began his broadcasting career at WDSR in Lake City, Fla.

In 1955 he moved to WLAY, Florence, Ala., as sports director and later joined KLIF in Dallas, Texas, where he announced major league baseball and Pacific Coast League football. He was news director at KXYZ in Houston, Texas, where he also did play-by-play football and basketball before coming to Chicago.

Missile Reminds Of Hospital Need

Arlington Heights commuters saw what appeared to be a "ready for take-off" missile as they alighted from the trains last Thursday, Nov. 7.

The date marked the kickoff for the Northwest Community Hospital Expansion Fund Drive.

Dry ice was placed at the base of the Hospital Fund Quota Missile located at Evergreen and Campbell Streets in Arlington Heights. With the full smoke effect, the missile gave the appearance of being ready to blast off.

The visual effect was designed to remind residents of Arlington Heights of the kickoff date for the hospital fund drive, according to Ed Baker, campaign chairman for the village.

"Cooperation and enthusiasm of all the many residents who are assisting in the drive point toward the successful accomplishment of achieving the goal for Arlington Heights of $550,000," Baker said.

As returns come in, the Hospital Fund Missile will be painted to indicate the progress of the drive. (A

Mayor Proclaims Education Week

Village Pres. John G. Woods of Arlington Heights issued the following proclamation Monday in recognition and appreciation of American Education Week Nov. 10-16, and of this year's theme, "Education Strengthens the Nation."

"WHEREAS the school system in Arlington Heights is outstanding and a source of great pride to all of us, and

"WHEREAS, the conscious realization of this year's theme will give direction to this year's program—a return to education's basic values—which maintains that: 'Knowledge without the power to think and without values is useless, perhaps dangerous,' and

"WHEREAS, material progress can serve mankind in its highest entreprises if valued and used wisely, so it is that education can find new ways to reassert the lasting values of knowledge, wisdom and service, and

"WHEREAS, a sound program of free public education, available to all, is essential to the preservation of freedom and the many rights we enjoy, therefore such a program is the personal responsibility of every citizen,

"NOW THEREFORE, I, John G. Woods, village president of Arlington Heights, do hereby proclaim the week of Nov. 10-16, 1963, as American Education Week in Arlington Heights and urge all citizens to actively participate in the school's program so that the purposes of education may be achieved and that active interest may be steadfastly maintained.

Auto Parts Thefts Charged to Youths

Arlington Heights police apprehended three youths in the village Nov. 7 when a license and registration check on a car in which they were riding implicated them in a Rolling Meadows theft staged the previous day.

Two of the three later admitted the theft of auto parts according to police report, and were charged with the offense in Rolling Meadows.

The two are Raymond Eugene James, driver of the car, from Burbank, Calif., and Charles James Deering, Mount Prospect. Bond for both was set at $1,000, and they are scheduled to appear in court Nov. 18.

THE THIRD youth was turned over to the Rolling Meadows juvenile officer for appearance in Cook County Family Court.

License of the car which led to identification of the three was spotted in the theft, which occurred at nearly 2 a.m. Nov. 6. The vehicle is registered to the driver's brother, a Park Ridge resident.

The car was stopped at the intersection of Rand and Foundry Roads at 2:30 a.m., leading to the arrest. (A

Mrs. Hall Wins $500 on Quiz Show

A word in time made $500 for Mrs. Barbara Hall, 1702 W. Fremont, Arlington Heights, last week in New York.

It all began two weeks ago with a vacation to the big city. She and her husband both auditioned for the CBS television program "Password."

They went to a production of the show and stayed afterward with about 150 others to express interest in appearing on the next one.

Her husband was eliminated in extensive interviews and practice quizzes which narrowed the field to fewer than 10 entrants, but Mrs. Hall went on.

She was to appear on the Thursday daytime Password show Oct. 31, but time ran out and she went instead on the nightime show taped Nov. 5.

THE TAPED session was shown last Thursday in the Chicago area, and the Halls, back from their vacation, invited friends in to watch her win the $500.

The program offers cash prizes for contestants who guess a given word on the basis of clues given by their partners.

Celebrities serving as partners for the Nov. 5 show were Vivian Vance and Douglas Fairbanks Jr.—Mrs. Hall was paired for the evening with Vivian Vance.

THE APPEARANCE was no accident. The Halls in planning their vacation trip had included attendance at three audience-participation shows with the intent of getting on one or more.

Mrs. Hall adds that the show was not without its touch of irony. One of the passwords which led her on to $500 in winnings was "cruise." Her husband works for the Matson Steamship Co. as a sales representative for tours and cruises.

WIND's Williamson To Be at Dance

WIND's Dick Williamson will visit Arlington High School tomorrow (Friday) night for "Danceville, U.S.A.," sponsored by the Arlington Heights Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The dance in the large gymnasium will feature a rock 'n roll band, surprise guest stars and giveaway albums for dance contest winners. Dancing will be from 8 p.m. to 11:30.

Williamson, Chicago radio and television personality since 1958 when he was signed by WIND, was seen on "Danceville, U.S.A." last summer on WBKB-TV.

WILLIAMSON has an extensive background in radio. Following his graduation at Northwestern University and a term of service in the United States Navy, he began his broadcasting career at WDSR in Lake City, Fla.

In 1955 he moved to WLAY, Florence, Ala., as sports director and later joined KLIF in Dallas, Texas, where he announced major league baseball and Pacific Coast League football. He was news director at KXYZ in Houston, Texas, where he also did play-by-play football and basketball before coming to Chicago.

Pure Oil Gives $50,000 to Hospital Drive

Spurs $4 Million Expansion Effort

A $50,000 boost to the Northwest Community Hospital expansion fund campaign came this week from the Pure Oil Co.

The contribution is the first major donation announced since the opening of the $4 million hospital expansion drive last week.

It is the second major contribution to the hospital by the oil firm. During the initial hospital campaign Pure Oil Co. presented the fund drive with a check for $25,000.

The $50,000 contribution follows the $150,000 donation by A. C. Buehler, president of the hospital board of trustees, and the Victor Foundation, charitable organization of the Victor Comptroller Corp. which Buehler heads. Buehler's gift was announced at the time plans for the $4 million hospital expansion were revealed last spring.

Buehler's contribution to the first hospital campaign was $35,000.

BOTH BUEHLER and Nicholas M. Lattof, vice president of the hospital board and general chairman of the expansion fund drive, praised the Pure Oil Company for its recognition of community need and for its policy of active support for worthwhile programs in the area.

The oil firm policy is to encourage community growth and charitable programs both through financial contributions and through encouragement of activities by personnel in all phases of community life, Lattof noted.

Other major contributions to the hospital fund are pledges for $400,000 by the hospital board of trustees and $200,000 by the medical staff.

Lattof has told the doctors and trustees "we must pledge ourselves before we can ask others."

A federal grant of $900,000 has been earmarked for the hospital expansion by the State Bureau of Hospitals. The grant, part of the annual federal Hill-Burton funds for hospital building, is as large as any Illinois hospital grant on record.

THE RESIDENTIAL campaign will seek less than $1 million from area families and individuals. Business and industrial contributions are being sought from area firms.

A special solicitation will cover some of the major Chicago area firms who have a large number of employes living in the local area.

The residential fund drive is based on pledges covering a 30-month period. Pledges for the period would bring $90 to the hospital campaign based on contributions of only 10 cents a day.

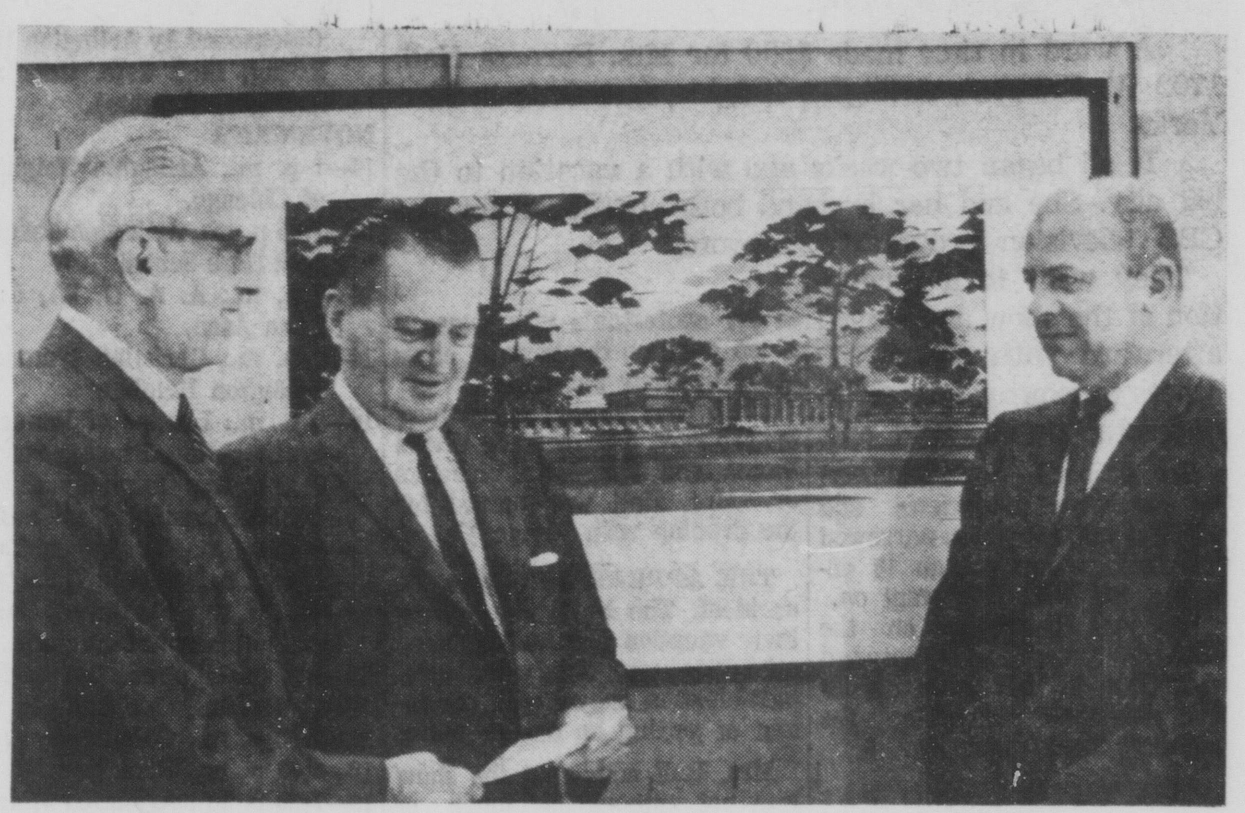
All facilities at the hospital have reached a state of constant overcrowding. Last year at least one area resident was turned away on 344 days because of lack of bed space. (Emergency patients are always accepted.) An average of 52 operations had to be canceled each month (except for emergencies) because of crowded surgical suite and bed space problems. Despite this there were 3,544 surgical procedures completed last year.

THE EXPANSION program will add more than 100 beds to the hospital, but the major expansion effort will go toward increasing other hospital facilities.

Air conditioning is to be added to both the present and the new areas of the hospital.

Among the enlarged areas will be the emergency room, with bigger quarters and additional rooms for doctors to serve non-emergency medical and dental out-patients. Other expanded areas will be the X-ray diagnostic area, including a new cobalt radiation unit, tripled laboratory areas, new elevators, three additional surgical suites with cardiac monitoring equipment, a doubled obstetrical and nursery department, a bigger cast room and increased space for sterilization room, offices and medical records.

The program will add mental health facilities, research laboratories, a father's waiting room, classrooms and meeting rooms, and blood bank facilities.



WITH AN architect's picture of the massive Pure Oil Company general office building in Schaumburg Township in the background, two of the firm's officers participated in ceremonies marking the oil company's $50,000 contribution to the Northwest Community Hospital Expansion fund campaign. The men are P. N. Gammelgard (center), vice president in charge of refining, and John Spence (right), secretary-treasurer. Accepting the donation is Nicholas M. Lattof, general chairman of the fund campaign. (B9

A $170,000 intensive care unit is to be constructed during the next six to eight months to provide some relief facilities for the hospital and to give area residents better health service. The intensive care unit is not included in the $4 million expansion program. (B9

Schools Agree to Sell Stub of Land for $3,300

In five-minute negotiations Monday Arlington Heights Elementary School District agreed with Robert B. Loehner Jr. on the $3,300 value of a piece of district land.

Loehner has asked to purchase a small stub protruding from the district's Miner-Windsor school site with about 49 feet of frontage on Windsor Drive at the south end of the site.

The rectangular stub extends about 144 feet west, and would facilitate development of a strip of land extending south of the stub to Kensington Road which Loehner owns.

At the October school board meeting the board voted to procure two real estate appraisals to establish the fair market value of the parcel, thinking the land could just be sold to Loehner at that price.

But the district attorney rendered an opinion that the land must be sold by public auction, so the appraised value was used Monday to establish a minimum bid on the parcel.

The two appraisals obtained by the district were $3,400 and $3,500. Loehner also obtained an appraisal, and his turned ut $3,000.

Loehner told the board he was rather astounded when he learned the value placed on the land. Explaining his situation, he said, "I seem to have a white elephant (his strip of land).

"I bought this acreage as a retirement home in the country, but something happened to the country."

He said he has had to pay improvement cost of Windsor Drive along the east edge of his property, and had to dedicate land for Compbell Street through the property.

WITHOUT THE district's stub, the land is almost impossible to develop profitably, he said. "As it stands now I have an investment of about $34,000 in nothing. I don't want to make a profit—I just want to sell and get rid of a problem."

When Board Pres. Joseph Faner mentioned the fact that someone else might buy the land at auction and jack the price up knowing his situation, Loehner said, "That's the only other thing that could happen to me."

"We aren't particularly anxious to sell the property, but we feel we can get along without it," Faner said. He said $3,300 might be a fair market value between appraisals gained by the two interested parties.

Board member Charles Bennett then said, "I just wonder if you can justify publicly taking a figure which is not the appraised value in terms of the people we sought advice from."

HE ADDED that, since Loehner's is a hardship case, the board might use the lower of the two figures ($3,400) as a bid minimum.

But Faner said every land purchase, no matter who is involved, musst be negotiated in the interest of both parties.

Bennett then said that the sale would really be in the best ¼interest of orderly development of the village, as well as the two parties involved. He moved that the $3,300 figure be accepted, Loehner agreed, and the board approved.

An official resolution must be prepared and published to announce the auction.

Approve Surety Bonds For School Treasurer

By HELENE BRISTOL
Education Editor

The job becomes official for Ray Stevenson, new Wheeling Township School Treasurer, on Friday.

Surety bonds for literally millions of dollars were signed by Wheeling Township School Trustees Gerald Moe, Henry Vallely and Mrs. Lucille Gallagher at a special meeting Tuesday night.

The bonds, which must be filed with the county school superintendent, will make it "legal" for Stevenson to take custody of the school funds for High School District 214, and the elementary schools in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove, Prospect Heights, Feehanville and Arlington Heights.

Stevenson is succeeding Rolland A. Franzen, whose resignation becomes effective tomorrow, Nov. 15.

THE TRUSTEES were in agreement on:

—new surety bonds covering Stevenson for funds he handles for all five school districts;

—approving condemnation proceedings for two sites needed by High School District 214 and Feehanville District 26 (the trustees hold title to all school property for the districts);

—hiring Laurin, Schultheis and Givens to audit the treasurer's books as of Nov. 15 to close out Franzen's term of office; and —changing depositories of the various school funds to the name of the new treasurer.

MRS. GALLAGHER split with Moe and Vallely on two key issues.

1) Arlington Heights National Bank had offered free office space for the township school treasurer's office. The space had been used by Franzen when he first became treasurer more than 10 years ago. Some of the school funds are on deposit at the bank. The posting of school records by the bookkeeper employed in the treasurer's office is done without charge on bank equipment.

Mrs. Gallapher questioned the propriety of placing the official school treasurer's office in a bank which holds a portion of the township school funds. "Public offices under public roof," was the comment Mrs. Gallagher made after the meeting.

The bank office will provide facilities for the treasurer and his secretary-bookkeeper in the center of Arlington Heights only a few blocks from the present official treasurer's office in the offices owned by Franzen.

Since the space is rent-free, the immediate effect of the move to the bank quarters is an annual saving of $900 in rent which had been paid Franzen for space in his law office.

2) HOTTEST ISSUE of the night was an attempt by Mrs. Gallagher to reduce the $500 monthly salary paid to Franzen, and slated to be paid to Stevenson. Mrs. Gallagher wanted the salary cut to $200/month.

The move was opposed by Moe and Valley. Franzen and Vallely, both attorneys, said the salary had been set at $500 per month for the treasurer's term which will end next June 30. Moe said an independent legal opinion brought the same information.

Mrs. Gallagher said a check with the county superintendent's office indicated the salary could be changed. Moe and Vallely opposed the reduction citing the heavy financial responsibility placed on the treasurer.

UNDER REPEATED questioning by Mrs. Gallagher, Franzen started to shout. Mrs. Gallagher continued to press for a salary reduction, saying the trustees had been remiss in not setting a salary before hiring Stevenson.

Stevenson announced that the present secretary-bookkeeper would stay "on the job" until December 15 in order to train a replacement. A new secretary has not yet been found, Stevenson said.

Pure Oil Gives $50,000 to Hospital Drive

Spurs $4 Million Expansion Effort

A $50,000 boost to the Northwest Community Hospital expansion fund campaign came this week from the Pure Oil Co.

The contribution is the first major donation announced since the opening of the $4 million hospital expansion drive last week.

It is the second major contribution to the hospital by the oil firm. During the initial hospital campaign Pure Oil Co. presented the fund drive with a check for $25,000.

The $50,000 contribution follows the $150,000 donation by A. C. Buehler, president of the hospital board of trustees, and the Victor Foundation, charitable organization of the Victor Comptroller Corp. which Buehler heads. Buehler's gift was announced at the time plans for the $4 million hospital expansion were revealed last spring.

Buehler's contribution to the first hospital campaign was $35,000.

BOTH BUEHLER and Nicholas M. Lattof, vice president of the hospital board and general chairman of the expansion fund drive, praised the Pure Oil Company for its recognition of community need and for its policy of active support for worthwhile programs in the area.

The oil firm policy is to encourage community growth and charitable programs both through financial contributions and through encouragement of activities by personnel in all phases of community life, Lattof noted.

Other major contributions to the hospital fund are pledges for $400,000 by the hospital board of trustees and $200,000 by the medical staff.

Lattof has told the doctors and trustees "we must pledge ourselves before we can ask others."

A federal grant of $900,000 has been earmarked for the hospital expansion by the State Bureau of Hospitals. The grant, part of the annual federal Hill-Burton funds for hospital building, is as large as any Illinois hospital grant on record.

THE RESIDENTIAL campaign will seek less than $1 million from area families and individuals. Business and industrial contributions are being sought from area firms.

A special solicitation will cover some of the major Chicago area firms who have a large number of employes living in the local area.

The residential fund drive is based on pledges covering a 30-month period. Pledges for the period would bring $90 to the hospital campaign based on contributions of only 10 cents a day.

All facilities at the hospital have reached a state of constant overcrowding. Last year at least one area resident was turned away on 344 days because of lack of bed space. (Emergency patients are always accepted.) An average of 52 operations had to be canceled each month (except for emergencies) because of crowded surgical suite and bed space problems. Despite this there were 3,544 surgical procedures completed last year.

THE EXPANSION program will add more than 100 beds to the hospital, but the major expansion effort will go toward increasing other hospital facilities.

Air conditioning is to be added to both the present and the new areas of the hospital.

Among the enlarged areas will be the emergency room, with bigger quarters and additional rooms for doctors to serve non-emergency medical and dental out-patients. Other expanded areas will be the X-ray diagnostic area, including a new cobalt radiation unit, tripled laboratory areas, new elevators, three additional surgical suites with cardiac monitoring equipment, a doubled obstetrical and nursery department, a bigger cast room and increased space for sterilization room, offices and medical records.

The program will add mental health facilities, research laboratories, a father's waiting room, classrooms and meeting rooms, and blood bank facilities.

WITH AN architect's picture of the massive Pure Oil Company general office building in Schaumburg Township in the background, two of the firm's officers participated in ceremonies marking the oil company's $50,000 contribution to the Northwest Community Hospital Expansion fund campaign. The men are P. N. Gammelgard (center), vice president in charge of refining, and John Spence (right), secretary-treasurer. Accepting the donation is Nicholas M. Lattof, general chairman of the fund campaign. (B9

A $170,000 intensive care unit is to be constructed during the next six to eight months to provide some relief facilities for the hospital and to give area residents better health service. The intensive care unit is not included in the $4 million expansion program. (B9

Schools Agree to Sell Stub of Land for $3,300

In five-minute negotiations Monday Arlington Heights Elementary School District agreed with Robert B. Loehner Jr. on the $3,300 value of a piece of district land.

Loehner has asked to purchase a small stub protruding from the district's Miner-Windsor school site with about 49 feet of frontage on Windsor Drive at the south end of the site.

The rectangular stub extends about 144 feet west, and would facilitate development of a strip of land extending south of the stub to Kensington Road which Loehner owns.

At the October school board meeting the board voted to procure two real estate appraisals to establish the fair market value of the parcel, thinking the land could just be sold to Loehner at that price.

But the district attorney rendered an opinion that the land must be sold by public auction, so the appraised value was used Monday to establish a minimum bid on the parcel.

The two appraisals obtained by the district were $3,400 and $3,500. Loehner also obtained an appraisal, and his turned ut $3,000.

Loehner told the board he was rather astounded when he learned the value placed on the land. Explaining his situation, he said, "I seem to have a white elephant (his strip of land).

"I bought this acreage as a retirement home in the country, but something happened to the country."

He said he has had to pay improvement cost of Windsor Drive along the east edge of his property, and had to dedicate land for Compbell Street through the property.

WITHOUT THE district's stub, the land is almost impossible to develop profitably, he said. "As it stands now I have an investment of about $34,000 in nothing. I don't want to make a profit—I just want to sell and get rid of a problem."

When Board Pres. Joseph Faner mentioned the fact that someone else might buy the land at auction and jack the price up knowing his situation, Loehner said, "That's the only other thing that could happen to me."

"We aren't particularly anxious to sell the property, but we feel we can get along without it," Faner said. He said $3,300 might be a fair market value between appraisals gained by the two interested parties.

Board member Charles Bennett then said, "I just wonder if you can justify publicly taking a figure which is not the appraised value in terms of the people we sought advice from."

HE ADDED that, since Loehner's is a hardship case, the board might use the lower of the two figures ($3,400) as a bid minimum.

But Faner said every land purchase, no-matter who is involved, musst be negotiated in the interest of both parties.

Bennett then said that the sale would really be in the best ¼interest of orderly development of the village, as well as the two parties involved. He moved that the $3,300 figure be accepted, Loehner agreed, and the board approved.

An official resolution must be prepared and published to announce the auction.

For All Public Schools

Explain New Safety Code

(For copies of the "Life Safety Code" are available in Illinois. Local school superintendents have not yet seen the new building and safety code which will cover all public schools in the state as of Jan. 1. Procuring a copy of the code, Paddock Publications has spent more than a month in study, interviews and conferences regarding the code. The new regulations will probably mean more taxes throughout the state in order to bring existing schools into compliance. For Paddock Publications readers, parents of school children and taxpayers, the information on the new code requirements is printed for the first time in any Chicago area newspaper.)

A new "Life Safety Code" covering all public schools in Illinois, both new and old, may spell higher bills for state taxpayers.

The new code is in two parts — one covering new school construction and the other covering necessary standards which existing buildings must meet.

The code is slated to go into effect Jan. 1.

Under draft for more than four years, the new code will take all school building and fire-safety requirements away from state and local fire marshalls and building departments and put such standards under the supervision of the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

In practice, this will be under the supervision of the county school superintendents as agents for the state superintendent.

Legally, the school authorities have always had such control. Because of a lack of a standard state school building code the fire marshall's offices have been regulating school safety and construction. These applications have varied with the administration of regulations by local fire marshalls and inspectors.

THE NEW CODE requirements are strict, but in some cases are more lenient than some specifications of national fire codes. These are instances where the use of new materials or devices are permitted, although such new items may not have been incorporated as yet into the national building codes.

Among the general requirements for existing schools is the use of wire-reinforced glass for all interior doors, windows or window walls. Interior stairs of schools with two stories or more must be enclosed with fire doors at the bottom. There are limited exceptions to both these rules.

The new code also requires sprinkler systems or fire and/or smoke detection devices in all hazard areas such as attics, storage closets or rooms or boiler rooms.

Strict requirements specify the number of exits required from various types of rooms, cafeterias, assemblies and gymnasiums.

OTHER CODE requirements cover water supply, building materials, fire and smoke screens, plumbing and sewage disposal, electrical systems, heating and ventilating systems and furnaces or boilers.

Another chapter deals with occupancy limits for various types and sizes of rooms.

According to Robert Hayes of the Cook County Superintendent of Schools office, almost every school in the county will need some work to bring it into compliance.

Merrill Gates, assistant county school superintendent in DuPage County, said most DuPage school district superintendents are aware that the new code is coming but they are not familiar with the requirements. Gates told Paddock Publications that draft copies of the new code had not been received by the DuPage County school office. As soon as the new code is in effect, Gates said a meeting of DuPage county school superintendents would be called. Architects familiar with the new code requirements would be asked to come to the meeting to interpret the new code for the school administrators.

IN COOK COUNTY, a meeting of the school superintendents was called by Dr. Noble Puffer, county school superintendent, more than month ago. The meeting featured detailed explanation of what the code included by Scott Funkhouser. Funkhouser, formerly with the state education office, was the "executive officer" for development of the code during the past four years.

Another resource meeting was held during the Tri-County Division, Illinois Association of School Boards, fall meeting. Many Cook County school board members were openly critical of the code at the Tri-County session, claiming the requirements were being "sprung" on them without adequate notice. The panel of experts stated many meetings had been held during the past four years to try to inform school administrators and board members of the new requirements.

The new code requires present schools be brought into compliance with the code within two years (less for some schools of wood construction). Both the Cook County and DuPage County school superintendents have indicated that the requirement for compliance within two years would be administered "with understanding."

TO ASCERTAIN what must be done to bring each school into code compliance, school districts must engage an architect or engineer to conduct a survey of the schools. The survey is to include scale drawings of the building and site. These surveys will be submitted through the school boards to the county superintendents. After checking the surveys, local schools will be obligated to bring the schools up to code standards.

If school boards fail to bring the buildings into compliance, school board members may be personally liable in the event of any construction failure or fire.

In order to give schools financial help in the repair and remodeling work, the state legislature this year approved a five cent per $100 assessed valuation tax. This tax may be levied for three years just for the work required by the code. No referendum is necessary to levy the tax.

A "fly in the ointment" for the special tax is the condition tacked on by state legislators. In order to levy the special tax, school districts must have exhausted its financial resources for school building.

THIS MEANS that schools must be levying the full $.25 per $100 valuation rate for building purposes (almost all schools in northwest Cook County and north DuPage County do levy the full rate). In addition—and for suburban schools this is the major hurdle—all bonding power of the school district must be exhausted.

Schools may issue bonds to a total of five per cent of the total assessed valuation of the school district. Even schools which regularly go to voters to get approval of bonds for new schools usually have a limited amount of bonding power left due to the greatly increasing suburban real estate assessments each year.

This means that suburban schools must use some of the bonding power they hoard so carefully for always-needed new schools. It also means that the school boards must ask voters to approve bonds for the remodeling work required by the code.

Just where school board members may be as far as liability is concerned if voters turn down the referendum for funds to do the required remodeling work has not yet been determined.

IN DU PAGE County, few school districts have used up their bonding power. An exception may be the small Queen Bee District south of Roselle, according to Gates.

In Cook County, both Palatine High School and Palatine-Rolling Meadows grade schools regularly issue bonds to the total limit of their resources. These school districts may be the only ones able to use the five-cent tax authorized by the legislature.

In Arlington Heights, both Superintendent Ralph Clabaugh of the elementary schools and Superintendent Harold Slichenmyer of the high schools said their districts would never be at the total end of bonding power since assessments jumped so much each year. Both men reluctantly agreed the five cent tax could not be used in their districts.

EVEN WITH A copy of the new code available, the various specifications are so complicated that no school administrator or school board could determine what work might be needed without the advice of an architect or engineer.

With all schools "on the line" January 1 for surveys on what is needed to bring them into compliance with the new code, it would appear Illinois architects and engineers will have a busy new year.

Procuring a copy of the code, Paddock Publications has spent more than a month in study, interviews and conferences regarding the code. The new regulations will probably mean more taxes throughout the state in order to bring existing schools into compliance. For Paddock Publications readers, parents of school children and taxpayers, the information on the new code requirements is printed for the first time in any Chicago area newspaper.)

A new "Life Safety Code" covering all public schools in Illinois, both new and old, may spell higher bills for state taxpayers.

The new code is in two parts — one covering new school construction and the other covering necessary standards which existing buildings must meet.

The code is slated to go into effect Jan. 1.

Under draft for more than four years, the new code will take all school building and fire-safety requirements away from state and local fire marshalls and building departments and put such standards under the supervision of the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

In practice, this will be under the supervision of the county school superintendents as agents for the state superintendent.

Legally, the school authorities have always had such control. Because of a lack of a standard state school building code the fire marshall's offices have been regulating school safety and construction. These applications have varied with the administration of regulations by local fire marshalls and inspectors.

THE NEW CODE requirements are strict, but in some cases are more lenient than some specifications of national fire codes. These are instances where the use of new materials or devices are permitted, although such new items may not have been incorporated as yet into the national building codes.

Among the general requirements for existing schools is the use of wire-reinforced glass for all interior doors, windows or window walls. Interior stairs of schools with two stories or more must be enclosed with fire doors at the bottom. There are limited exceptions to both these rules.

The new code also requires sprinkler systems or fire and/or smoke detection devices in all hazard areas such as attics, storage closets or rooms or boiler rooms.

Strict requirements specify the number of exits required from various types of rooms, cafeterias, assemblies and gymnasiums.

OTHER CODE requirements cover water supply, building materials, fire and smoke screens, plumbing and sewage disposal, electrical systems, heating and ventilating systems and furnaces or boilers.

Another chapter deals with occupancy limits for various types and sizes of rooms.

According to Robert Hayes of the Cook County Superintendent of Schools office, almost every school in the county will need some work to bring it into compliance.

Merrill Gates, assistant county school superintendent in DuPage County, said most DuPage school district superintendents are aware that the new code is coming but they are not familiar with the requirements. Gates told Paddock Publications that draft copies of the new code had not been received by the DuPage County school office. As soon as the new code is in effect, Gates said a meeting of DuPage county school superintendents would be called. Architects familiar with the new code requirements would be asked to come to the meeting to interpret the new code for the school administrators.

IN COOK COUNTY, a meeting of the school superintendents was called by Dr. Noble Puffer, county school superintendent, more than month ago. The meeting featured detailed explanation of what the code included by Scott Funkhouser. Funkhouser, formerly with the state education office, was the "executive officer" for development of the code during the past four years.

Another resource meeting was held during the Tri-County Division, Illinois Association of School Boards, fall meeting. Many Cook County school board members were openly critical of the code at the Tri-County session, claiming the requirements were being "sprung" on them without adequate notice. The panel of experts stated many meetings had been held during the past four years to try to inform school administrators and board members of the new requirements.

The new code requires present schools be brought into compliance with the code within two years (less for some schools of wood construction). Both the Cook County and DuPage County school superintendents have indicated that the requirement for compliance within two years would be administered "with understanding."

TO ASCERTAIN what must be done to bring each school into code compliance, school districts must engage an architect or engineer to conduct a survey of the schools. The survey is to include scale drawings of the building and site. These surveys will be submitted through the school boards to the county superintendents. After checking the surveys, local schools will be obligated to bring the schools up to code standards.

If school boards fail to bring the buildings into compliance, school board members may be personally liable in the event of any construction failure or fire.

In order to give schools financial help in the repair and remodeling work, the state legislature this year approved a five cent per $100 assessed valuation tax. This tax may be levied for three years just for the work required by the code. No referendum is necessary to levy the tax.

A "fly in the ointment" for the special tax is the condition tacked on by state legislators. In order to levy the special tax, school districts must have exhausted its financial resources for school building.

THIS MEANS that schools must be levying the full $.25 per $100 valuation rate for building purposes (almost all schools in northwest Cook County and north DuPage County do levy the full rate): In addition—and for suburban schools this is the major hurdle—all bonding power of the school district must be exhausted.

Schools may issue bonds to a total of five per cent of the total assessed valuation of the school district. Even schools which regularly go to voters to get approval of bonds for new schools usually have a limited amount of bonding power left due to the greatly increasing suburban real estate assessments each year.

This means that suburban schools must use some of the bonding power they hoard so carefully for always-needed new schools. It also means that the school boards must ask voters to approve bonds for the remodeling work required by the code.

Just where school board members may be as far as liability is concerned if voters turn down the referendum for funds to do the required remodeling work has not yet been determined.

IN DU PAGE County, few school districts have used up their bonding power. An exception may be the small Queen Bee District south of Roselle, according to Gates.

In Cook County, both Palatine High School and Palatine-Rolling Meadows grade schools regularly issue bonds to the total limit of their resources. These school districts may be the only ones able to use the five-cent tax authorized by the legislature.

In Arlington Heights, both Superintendent Ralph Clabaugh of the elementary schools and Superintendent Harold Slichenmyer of the high schools said their districts would never be at the total end of bonding power since assessments jumped so much each year. Both men reluctantly agreed the five cent tax could not be used in their districts.

EVEN WITH A copy of the new code available, the various specifications are so complicated that no school administrator or school board could determine what work might be needed without the advice of an architect or engineer.

With all schools "on the line" January 1 for surveys on what is needed to bring them into compliance with the new code, it would appear Illinois architects and engineers will have a busy new year.

Q. Would it be all right for me to ask my best friend, rather than my sister, to serve as my maid-of-honor — and my sister to serve as a bridesmaid?

A. This is your privilege. Remember though, in choosing your friend, you are implying that she is "closer to you" than your sister, especially if their ages are nearly the same.

Commuter St. Too Humble For Name 'American Way'?

The public relations committee of the Arlington Heights village board recommended last week that Commuter Street not be named "The American Way," but board action was deferred until the village owns the street.

Wayne Brennan, acting for the Chamber of Commerce and the Arlington Heights Inter-American Friendship Committee, recommended in September that the short street just south of the village train station become a symbol in the village.

He asked that the street be named "The American Way" because "a suburban commuter station with the hurry and excitement of its commuters typifies the 'American Way' of suburban life."

He also asked that a flagpole be erected in the middle of the block between Evergreen Street and Dunton Avenue to fly the American flag prominently in the center of the village.

THE VILLAGE board's public relations committee, headed by Trustee Bud Beacham, recommended that the board give favorable consideration to the flagpole request.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson has estimated the pole, providing it is similar to the one now in front of the municipal building, would cost approximately $700 for purchase and installation.

But the committee, while seeing a need to change the tiny thoroughfare's name from Commuter Street, rejected the idea of a block-long "American Way."

THE REPORT, stemming from a meeting which Brennan attended, said in part, "... it was agreed that this name would be a heavy burden for this small street to bear.

"Basically," the report continued, "it is a small, rather narrow street, whereas we felt that a name as sophisticated and patriotic as 'The American Way' would more appropriately fit a rather wide, main thoroughfare or boulevard."

When the report was presented to the board, Trustee Eugene Schlickman immediately registered his disagreement, saying that the committee had missed Brennan's point and not justified a contrary position.

Beacham pointed out that Brennan was at the committee meeting from which the report arose, and that he thought the committee had clearly understood his point.

WHEN ASKED if his committee had considered an alternate, Beacham said he had purposely avoided suggesting one at this time with the thought that there could be a contest or some other means of naming the street in the future.

Trustee Carl Mees suggested that the entire matter and any action on the report be deferred until the street is in village hands and complete for its proposed two-block length.

Trustee Norval Stephens, a member of the public relations committee, said it could well be that the street will end up being named "The American Way" after all.

THOUGH the Arlington Heights National Bank and the village have a contract in which the village's Davis Street and the bank's Commuter street among other things are to be traded, action to complete the deal is snagged.

Originally it had been proposed that the trade be completed in September, but the bank is still seeking approval of building plans which would extend out into Davis Street. The village considers approval to be one term of the contract.

The public relations committee's report was put on file, and action deferred until the street trade is straightened out.

Big Cast Rehearses 'Once in a Lifetime'

Hollywood in the early days of the "talkies" is the target of satire in "Once in a Lifetime," a three-act comedy announced by Arlington High for the Little Theatre Thursday, Nov. 21, at 7:30 p.m. and Friday and Saturday, Nov. 22, 23 at 8 p.m.

"Once in a Lifetime" was the first effort by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, later to co-author "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "George Washington Slept Here," and "You Can't Take It with You." The comedy was the first Broadway play by Moss Hart, who was destined to relate his beginnings in show business in his autobiography "Act One."

"The story of a man who makes a Hollywood movie, then finds he has made the wrong one," is a description offered by director Douglas K. Murphy. "Every bellboy, secretary, electrician, and headwaiter is trying to break in during the frantic period of Hollywood's search for what to do with sound movies."

Complementing the absurdity of the situations will be the fanciful, non-realistic scenery and properties designed by technical director Gayle Beckway and art instructor James Walker.

"Some desks learn forward for the audience's easy viewing of the top surface, sequins line benches in an attempt to be 'Hollywood-fabulous,' and the doors to the studio reception room are close cousins of Grauman's Chinese Theatre," explained Miss Beckway.

FOLLOWING the authors' suggestion that a secretary wear a black evening dress to work, student Anna Pietrolonardo has designed the costumes in keeping with the spirit of the play and the 1929 setting. Anna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pietrolonardo, 1600 Rand Road.

Tradition - breaking music "from the pit" will be rendered by James Kilbury, son of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Kilbury, 1011 N. Illinois, Arlington Heights. Musical accompaniment in front of the stage is not usual for non-musicals. Joining in the musical commentary will be Claude LaRose, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude H. LaRose, 61 E. Grove, Arlington Heights.

Heading the cast is sophomore Douglas McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. McDonald, 215 W. Orchard, Arlington Heights. He plays George Lewis, an usher turned vaudevillian who miraculously becomes supervisor of production in a Hollywood studio.

SENIORS sharing billing with Doug are Georganne Sedor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sedor, 909 N. Walnut; and Brian Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Reynolds, 525 S. State. They play May Morton and Jerry Hyland, who leave their vaudeville act to seek the gold of Hollywood.

Janet Sauer, daughter of William E. Sauer, 1215 Watling Road, Arlington Heights, portrays the receptionist who wears formals to the studio office. Senior Mary Anne Glover is Hollywood columnist Helen Hobart. Mary Anne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elton R. Glover, 713 N Hickory, Arlington Heights.

As Susan Walker, the incredible small city girl who wants to be a star, is Carol Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walsh, 726 S. Evergreen, Arlington Heights. Her stage mother is Rebecca Moulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Moulton, 729 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

PORTRAYING Lawrence Vail, a frustrated author who leaves Hollywood, is Michael Vitoux, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Vitoux, 610 S. Evergreen, Arlington Heights. Michael plays the part originated on Broadway by co-author George S. Kaufman.

An optimistic porter on a train to and from Hollywood is played by senior Tom Combs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Barringhaus, Rte. 3, Wilke Road, Palatine. Spike Jackson, an actor playing a bishop in a movie, is senior Tony Waser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton L. Waser, 637 S. Mitchell, Arlington Heights.

An electrician who likes to write songs for motion pictures is senior Jim Ewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Ewart, 349 S. Bristol, Arlington Heights.

Three seniors are appearing in two or more roles in "Once in a Lifetime." Bob Schuler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Schuler, 47 N. Wolf Road, Wheeling, appears as a headwaiter, an electrician, and a portrait painter. Appearing as a chauffeur, a studio sign painter, and a reporter is Jim Swanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Swanson, 316 S. Yale, Arlington Heights. A policeman who wants to sing in movies and a scenario writer are the two roles of Raymond Schmeiser, 216 N. Derbyshire Lane, Arlington Heights.

Studio head Herman Glogauer, a man who wants to live down his rejection of the vitaphone, is junior Donald D. DePollo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. DePollo, 812 N. Fernandez, Arlington Heights. A director imported from Germany is Eugene Good, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Good, 1236 N. Walnut, Arlington Heights.

ACTRESSES who must learn to speak or lose the name they had in the "silents" are Anna Pietrolonardo and Lynne Broderick, both juniors. Lynne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Raymond Broderick, 610 S. Belmont, Arlington Heights.

Serving as assistant to the director and playing a studio executive is junior Craig Jacobs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Jacobs, 981 N. Patton, Arlington Heights. A policeman, a studio executive, and a studio technician are played by sophomore Tom Jacobs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray S. Jacobs, 636 S. Pine, Arlington Heights.

As their secretary who would like to be a star is Linda Hosek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Hosek, 804 W. Elm, Arlington Heights.

Ever-present studio pages are played by Larry LaRose, freshman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude H. LaRose, 611 East Grove, Arlington Heights; and Greg Alexander, sophomore, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Alexander, 37 Park Place, Arlington Heights.

Dryden, Arlington Heights; Steve Ewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Ewart, 349 S. Bristol, Arlington Heights; Paul Cryer, junior, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Cryer, Jr., 1007 N. Kennicott, Arlington Heights; Tom Hemnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Hemnes, 511 N. Derbyshire Lane, Arlington Heights.

Your TV set has 1,500 to 2,000 working parts that are dependent on each other for the most efficient results. Experience has shown that when any unit breaks down, you would be wise to inspect the entire set and make repairs of impending breakdowns. If you don't, it will probably be just a short time later when you will be forced to anyway.

Doing it all at one time reduces your overall total expense and gives you better viewing results. Actually, it will prolong the life of longer working parts because there is no added strain.

We've proven this to our customers at LANDWEHR TV, 218 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights, and they have been very satisfied. Snow Warning Rouses Villagers to Storm Window Chore

At this writing snow was being predicted and lots of Arlington Heighters were glad they'd done some weekend traveling while the fair weather held. Lots of others were vowing never again to get caught with their storm windows down, while they raced to get the blinkety-blank things up before the prediction came true. It was breezy out there, Monday, wasn't it?

Among local Dads who took the road to Champaign over the weekend was Frank Sesterhenn, 316 W. Hawthorne, guest of his son, Terry, during Dad's Day activities on the campus. What sleeping there was took place in Evans Scholar House, home away from home for Terry who is at the university on an Evans scholarship.

Everything for the gala weekend was planned to give Dad the greatest possible pleasure, and everything but the football game went as per plan. Michigan's 14-8 win over the Illini knocked the home team out of a first place tie in the Big Ten race, but the weekend was still one to remember.

The Sesterhenns returned Friday from a leisurely train trip to Denver and Colorado Springs. Considering the excitement and tension of Saturday's game in Champaign, it's a good thing for Dad that there were six easy-going days up to that point.

KEN MOLKUP, 1025 S. Vail, was another local Dad who enjoyed the red carpet treatment on the University of Illinois campus over the weekend. Ken Jr. hosted his Dad to a Friday "night out" event, to the football heart - breaker Saturday afternoon and to a musical revue Saturday night. When there was time, father and son bedded down in the Theta Xi fraternity house, Ken Jr.'s regular roosting place.

William Trude, 801 S. Dunton, joined other fathers of Delta Gammas in assuming weekend tenancy in the sorority house during University of Illinois Dad's Days. Trude squired his daughter, Joan, to all the campus events planned in honor of fathers, grieved with her over Saturday's gridiron loss, and came home Sunday well-honored, indeed.

The previous weekend Mrs. Trude and Bill were with Dad for a Saturday trek to Champaign, and the whole family rooted Illinois to victory over Purdue.

PARENTS DAY festivities on the campus of Carleton College took the Norbert Hrubys to Northfield, Minn. for the weather-beautiful, gridiron - victorious weekend. It was a long way to go but their sophomore son, Michael, won't be home for Thanksgiving and it's also a long way to go until Christmas. Besides, Carleton clobbered Monmouth, 46-0, the drive to Minnesota was pretty and the weekend was altogether wonderful.

In Madison it was the University of Wisconsin Homecoming whoop-la that attracted local Badger rooters and parents of collegians, among them, Dr. and Mrs. H. Paul Carstens, the John Watsons and the Fulton Smiths. The Carstens' daughter, Nancy, is a sophomore in the university, and she joined her parents and the others in cheering Wisconsin to a 17-14 nerve-wracking victory over Northwestern.

Recent out-of-town visitors in the Carl Bomanz home, 709 S. Mitchell, were Mrs. Bomanz' uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. David J. Markel of Altoona, Pa. The Markels spent a long weekend here, then flew to Albuquerque for a vacation and stopped back here again for part two of their visit with the Bomanzes.

THE JOHN Sheehan family, 601 S. Mitchell, welcomed weekend visitors, Mrs. Sheehan's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Peoples and children of Cleveland Heights, Ohio.

Jan Ball was 4 years old last Thursday, and 14 neighborhood friends celebrated the big event with her at a morning party in her home, 1207 N. Walnut. Noontime refreshments climaxed the festivities in time for the youngest guests to get to their customary afternoon beauty rest.

Q. Is it obligatory that refreshments of some kind be served after a wedding rehearsal?

A. While not exactly obligatory, this is customary. The refreshments are usually served after the rehearsal at the home of the bride —or the bridegroom invites the little party of attendants to some eating place.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

Snow Warning Rouses Villagers to Storm Window Chore

Sidelights

Of Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights, Scarsdale & Estates, Stonegate

Dorothy Meyer, CL 3-2298 Elsie Jedd, CL 3-5982

At this writing snow was being predicted and lots of Arlington Heighters were glad they'd done some weekend traveling while the fair weather held. Lots of others were vowing never again to get caught with their storm windows down, while they raced to get the blinkety-blank things up before the prediction came true. It was breezy out there, Monday, wasn't it?

Among local Dads who took the road to Champaign over the weekend was Frank Sesterhenn, 316 W. Hawthorne, guest of his son, Terry, during Dad's Day activities on the campus. What sleeping there was took place in Evans Scholar House, home away from home for Terry who is at the university on an Evans scholarship.

Everything for the gala weekend was planned to give Dad the greatest possible pleasure, and everything but the football game went as per plan. Michigan's 14-8 win over the Illini knocked the home team out of a first place tie in the Big Ten race, but the weekend was still one to remember.

The Sesterhenns returned Friday from a leisurely train trip to Denver and Colorado Springs. Considering the excitement and tension of Saturday's game in Champaign, it's a good thing for Dad that there were six easy-going days up to that point.

KEN MOLKUP, 1025 S. Vail, was another local Dad who enjoyed the red carpet treatment on the University of Illinois campus over the weekend. Ken Jr. hosted his Dad to a Friday "night out" event, to the football heart - breaker Saturday afternoon and to a musical revue Saturday night. When there was time, father and son bedded down in the Theta Xi fraternity house, Ken Jr.'s regular roosting place.

William Trude, 801 S. Dunton, joined other fathers of Delta Gammas in assuming weekend tenancy in the sorority house during University of Illinois Dad's Days. Trude squired his daughter, Joan, to all the campus events planned in honor of fathers, grieved with her over Saturday's gridiron loss, and came home Sunday well-honored, indeed.

The previous weekend Mrs. Trude and Bill were with Dad for a Saturday trek to Champaign, and the whole family rooted Illinois to victory over Purdue.

PARENTS DAY festivities on the campus of Carleton College took the Norbert Hrubys to Northfield, Minn. for the weather-beautiful, gridiron - victorious weekend. It was a long way to go but their sophomore son, Michael, won't be home for Thanksgiving and it's also a long way to go until Christmas. Besides, Carleton clobbered Monmouth, 46-0, the drive to Minnesota was pretty and the weekend was altogether wonderful.

In Madison it was the University of Wisconsin Homecoming whoop-la that attracted local Badger rooters and parents of collegians, among them, Dr. and Mrs. H. Paul Carstens, the John Watsons and the Fulton Smiths. The Carstens' daughter, Nancy, is a sophomore in the university, and she joined her parents and the others in cheering Wisconsin to a 17-14 nerve-wracking victory over Northwestern.

David Neas, son of the Edgar Neases of N. Brighton Place, had dinner at the pancake house for his 12th birthday celebration on Nov. 7. His best friend, Michael Harty, and his aunt, Evelyn Kraemer, were also dinner guests besides his parents and his brother and sister.

MR. NEAS was a Dad's weekend visitor at the University of Illinois last Saturday and Sunday. As a guest of his daugher, Caroline, he was privileged to sleep at the Delta Zeta sorority house, while the girls magnanimously slept on the floor. The Illini defeat to Michigan put a damper on everyone's high jinks as most of the students had their sights set on participating in the Rose Bowl game. (A

Pastor to Explain Work on Skid Row

The Rev. Charles E. Morey, executive director of the Chicago Christian Industrial League, will explain the league's work at a 12:30 p.m. meeting, Nov. 20, of the Women's Association, First Presbyterian Church, Arlington Heights.

REV. CHARLES MOREY

The league, located in the heart of Chicago's skid row, is one of the largest inner city missions in America, filling an average of 330 beds every night and providing 200,000 free meals annually.

Three worship services are held daily, and the league also maintains an intensive rehabilitation home for men with an adequate learning capacity.

AT THE rehabilitation center a man can receive psychiatric, medical and dental care as well as spiritual help, according to Rev. Morey, an active participant in mission work since 1950.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m. by Circle 8 under direction of Mrs. George Arndt, 634 S. Evergreen St., house and hostess chairman.

A hymn sing led by Mrs. John McComb, 710 S. Dryden Ave., will open the afternoon's program. Mrs. M. E. Baughman, 517 Banbury, will lead the devotional service.

Those planning to attend the meeting are asked to bring toilet articles such as soap, wash cloths, towels and razors, and bedding such as pillow cases and sheets — old or new — for use at the league. (A

Modern Etiquette

Q. Is it obligatory that refreshments of some kind be served after a wedding rehearsal?

A. While not exactly obligatory, this is customary. The refreshments are usually served after the rehearsal at the home of the bride —or the bridegroom invites the little party of attendants to some eating place.

Now–buy a new electric dryer and save up to $60

In the next 60 days over 25,000 Chicagoland people will buy dryers—most will be flameless electric. Read why you should buy electric. Right now—and for a limited time only—Commonwealth Edison and Public Service Company, in cooperation with your dealer, offers you a chance to save as much as $60 on any new flameless electric dryer. (A cash bonus of $20 from Commonwealth Edison, plus up to $40 that you normally save when you buy an electric dryer instead of gas.) For the average family, this equals about 3 years of free drying!

And electricity is simplicity. Because there are few moving parts, electric dryers cost less to maintain. And with no pilot light, your dryer costs nothing when not in use. Clothes dried electrically also come out fresher and cleaner because there are no fumes, flames or products of combustion to mix with them. What's more, nothing dries clothes faster than today's electric dryers. (Only 26 to 30 minutes for a full load.)

See your dealer now for details. Satisfaction on any flameless electric dryer is guaranteed, of course.

Free Diabetes Test Kits To Be Given During Week

FREE DIABETES TEST KITS will be distributed during Diabetes Week, Nov. 17-23, from a special booth located in the mall at Randhurst Center, Mount Prospect. The diabetes detection effort is a joint public service venture of Sun Drugs and the local Mothers of Diabetic Children organization. Preparing kits for distribution are Gerald Franklin, Sun Drugs manager; Mrs. F. Vernon Schlexer, Arlington Heights; Mrs. James C. Payne, Elk Grove Village; and Mrs. Gordon E. Berlin, Arlington Heights. The women are officers in the northwest suburban mothers group. (Staff photo) (B8

A concerted Detection Drive is planned in northwest suburbs Nov. 17-23.

Free diabetes test kits will be distributed during the week by the Mothers of Diabetic Children at a special booth in the mall of Randhurst Center, Mount Prospect.

Manned by mothers who are members of the service unit of the Diabetes Association of Greater Chicago, the booth will be open every day during the week from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. The booth and test program are being provided through the cooperation of Sun Drugs at Randhurst.

DIABETES TESTS will also be provided during the week at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

"The purpose of Diabetes Week is self evident: to inform people about diabetes and urge them to accept this offer to be tested," explained Mrs. James E. Payne of Elk Grove Village, president of the local mothers' unit. "Our goal is to find as many as possible of the hundreds of undetected diabetic men, women and children, and at the same time to educate the public on the signs and the importance of early detection and control of the condition."

Diabetes ranks seventh in the list of causes of death by disease and is a chronic condition which develops when the body cannot use some of the food one eats, especially sugars and starches. It can be fatal unless properly treated.

An estimated 1 in every 60 is diabetic; there are approximately 3 million diabetics in the U.S. today, and roughly 1.4 million are unaware of their condition.

APPROXIMATELY 5,250,000 other persons living today are potential diabetics, which means that they will develop the disease sometime during their lives. About 75,000 persons are known to become diabetic each year.

Diabetes is hereditary. Forty-five million people are believed to be diabetic "carriers"—persons who are free of the condition themselves, but who transmit the tendency to it to their offspring.

The usual signs of diabetes are increase in thirst, constant hunger, frequent urination, loss of weight, intense itching, easy tiring, pain in fingers and toes, changes in vision, and slow healing of cuts and bruises. However, diabetes may be present without any signs at all.

THE MOST likely targets are persons who are related to diabetics, are overweight, or are past 40 years of age. After age 45, three diabetics out of five are women.

Weight control is important in the prevention of diabetes. Six out of seven diabetics over 40 were overweight before the onset of their disease.

Diabetes can strike at any time. Cases are known of the disorder in a 9-day-old boy and in a 99-year-old woman.

Diabetes can be controlled by diet, exercise, and, when necessary, by insulin or, in older and milder diabetics, one of the oral tablets. However, a planned diet is always a basic fundamental of diabetes treatment.

A PANEL of four dietitians will present a demonstration program, "Planning Menus for Children," on Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Lutheran General Hospital, 1775 W. Dempster St., Park Ridge.

Hospital staff dietitians included on the program are Margaret Johnson, Marian Raidl, Mrs. Edwin Feldman, and Edith Graham. There will be exhibits of foods and free literature.

This meeting is open to the public for parents of diabetic children and all interested in diabetics, according to Mrs. Payne.

All interested Republicans are invited to attend and to remain after the meeting for refreshments and conversation.

Used Car Agency

Palatine trustees verbally patted themselves on the back Monday for annexing Chev Villa, a used car agency on Northwest Highway west of Wilke Road.

The agency could be involuntarily annexed since it was surrounded by Palatine and Arlington Heights and was less than 60 acres.

The village is gaining about $1,000 worth of sales tax a year, estimated the village manager.

THE ANNEXATION was filed with the assessor and the highway department Tuesday morning.

Village President Wilbur Harris declared the annexation was "good snooping on the part of the manager." Robert Hollander, village manager, had checked to see if the land was in the county or already annexed to Arlington Heights.

SOUTH MOUNT PROSPECT

Cadette Troop 212 planted tulip bulbs at Lions Park School last month in appreciation for the use of a meeting room during the past year. The Scouts are working on the My Government Badge in preparation for a trip to Springfield next Spring. The Cadettes recently held a combined meeting with Senior Troop 499 and learned many new songs.

As a service project, Junior Troop 703 last month made "cats" of washcloths and soap for elderly women patients in local hospitals. Supplies were furnished by Mrs. Arthur Klaus. During a recent outing at Deer Grove the girls made plaster casts of animal tracks in the woods. In connection with their Backyard Fun Badge, the troop fashioned tin cans into stoves.

Eleven new Scouts were invested in Brownie Troop 56 at ceremonies held last Friday. Eight members received their first year membership stars.

A color guard from Junior Troop 744 presented Brownie Troop 53 with a Brownie troop flag. Junior Troop 219 traveled to Lords Park in Elgin last month for its first cookout, and Troop 743 spent last Friday at Camp Pine working on badges. Brownie Troop 123 spent a recent day at the Nature Center.

NORTH PALATINE

Junior Girl Scouts of North Palatine joined together for a 24-hour camping experience at Camp Pine during the fine October weather. Too many in number to use the camp at one time, the neighborhood divided in two groups, filling the cabins for the nights of Oct. 10 and 22. In addition to learning the skills of outdoor cooking, the Scouts hiked in the woods, some to the nearby Nature Center, completed badge requirements, and enjoyed the fun and inspiration of a group campfire.

Mothers and prospective Brownies of Troop 144 gathered for a picturesque outdoor investiture Oct. 23 at the home of Mrs. James Stallwood. Troop leaders Mrs. Charles Harris and Mrs. Stallwood, assisted by Brownie Cheryl Craig, welcomed 12 girls into the troop.

The new Brownies are: Kathy Baker, Beth Ann Bals, Lori Beane, Janice Berlin, Stacia Dimit, Anita Fogarett, Nancy Harris, Ellen Lerner, Pam Mayers, Nina Tyksinski, Julie Sharda and Lisa Stallwood.

Cadette Troops 347 and 700 will sing at the Northwest Cook Council meeting Nov. 14 at Rand Park Field House, Des Plaines. The girls are learning a new song brought back from the Miami convention by Mrs. V. Gowen.

Members of Junior Troop 860 attended a Halloween party Oct. 30 at the home of leader Mrs. Richard Dick. The girls came in costumes for an evening of games and fun. Co-leaders are Mrs. H. Prueter, Mrs. D. Johnson and Mrs. J. Babb.

Nov. 2 all girls of Troop 860 helped out at the Clearmont School PTA carnival by supervising games, working in the lunchroom, and selling cakes and balloons.

HOFFMAN ESTATES

Two new Brownie troops at Fairview School recently invested 48 girls. The Thursday Troop, under the leadership of Mrs. R. Semmens, Mrs. S. Marquart and Mrs. H. Donovan, invited mothers to their program, as did the troop led by Mrs. J. Clouser, Mrs. W. Haag and Mrs. G. Hoffman. Next week the troops will combine for an International Day, featuring a display, songs and awarding of World pins.

A recent activity enjoyed by Cadettes of Troop 662 was a Halloween party at the home of Pam Klopf. They are looking forward to a splash party early in December.

Seniors of Troop 561, under the leadership of Mrs. Ben Brading, have been busy with plans for the council-wide Senior Scout "Hootenanny" to be held this month at Rand Park Field House. Last Sunday evening they sponsored a square dance at the Weathersfield Community Center.

Individual girls are working on Aide Bars in public relations, library, and child care. Diana Dumler is currently working two afternoons after school as a teacher's aide. Troop 561 will bid farewell this month to Mrs. Brading when she moves to a new home in Indiana.

NORTHEAST ARLINGTON

Junior Troop 41 recently held a candlelight ceremony for Linda Perry, who received her fly-up wings, and a rededication ceremony for Kathy Birong. All badges earned during the summer were awarded, and each girl in the troop received a World Association Pin. Patrol 5, working on Cook Badge, furnished a cake. Guests were Mrs. Thomas Birong and Mrs. Neil Perry.

Oct. 30 the girls participated in a wide game that led from St. James School to the home of its leader, Mrs. Al Kargol. Cadettes from Troop 474 who assisted were Peggy Gorman, Karen Kieca, Mary Pat Murphy and Mary Ann O'Brien.

Hot chocolate and hot dogs were enjoyed after more games were played and the evening was then spent singing songs.

Nov. 1 the girls worked on the Cyclist Badge. Leader Mrs. Al Kargol and mothers, Mrs. Thomas Birong, Mrs. John Breister and Mrs. John Walsh, as well as Senior Scouts Sue Kreusch and Kathy McMullen, accompanied the girls. Everyone cycled to Pioneer Park. The girls brought nosebag lunches and co-leader, Mrs. Lawrence Brown, arrived with hot chocolate for the Scouts and Mrs. Lowell Plant brought coffee for the adults.

The Seniors taught the Juniors the game "Pass the Person" and co-leader Mrs. Ben Zaborowski recorded the day with pictures.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE

Elk Grove Village Cadette Girl Scouts of Troop 129 will give a demonstration on setting up tents and other camping materials, at various sites in the village parks Nov. 16. All Girl Scouts of Elk Grove are beginning a concerted effort to obtain trading stamps in order to secure large tents and other camping materials which may be used by all of the Girl Scouts on overnight camping trips.

Girl Scouts attending the demonstrations will be given an empty stamp book and urged to try and fill the book in time for the culmination date of the drive, May 15, 1964. An award is to be given the troop securing the largest number of books.

Times for the demonstrations and their locations are as follows: Clearmont Park, 12:30 p.m.; Ridge Park, 2 p.m.; and Rupley Park, 3:30 p.m.

SOUTH MOUNT PROSPECT

Cadette Troop 212 planted tulip bulbs at Lions Park School last month in appreciation for the use of a meeting room during the past year. The Scouts are working on the My Government Badge in preparation for a trip to Springfield next Spring. The Cadettes recently held a combined meeting with Senior Troop 499 and learned many new songs.

As a service project, Junior Troop 703 last month made "cats" of washcloths and soap for elderly women patients in local hospitals. Supplies were furnished by Mrs. Arthur Klaus. During a recent outing at Deer Grove the girls made plaster casts of animal tracks in the woods. In connection with their Backyard Fun Badge, the troop fashioned tin cans into stoves.

Eleven new Scouts were invested in Brownie Troop 56 at ceremonies held last Friday. Eight members received their first year membership stars.

A color guard from Junior Troop 744 presented Brownie Troop 53 with a Brownie troop flag. Junior Troop 219 traveled to Lords Park in Elgin last month for its first cookout, and Troop 743 spent last Friday at Camp Pine working on badges. Brownie Troop 123 spent a recent day at the Nature Center.

NORTH PALATINE

Junior Girl Scouts of North Palatine joined together for a 24-hour camping experience at Camp Pine during the fine October weather. Too many in number to use the camp at one time, the neighborhood divided in two groups, filling the cabins for the nights of Oct. 10 and 22. In addition to learning the skills of outdoor cooking, the Scouts hiked in the woods, some to the nearby Nature Center, completed badge requirements, and enjoyed the fun and inspiration of a group campfire.

Mothers and prospective Brownies of Troop 144 gathered for a picturesque outdoor investiture Oct. 23 at the home of Mrs. James Stallwood. Troop leaders Mrs. Charles Harris and Mrs. Stallwood, assisted by Brownie Cheryl Craig, welcomed 12 girls into the troop.

The new Brownies are: Kathy Baker, Beth Ann Bals, Lori Beane, Janice Berlin, Stacia Dimit, Anita Fogarett, Nancy Harris, Ellen Lerner, Pam Mayers, Nina Tyksinski, Julie Sharda and Lisa Stallwood.

Cadette Troops 347 and 700 will sing at the Northwest Cook Council meeting Nov. 14 at Rand Park Field House, Des Plaines. The girls are learning a new song brought back from the Miami convention by Mrs. V. Gowen.

Members of Junior Troop 860 attended a Halloween party Oct. 30 at the home of leader Mrs. Richard Dick. The girls came in costumes for an evening of games and fun. Co-leaders are Mrs. H. Prueter, Mrs. D. Johnson and Mrs. J. Babb.

Nov. 2 all girls of Troop 860 helped out at the Clearmont School PTA carnival by supervising games, working in the lunchroom, and selling cakes and balloons.

HOFFMAN ESTATES

Two new Brownie troops at Fairview School recently invested 48 girls. The Thursday Troop, under the leadership of Mrs. R. Semmens, Mrs. S. Marquart and Mrs. H. Donovan, invited mothers to their program, as did the troop led by Mrs. J. Clouser, Mrs. W. Haag and Mrs. G. Hoffman. Next week the troops will combine for an International Day, featuring a display, songs and awarding of World pins.

A recent activity enjoyed by Cadettes of Troop 662 was a Halloween party at the home of Pam Klopf. They are looking forward to a splash party early in December.

Seniors of Troop 561, under the leadership of Mrs. Ben Brading, have been busy with plans for the council-wide Senior Scout "Hootenanny" to be held this month at Rand Park Field House. Last Sunday evening they sponsored a square dance at the Weathersfield Community Center.

Individual girls are working on Aide Bars in public relations, library, and child care. Diana Dumler is currently working two afternoons after school as a teacher's aide. Troop 561 will bid farewell this month to Mrs. Brading when she moves to a new home in Indiana.

NORTHEAST ARLINGTON

Junior Troop 41 recently held a candlelight ceremony for Linda Perry, who received her fly-up wings, and a rededication ceremony for Kathy Birong. All badges earned during the summer were awarded, and each girl in the troop received a World Association Pin. Patrol 5, working on Cook Badge, furnished a cake. Guests were Mrs. Thomas Birong and Mrs. Neil Perry.

Oct. 30 the girls participated in a wide game that led from St. James School to the home of its leader, Mrs. Al Kargol. Cadettes from Troop 474 who assisted were Peggy Gorman, Karen Kieca, Mary Pat Murphy and Mary Ann O'Brien.

Hot chocolate and hot dogs were enjoyed after more games were played and the evening was then spent singing songs.

Nov. 1 the girls worked on the Cyclist Badge. Leader Mrs. Al Kargol and mothers, Mrs. Thomas Birong, Mrs. John Breister and Mrs. John Walsh, as well as Senior Scouts Sue Kreusch and Kathy McMullen, accompanied the girls. Everyone cycled to Pioneer Park. The girls brought nosebag lunches and co-leader, Mrs. Lawrence Brown, arrived with hot chocolate for the Scouts and Mrs. Lowell Plant brought coffee for the adults.

The Seniors taught the Juniors the game "Pass the Person" and co-leader Mrs. Ben Zaborowski recorded the day with pictures.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE

Elk Grove Village Cadette Girl Scouts of Troop 129 will give a demonstration on setting up tents and other camping materials, at various sites in the village parks Nov. 16. All Girl Scouts of Elk Grove are beginning a concerted effort to obtain trading stamps in order to secure large tents and other camping materials which may be used by all of the Girl Scouts on overnight camping trips.

Girl Scouts attending the demonstrations will be given an empty stamp book and urged to try and fill the book in time for the culmination date of the drive, May 15, 1964. An award is to be given the troop securing the largest number of books.

Times for the demonstrations and their locations are as follows: Clearmont Park, 12:30 p.m.; Ridge Park, 2 p.m.; and Rupley Park, 3:30 p.m.

U. S. Lags Soviets in Education: Expert

Brainpower Race Vital to Nation

Charging that Americans are falling behind the Soviet Union in the education race, a nationally-known educator called on representatives of teachers and administrators in northwest Cook County schools to join in telling the American public of the threat.

Martin Essex, Akron school superintendent, former head of the American Association of School Administrators, and White House educational advisor, told 250 teachers last week that the United States is pricing itself out of brainpower. The teachers were attending the annual Illinois Education Association meeting for educators in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg Townships.

Essex cited a United Nations survey which showed the Soviets were spending $113 per capita on education, while Americans only spend $92 per capita.

Far worse, according to Essex, were England and France. These countries are "over the hill" in the education race, Essex said, and cannot be counted on as future allies. Britain sends only four per cent of youngsters on to higher education, while the Soviets send 25 per cent of their students on to college-level studies, he stated. Britain spends only $39 per capita for education according to the survey. Other West European countries spend less than $50 per capita, with the exception of West Germany.

AMERICA SHOULD look to West Germany and Japan as future allies where great emphasis is placed on education, Essex stressed. The result of the education emphasis shows in the development and growth of the gross national product of each of these countries, Essex said.

This controverts the old maxim that the natural resources of a nation are the basis for its prosperity. Japan, which is composed of islands covering less territory than California and devoid of natural resources, is leading the world in ship building and has surpassed Great Britain in steel production. Essex pointed out that the basis for the economic growth of Japan was not an accident but was predicted on the education of the people. He noted that Japan has the highest literacy rate in the world — a population 99 per cent literate.

Comparing Soviet schools with American education, Essex cited several areas where American education could be improved. One of these was a "manageable load" for individual teachers. In Russia a teacher of grades 5 to 11 teaches only three 45-minute periods a day, six days a week. Elementary teachers have four 35-minute periods a day. This means, Essex said, that teachers can assign written work every day and return it marked the next day. "Wouldn't it be wonderful if American teachers could do this?" Essex asked.

TEACHERS HAVE no extra-curricular activities. Trained specialists from planetariums, painting and art centers, ballet schools, and similar places are in charge of all extra-curricular activities, Essex said.

Essex warned that there were "some things we do not want to imitate" in the Soviet education system which he said was based on "rote learning" and designed for a "uniform and conforming society." The Soviet educational system "is most effective for that kind of society and is not designed for a free-thinking society," he noted.

Essex pointed out that many American youngsters coming from deprived socio-economic backgrounds in the center of big cities do not have an equal educational opportunity in America because they are under handicaps in language and early learning before they start school.

THE "FINEST thing" in Soviet education is the kindergartens, Essex said. These level off possible areas of deprived experience before the child starts school, Essex noted.

"If kindergartens in America could be transferred to the departments of health we might be able to have similar programs here," Essex said. "Money cannot come to education because we have gotten into philosophical entanglements whether it be religion, segregation or local control. The effect has been to shut off the supply of funds needed for education," he continued. If kindergartens could be "slipped over into the areas of health" the financial problems might be solved, Essex stated.

Soviet kindergartens are four-year institutions starting at the age of three. They run from early morning to late afternoon. Half of the children stay from Monday morning to Saturday afternoon as boarders.

ESSEX SAID the kindergarten schools and dormitories are clean and light. Four meals a day are served. Emphasis is on vocabulary building, counting and number work, developing large and small muscles with exercises and rhythm and caring for and learning about small animals.

American children who come to school "almost without vocabulary or pronouncing words wrong" because of poor backgrounds "never have a chance to get started" and are future drop-outs.

The Soviet kindergartens continue through age six, with first grade starting at seven. Essex said this meant students were "ready to learn" and were able to profit from the education experience. American educators could learn the advantages of a later starting age from the Soviets, Essex said, but noted that schools have had a difficult time getting to the age of six in some places.

IN ADDITION, teaching is a sought-after profession in Russia, Essex noted. In America schools are faced with the pressing need to get more teachers, while the Soviets say they have three to five applicants for each opening in teacher-training schools, he said.

The need for federal funds to help education was pointed out by Essex through a story he told about an experience he had while visiting Russia. In asking a Soviet leader why the USSR put so much emphasis in providing resources for education when there were other pressing needs as well, Essex said the reply highlighted facts of American development forgotten by many in this country.

The Russian said, according to Essex, "You had a war 100 years ago and you found the northern part of your country was short of foodstuffs and mechanical resources. At that time six Americans were chained to the soil to meagerly feed one city dweller. Then you established your major land-grant agriculture and mechanical colleges. You started research in seed and breeding. You set up experimental farms to experiment with ideas. You appointed a well-trained man in every county to teach farmers to farm better. In secondary schools you set up vocational agriculture programs in how to farm, and set up programs to teach girls how to preserve food. Today you have nine people in your cities being overfed by one man on a farm.

"This made possible your great industrial empire and made you the most powerful nation in the world," the Russian concluded.

ESSEX SAID this illustrated the power of education. All of the programs cited in the story were federally-financed.

Essex called on the teachers to tell their "fellow Americans of the great boon education has been to our country" and to "do it with enthusiasm." (A-14

Letter Reaches 5220837 at 79916

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Rufus K. Barton Jr., won a point in his contention that the "great federal numbers game is swiftly and surely reducing American individuals to Arabic numerals."

He addressed a letter to his Army Lieutenant son, Rufus K. Barton III, as follows:

O—5220837 (The Army serial number)

10423 — ADS (Air Defense school)

79916 (zip code for Fort Bliss, Tex.)

It arrived at its destination less than a week later and would have gotten there sooner except someone apparently was lazy in looking up what 79916 meant and the letter was returned to St. Louis before being resent to Texas with "location Fort Bliss" written on the envelope. (A14

Q. Should a dinner hostess keep on eating as long as her guests do?

A. Yes. A thoughtful and tactful hostess will notice which guests are a little slow, and will so manage to pace her eating with her slowest guest.

Q. I thanked each guest personally for gifts received at a birthday party in my honor. Am I supposed also to write thank-you notes to each of these persons?

A. This is not necessary.

Charging that Americans are falling behind the Soviet Union in the education race, a nationally-known educator called on representatives of teachers and administrators in northwest Cook County schools to join in telling the American public of the threat.

Martin Essex, Akron school superintendent, former head of the American Association of School Administrators, and White House educational advisor, told 250 teachers last week that the United States is pricing itself out of brainpower. In secondary schools you set up vocational agriculture programs in how to farm, and set up programs to teach girls how to preserve food. Today you have nine people in your cities being overfed by one man on a farm.

"This made possible your great industrial empire and made you the most powerful nation in the world," the Russian concluded.

ESSEX SAID this illustrated the power of education. All of the programs cited in the story were federally-financed.

Essex called on the teachers to tell their "fellow Americans of the great boon education has been to our country" and to "do it with enthusiasm." (A-14

Letter Reaches 5220837 at 79916

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Rufus K. Barton Jr., won a point in his contention that the "great federal numbers game is swiftly and surely reducing American individuals to Arabic numerals."

He addressed a letter to his Army Lieutenant son, Rufus K. Barton III, as follows:

O—5220837 (The Army serial number)

10423 — ADS (Air Defense school)

79916 (zip code for Fort Bliss, Tex.)

It arrived at its destination less than a week later and would have gotten there sooner except someone apparently was lazy in looking up what 79916 meant and the letter was returned to St. Louis before being resent to Texas with "location Fort Bliss" written on the envelope. (A14

Q. Should a dinner hostess keep on eating as long as her guests do?

A. Yes. A thoughtful and tactful hostess will notice which guests are a little slow, and will so manage to pace her eating with her slowest guest.

Q. I thanked each guest personally for gifts received at a birthday party in my honor. Am I supposed also to write thank-you notes to each of these persons?

A. This is not necessary.

Conventions

Educators to Probe Adult School Needs

Heads of the adult education programs at Arlington, Maine and Niles High School Districts are traveling together to the eleventh annual conference of the National Association of Public School Adult Educators (NAPSAE) and the Adult Education Association of America (AEA) this week in Miami Beach.

One of the major problems to be tackled by both conventions which will run consecutively is the problem of 750,000 high school students and 250,000 grade school pupils who drop out of school each year.

BOTH CONVENTIONS will discuss such concerns as the 11 million adults in the United States who are illiterate, the more than 23 million Americans above 18 years of age who have never gone past the seventh grade, and the 57 per cent of Americans who have not completed high school, and the dropout problem.

The sessions will study how undereducated Americans can be taught to take their places in American society through the use of new teaching techniques.

NAPSAE is an autonomous department of the National Education Association. Its 6,000 members constitute the nation's only professional organization for teachers and administrators of adult education programs in public schools.

AEA is composed of educators not only from public schools, but from other educational groups such as the YMCA, welfare departments, park districts and similar organizations.

AMONG TOPICS listed for study and discussion are programmed textbooks in adult education and whether they could replace formal classes; educational TV, implications advances in electronics have for learning; what is being done to accommodate high school dropouts who return to adult classes; and methods, such as testing of aptitude and personality, used in counseling adults.

Training programs under the national Manpower Development and Training Act; Congressional action in regard to adult education; whether grown-ups should study certain courses for a stipulated period of time to earn a high school diploma; and adult education as it relates to the space age are other subjects slated for discussion.

W. L. RANDLE, supervisor of the adult evening school and summer school programs for High School District 214 (Arlington, Prospect and Forest View High Schools), will be attending the conventions for the first time since his appointment to head the adult programs this year.

The adult education program of District 214 includes 2,500 students, more than one-third of the daytime high school enrollment in the district.

Nies and Maine High School Districts have similar high enrollments in their adult education classes.

It is to continue for 15 weeks, excepting public school holidays. Teachers are Mrs. Don Lonn of Prospect Heights, and Mrs. Richard Bassi of Mount Prospect. Mothers will occasionally be asked to assist.

EDUCATIONAL materials will be the official weekday textbooks and handicraft of the Lutheran Church of America.

The class is open to the first 15 to register, and the fee is $3 per pupil. Registration forms may be obtained from Pastor Albert Weidlich, 824-7408.

The church is located at Euclid and Wolf Roads.

Schools Make Use of Social Workers

How Program Helps Pupils

by JIM CARNS
Staff Writer

(This is the first of two articles on school social workers and their place and purpose in northwest suburban schools.)

Is the social worker always to be considered in the context of slums and tenaments, broken families, the poor and the deprived?

The old image seems to have been well shattered by an ever-increasing number of social workers in public schools in the northwest suburbs.

There are no considerable slums in the area, yet workers in elementary schools have case loads ranging from 40 to 50 children at a time.

As the trend toward more and more special education services gathers momentum, the social worker (called a visiting teacher in some other states) is taking his place of importance.

A PROGRAM of social work, undertaken in most districts on on an individual basis, is subsidized by the state just as the majority of other special education services.

In a field with almost no objective criteria, the workers have, for the most part, gained acceptance by administrators, teachers, and parents alike.

They are not psychologists, psychiatrists, analysts, doctors—though many district have these too on a full-time or consulting basis. They are, perhaps, more ideally well-trained friends and confidants who know how to use a child's trust to his advantage.

THE IDEA of social workers in public schools, surprisingly, goes back to 1911. Legislation that year provided state reimbursement for the excess cost of special classes for pupils declared delinquent by the court.

Dissatisfaction with special rooms and schools for delinquents led to experiments with individualized programs in a few school districts. But it was not until 1945 that the program, as it now exists, began to take shape.

Individual work increased, and legislation broadened the law to provide help for children "designed to prevent their becoming truant, incorrigible, or delinquent."

GROWTH IN the program from 1911 through 1953 was slow and sporadic, but in the past 10 years the number of social workers in the state has more than doubled—from 121 to 252.

There are several hundred children in the workers' active files in this northwest suburban area, including more than 100 in Arlington Heights alone.

But these are not "bad" children, and Arlington Heights and other northwest suburban areas are not typically considered "problem" areas. One of the primary purposes of the program as outlined by the state division of special education is to catch social and emotional problems before they become dominant in the life of a child.

THE STATE aid plan is built around a $3,000 grant to individual districts for each accredited social worker hired. The funds are to be used to defray salary costs.

Within the district, the social worker is generally a traveler from school to school since the common ratio is one worker for each 1,500 or more students.

Cases are established on a referral basis, from the teacher to the school principal, and from the principal to the social worker. But parents play an important part in both referral and establishment of a worker-student relationship.

THE DIFFERENCE between districts in the worker's case load and purpose seems to be in the type of referral. Disciplinary problems tend to be the most frequent reasons for referral, but as the staff for social work is enlarged the depressed, afraid and withdrawn children come into the worker's schedule.

The reason is obvious and logical. Disciplinary problems will disrupt class and harm others' learning capacity. The withdrawn child is less of a problem in the class, but often his personal problem is more serious.

The difficulties facing social workers and administrators who have stepped into the program are many: understaffing, lack of qualified personnel to fill positions, poor teacher and parent acceptance, referred difficulty, professional conflict.

BUT THE workers are launching an attack at the core of a problem which, unchecked, can hamper learning power, disrupt classrooms and lead to teacher frustration and failure.

Arlington Heights elementary district 25, leader in the northwest area, has five full-time social workers serving a school population of about 7,000.

Other surrounding elementary districts are hiring workers almost as soon as they become available. At a state meeting for new school social workers last Saturday in Chicago, four communities in the area were represented.

WHEELING, Elk Grove, Wood Dale-Itasca, and Roselle districts have hired personnel new to the job this year, but this list only includes those who have never done school social work before.

Persons hired by the area school districts who have done this type of work in other districts were not included in the conference, sponsored by the Park Ridge field office for school social work.

This office is a part of the framework of the Division of Special Education under the office of the state superintendent of public instruction, Ray Page.

THOUGH THOSE at the meeting, excepting speakers and state administrators, were new this year to the school jobs, they were, as a group, greatly experienced in the general field of social work.

Conclusions drawn from speeches and discussion sessions served to re-enforce comments and opinions from school administrators and other social workers in this area. The field is challenging and frustrating, but necessary and rewarding as well.

(Next week, a look at the social worker's methods, his problems, and the attitude of northwest suburban school districts on the job, the department and the purpose.)

JOHN NEBO, state consultant for school social work, stresses the need for administrative and teacher acceptance.

HENRY KROGH, state consultant for school social work, listens to problems Dave Fankhauser has encountered in bringing social work to Elk Grove school district. Below, Krogh relates individual problem to entire group at state meeting for new school social workers. (A-14

Attorney General Begins Campaign to End Pollution

Atty. Gen. William G. Clark has launched a campaign to force an end to pollution of Illinois streams.

Clark laid before the Illinois Sanitary Water Board a new technique which he has developed to aid this campaign which, Clark said, will be statewide and prosecuted to the limit by all legal means.

This technique involves persons who promise the state water board that their polluting of Illinois streams will stop by a specified date. Under Clark's new plan, when they make such promises, they must also furnish bond that the pollution involved will end by that date. Failure to do this, Clark said, will result in forfeiture to the State of Illinois of their bond.

Clark's determination to end pollution was demonstrated at a recent session of the sanitary water board.

UPON HIS recommendation, the board approved a settlement of $22,687.60 made by the Peabody Coal Co. for pollution of the south fork of the Sangamon River near Kincaid. A contingency was added by the board that the company continue its present anti-pollution practices.

The action was coupled with a ruling adopted by the board that the City of Moline be given until July 1, 1965, to end pollution of the Mississippi River and until July 1, 1964, to produce evidence of the bond issue and the schedule of construction. The City of Moline proposes to build a water treatment plant to end this pollution.

The board also referred to Attorney General Clark, a case for possible injuction proceedings against the Marison Company of South Elgin to prevent further pollution of the waters of the Fox River.

"THE POLLUTION of Illinois streams has reached the point where drastic action must be considered to stop it," Clark said. "Day after day, reports of pollution by this or that corporation or city reach the Sanitary Water Board. When the purity of the very water people drink is threatened by contamination from waste dumped into Illinois' streams, when livestock is menaced, when extensive fish kills occur and when recreational facilities are damaged, it is time that all possible legal action be taken to end this. I pledge all-out legal action by my office to accomplish this end."

What's Behind the Reapportionment Issue?

No One Budges in Partisan Deadlock

by TOM EDWARDS
Staff Writer

Agreement between Republicans and Democrats on reapportionment of seats in the State House of Representatives seemed no closer this week than when negotations of the special legislative commission began about three months ago.

According to reports following the first public session of the Illinois Reapportionment Commission Nov. 7, Republicans are still insisting on substracting two districts from the City of Chicago and adding two in suburban Cook County—and the Democrats are refusing to consider this unless there is a compensatory realignment of the State Senate.

Should the commission fail to agree by Dec. 14, the 177 representatives would have to be elected from the state in an at-large election rather than from local districts.

Predictions are that a statewide election would be chaotic, requiring paper ballots as large as "bed sheets" and an almost impossible task of tabulating the votes. (Each voter could cast a total of 177 votes, all for one person or divided among any number from two to 177 candidates.)

HOWEVER, law makers don't seem particulary disturbed by the prospects of a statewide election. Special election rules would be made, they point out, and probably state party conventions would be allowed to nominate slates of candidates.

This would mean that voters would be essentially called upon to simply elect one party or the other rather than individuals from the two parties. This would be a contest which some party leaders might relish. Result would probably be large blocs of either Democratic or Republican legislators elected from various sectors of the state, with one party or the other standing to gain a substantial majority.

Under a 1954 amendment to the state constitution, districts must be reapportioned when they fall below a minimum population.

The minimum is the total state population given in the national census every 10 years divided by 59, the number of districts in the state.

According to the 1960 census, each district should have a minimum population of 136,694. Therefore, Chicago has two too many districts, the southern downstate area has two too many, and suburban Cook County has two too few.

Since the constitution also divides the state into these three main areas (downstate, Cook County suburbs and Chicago) for reapportionment purposes, overlapping districts would be unconstitutional, it is pointed out. Therefore any compromise of splitting a district between the suburbs and Chicago is automatically ruled out.

Both parties have evidently agreed to a division of DuPage County into two districts, but are still wrangling over proposals to divide Lake County into two districts.

If both Lake and DuPage Counties, presently consisting of one district each, are divided into two each, districts in the southern part of the state would be enlarged to eliminate two there.

AN ALTERNATIVE is to divide only DuPage County, eliminate only one district in the southern downstate area, and extend other southern districts northward. This proposal would affect districts throughout the state "in a sort of wave motion," it is reported.

Chicago presently has 23 districts, but only enough population for 21. The Cook County suburbs are now divided into seven districts, and have enough population for at least nine.

The Republicans are insisting that the Constituion demands that Chicago give up two districts and the suburbs be redivided into nine.

Position of the Democrats is that Chicago has 35 per cent of the state's population, and is entitled to a proportionate representation in the combined house and senate, United Press International reports.

Chicago's present 23 house districts combined with the 18 Chicago seats in the 58-seat State Senate gives the city 34 per cent of the districts in the legislature as a whole.

Republicans contend that the Senate membership is based on area and not population representation, and that the state Constitution makes no provisions for reapportioning the Senate districts. They contend the only responsibility of the commission is to reapportion the house districts.

So far the Democrats have refused to budge on reapportionment of Chicago, a Democratic stronghold.

However, there are some redistricting proposals for the Cook County suburbs which would give the Democrats more of a chance to elect house members from this traditionally Republican area, and which could break the deadlock.

PIVOTAL IS the 6th Representative District made up of the nine northwest suburban townships, Wheeling, Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington, Northfield, Maine and Niles.

The 6th District is now the largest in the state, with a population of about 400,000. Republicans favor combining Niles and Maine Townships into one new district. Democrats would prefer combining Niles and Evanston Townships into a new district, and Wheeling, Northfield and New Trier into another, which would mean splitting the 7th District, which now consists of New Trier and Evanston Townships.

In west suburban districts, two must be enlarged, and a new district should be formed in the southern suburbs.

In Lake County, the Republicans would like to divide the county in half with the boundary running east and west through North Chicago. The Democrats would like to combine Deerfield, Shields and Waukegan Townships into one district, which would include Waukegan and North Chicago.

Various compromises are being proposed for Lake County.

In DuPage County, the present plan would create one district out of the northern tier of townships, Wayne, Bloomingdale and Addison, and the eastern township of York. The five remaining townships would form the other district.

The three 6th District representatives, John Carroll, (R-Park Ridge), Bernard Peskin (D-Northbrook) and Arthur Simmons (R-Skokie), agreed that reapportionment is primarily a "political issue."

Carroll criticized Gov. Otto Kerner for vetoing the redistricting bill submitted to him by the state legislature.

Peskin said he is "quite sure" there will be a compromise which will give Chicago 22 districts, a reduction of only one rather than two. This could be done according to the Constitution, he said, as long as each district has at least the minimum population called for. (A maximum limit is not set.)

Another possible compromise suggested by Peskin was the creation of "swing districts," one in the north suburbs and one in the south suburbs. Beside combining Niles and Evanston into one such "swing district," he suggested putting Maine Township into a district with west suburban Leyden and Proviso Townships.

SIMMONS termed the stalemate a "sad situation." Even the Republican redistricting proposal "wouldn't be fair" to the suburbs, he said. "In the next 10 years the northwest suburbs will be much larger in population."

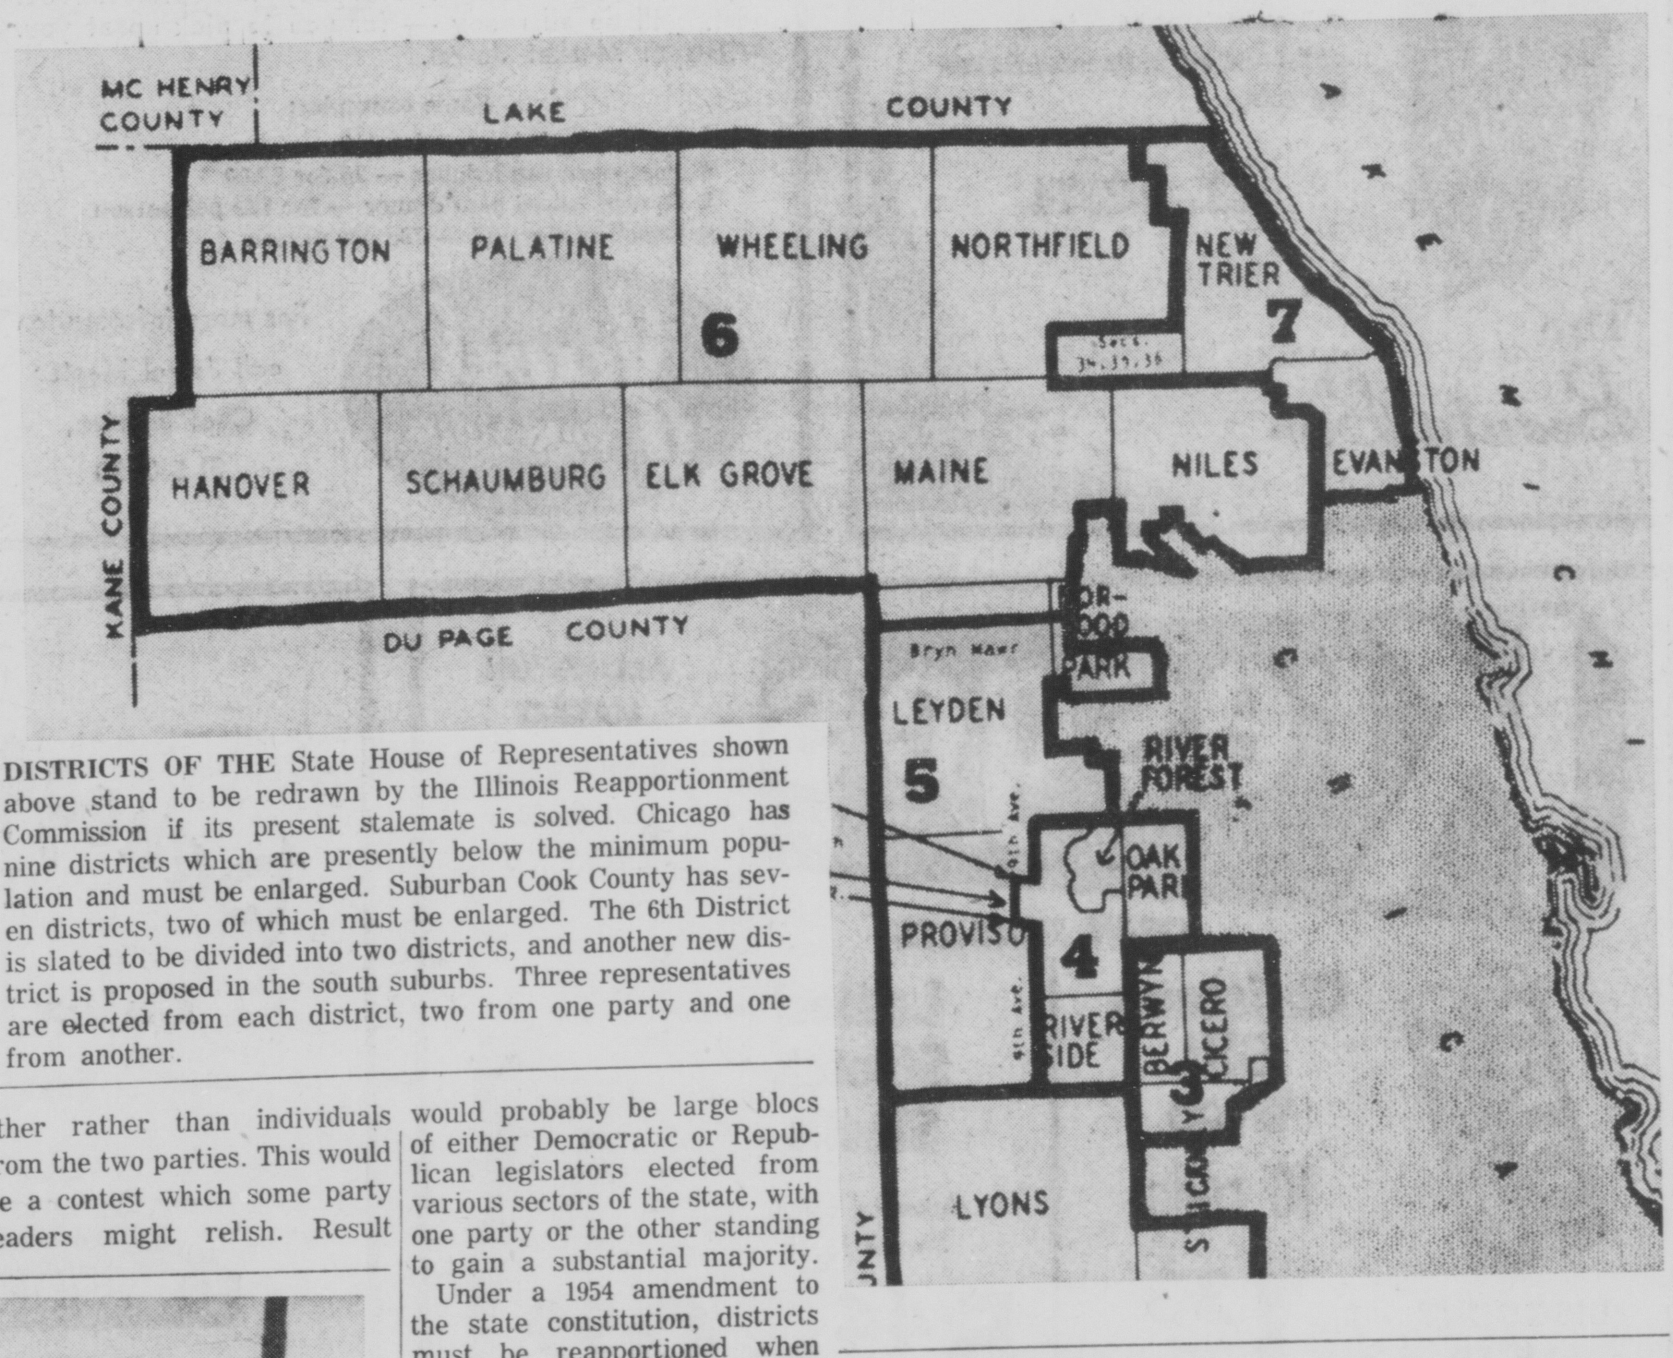
Ten years ago, Simmons said, the 6th District was the smallest in the state, and now it is the largest.

Chicago actually is entitled to a fraction less than 21 districts at present, he further noted. Simmons also commented that usually by this time he has had his campaign literature printed, but can't do so for this election until he knows what district he will be running from, or whether it will be an at-large campaign.

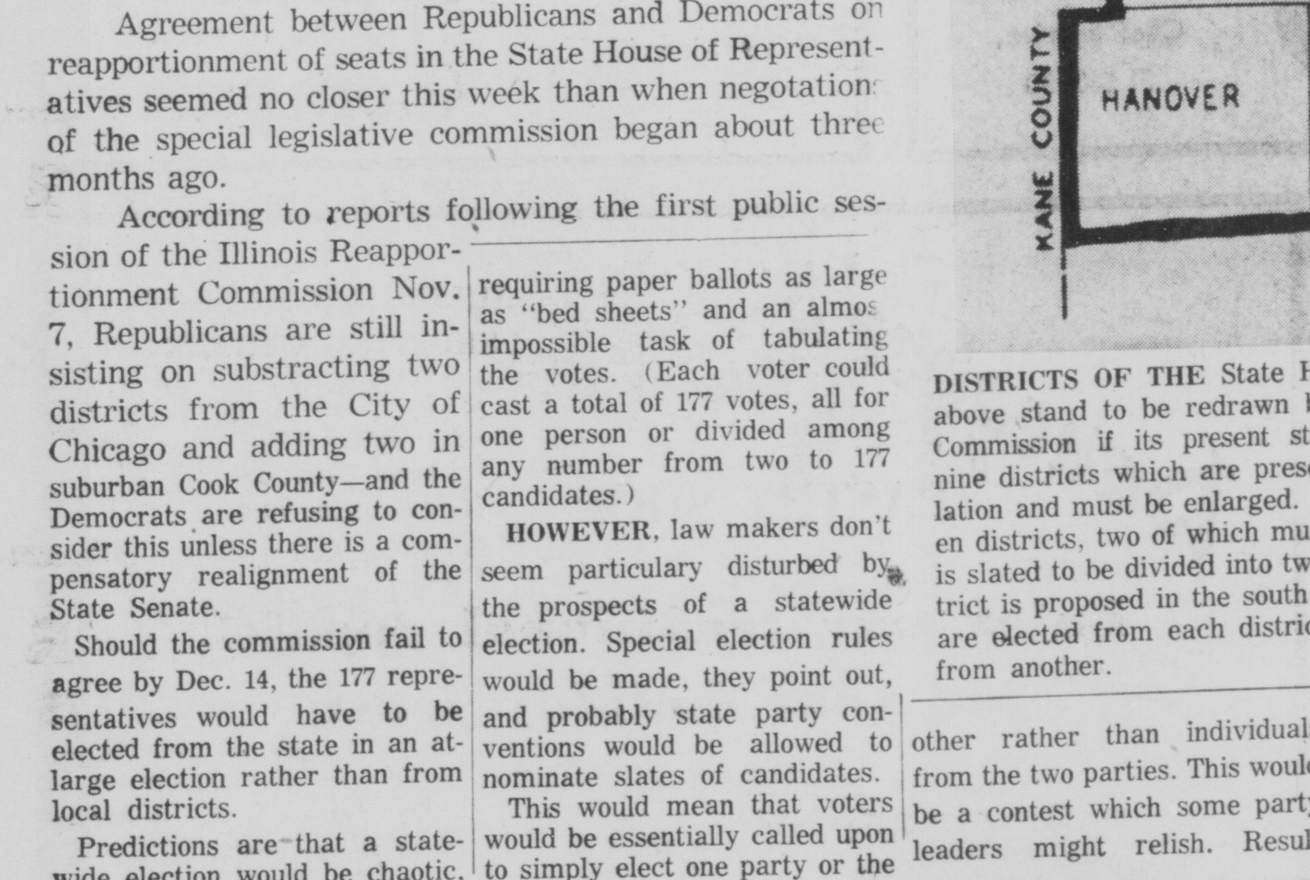
Both Carroll and Peskin indicated that they believe the reapportionment commission was within its rights to meet in closed door sessions over the last three months. (State law essentially forbids non-public meetings of governing bodies except for buying or selling property, or hiring or firing personnel.)

The reapportionment commission consists of five Democrats and five Republicans appointed by the governor.

The Republicans had set a deadline of Nov. 7 for agreement, but extended it to today, Nov. 14, when they say they will report to Kerner that the commission has failed to agree.



DISTRICTS OF THE State House of Representatives shown above stand to be redrawn by the Illinois Reapportionment Commission if its present stalemate is solved. Chicago has nine districts which are presently below the minimum population and must be enlarged. Suburban Cook County has seven districts, two of which must be enlarged. The 6th District is slated to be divided into two districts, and another new district is proposed in the south suburbs. Three representatives are elected from each district, two from one party and one from another.



THE TRUCK DRIVER received a ticket Tuesday for disobeying a railroad signal after this close brush with a Chicago and North Western train at Northwest Highway and Rohlwing Road. Carl J. Tassarelli, 25, of 2519 Stratford, Westchester, told state police he made a left turn onto Rohlwing Road from Northwest Highway and did not see the flashing signals. Damage to the truck and train was slight. Train conductor was Arthur Larson, 48, of 425 Vine St., Park Ridge. (Staff Photo)

The three 6th District representatives, John Carroll, (R-Park Ridge), Bernard Peskin (D-Northbrook) and Arthur Simmons (R-Skokie), agreed that reapportionment is primarily a "political issue."

Carroll criticized Gov. Otto Kerner for vetoing the redistricting bill submitted to him by the state legislature.

Peskin said he is "quite sure" there will be a compromise which will give Chicago 22 districts, a reduction of only one rather than two. This could be done according to the Constitution, he said, as long as each district has at least the minimum population called for. (A maximum limit is not set.)

Another possible compromise suggested by Peskin was the creation of "swing districts," one in the north suburbs and one in the south suburbs. Beside combining Niles and Evanston into one such "swing district," he suggested putting Maine Township into a district with west suburban Leyden and Proviso Townships.

SIMMONS termed the stalemate a "sad situation." Even the Republican redistricting proposal "wouldn't be fair" to the suburbs, he said. "In the next 10 years the northwest suburbs will be much larger in population."

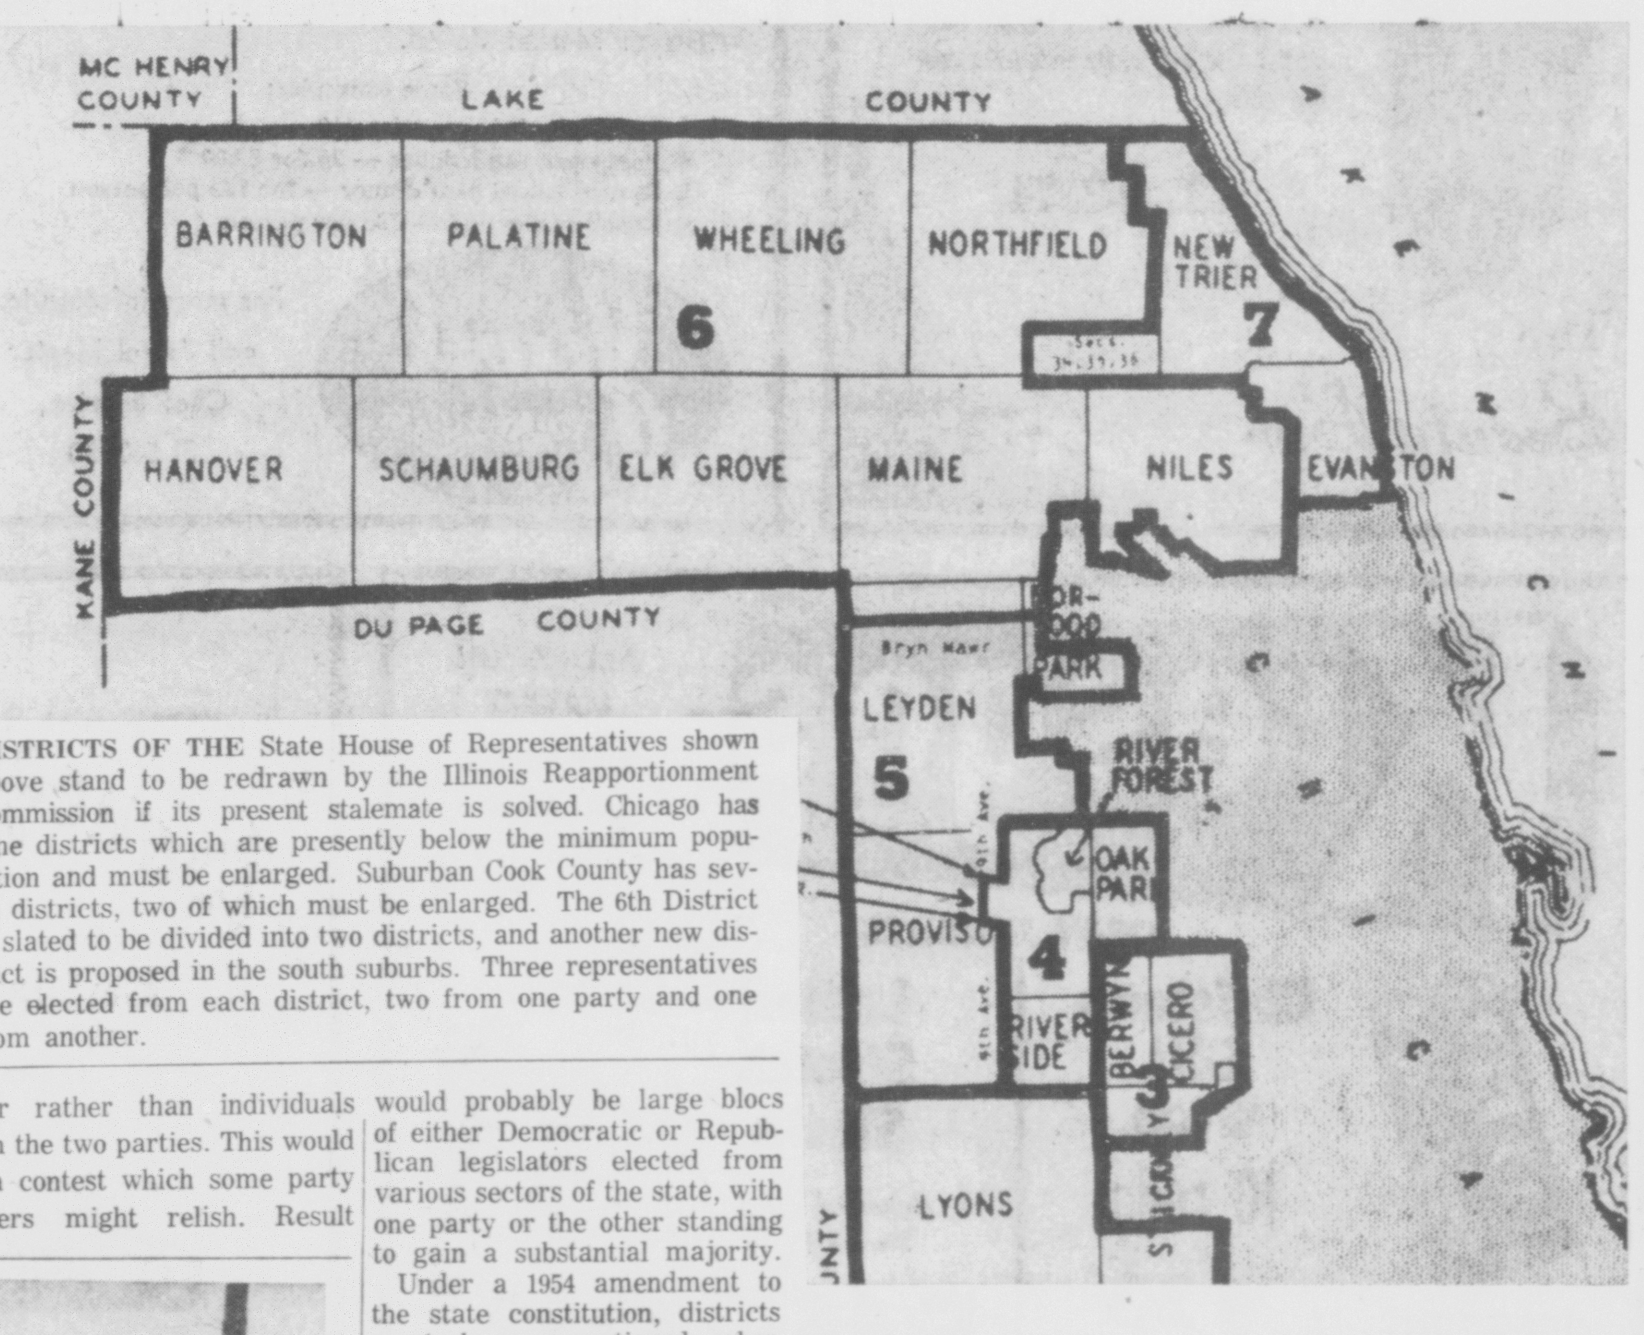
Ten years ago, Simmons said, the 6th District was the smallest in the state, and now it is the largest.

Chicago actually is entitled to a fraction less than 21 districts at present, he further noted. Simmons also commented that usually by this time he has had his campaign literature printed, but can't do so for this election until he knows what district he will be running from, or whether it will be an at-large campaign.

Both Carroll and Peskin indicated that they believe the reapportionment commission was within its rights to meet in closed door sessions over the last three months. (State law essentially forbids non-public meetings of governing bodies except for buying or selling property, or hiring or firing personnel.)

The reapportionment commission consists of five Democrats and five Republicans appointed by the governor.

The Republicans had set a deadline of Nov. 7 for agreement, but extended it to today, Nov. 14, when they say they will report to Kerner that the commission has failed to agree.



DISTRICTS OF THE State House of Representatives shown above stand to be redrawn by the Illinois Reapportionment Commission if its present stalemate is solved. Chicago has nine districts which are presently below the minimum population and must be enlarged. Suburban Cook County has seven districts, two of which must be enlarged. The 6th District is slated to be divided into two districts, and another new district is proposed in the south suburbs. Three representatives are elected from each district, two from one party and one from another.

Dedicate Beth Tikvah Synagogue

A series of three dedication services will be held this weekend for the newly completed Beth Tikvah synagogue in Hoffman Estates.

The building, only Jewish temple between Des Plaines and Elgin, serves 140 families in approximately 15 suburban communities.

Standing at 275 Hillcrest Boulevard, the temple was built at a cost of about $125,000, with an additional $25,000 in land and furnishings.

Rabbi Hillel Gamoran, who has served the congregation the past three years, has announced that a service for the congregation will be held at 9 p.m. tomorrow (Friday), a service for the religious school at 11 a.m. Saturday and a dedication program for the community at 3 p.m. Sunday.

A SERMON for the Friday evening service will be delivered by Rabbi Richard G. Hirsch, director of the Social Action Center, United American Hebrew Congregations, Washington, D.C.

Rabbi Hirsch was instrumental in the formation of Beth Tikvah.

His sermon, coming after the reading of the Torah, will be part of a special Shofar service. This service includes a procession of the carrying of the Torah to the Ark, the lighting of the Ner-Temid and the Sabbath candle lighting observance.

Rabbi Gamoran will preach at the Saturday morning service, in which representatives of each class will participate.

Speaker for the Sunday afternoon community program will be Rabbi Jacob Rudin of Temple Beth-El, Great Neck, N. Y. He is vice president of the Synagogue Council of America.

A WELCOME TO visitors will be given by Elliott Rosenberg, president of the congregation, and a ceremony will be held for the unveiling of the cornerstone.

Greetings will be given by Robert L. Adler, president of the Federation, Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

Construction of the temple was started in May by Beth Tikvah Congregation, now seven years old. The building has an expandable auditorium, seating up to 350 persons, and eight classrooms and office and library space.

Formerly activities of the congregation were scattered in three communities. Services were held in the Twinbrook Schol in Hoffman Estates. Rabbi Gamoran had his office in Arlington Heights. Religious classes were held in the Rupley School in Elk Grove Village.

Prominent Jewish Leaders to Speak

Two nationally known voices in Reform Judaism will be heard this weekend during the dedication services for Temple Beth Tikvah, first synagogue in this area.

They are Rabbi Richard G. Hirsch, speaker for the Friday evening service and Rabbi Jacob Rudin, speaker at the Sunday afternoon community program.

Rabbi Hirsch is director of the Religious Action Center operated in Washington, D.C., by the United American Hebrew Congregations. This center was established two years ago this month to bring to society the moral insights of Judaism. The center disseminates resource materials on social issues for use by local, regional and national social action committees. The center also maintains a research program and sponsors conferences and seminars.

RABBI HIRSCH also serves as director of the Mid-Atlantic Council of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

He formerly was regional director of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations in Chicago. He was on the faculty of the College of Jewish Studies and served as chairman of a year long metropolitan Conference on Religion, Community Life and Housing sponsored jointly by Catholic, Protestant and Jewish communities in Chicago.

He is author of "Judaism and Cities in Crises," a study of problems of contemporary urban life.

BORN IN Cleveland, he attended Western Reserve University and graduated from the University of Cincinnati in 1947. In 1949 and 1950, he studied at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem under a scholarship from the Zionist Organization of America. In Israel he worked on archeological excavations at Khirbet Kerach and lived in a kibbutz for four months.

He was ordained a rabbi in 1951 at the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion and received a degree of master of Hebrew letters. He served as assistant rabbi at Temple Emanuel, Chicago, from 1951-53, and rabbi at Temple Emanuel, Denver, from 1953-56.

Rabbi Hirsch is married to Bella Rosenewig of Tel Aviv, Israel. They have a daughter and three sons.

JACOB RUDIN has been a rabbi since 1928, when he graduated from the Jewish Institute of Religion, in New York City. Four years previously he had graduated cum laude from Harvard College.

He served as assistant to Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, at the Stephen Wise Free Synagogue from 1928-30. Since 1930 he has been rabbi of Temple Beth-El at Great Neck, N.Y. He served as a naval chaplain in World War II.

Currently he is a member of the executive board, New York Board of Rabbis, and vice president of the Synagogue Council of America.

His former positions include being assistant to the president, Jewish Institute of America; president of the Jewish Institute of Alumni Association; president of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion Alumni Association; president of the Association of Reform Rabbis of New York City and Vicinity; member of the board of governors, Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, and president Central Conference of American Rabbis.

Hospital to Double Emergency Space

A new emergency department is being planned at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. The hospital has scheduled a public fund-raising campaign in connection with the expansion.

"The public is making greater use of the emergency department each year," said T. L. Jacobsen, executive director. "This expansion will be a major contribution to the health facilities of the large area which is served by Lutheran General."

The lower level of the emergency department will include space for expansion of laboratory facilities.

"The laboratory area will be completed when funds become available," Jacobsen said.

The two areas together will contain 8,300 square feet. Total cost of the completed project is $305,000. No date for completion has been announced.

THE NEW emergency department will be constructed on the present emergency parking area at the southwest corner of the hospital. The new facility will double the space available for emergency care.

Included in the project will be treatment and examination rooms, eight treatment beds, nursing station, supply room, administrative area, admitting department, doctors area and a waiting room.

A new unloading ramp will have space for six ambulances. A road will be constructed to provide access from the west. Emergency parking will be included.

In announcing the expansion Jacobsen cited the increase in cases handled by the emergency department.

"IN 1960, the hospital cared for 6,519 emergency cases. This year, an estimated 14,200 people will be treated," he pointed out.

"This increased use makes expansion imperative. To do this we will need widespread support from the communities which are served by the emergency department," he said.

Avoiding Fear

If you are sensible, you will not fear the day you've never seen.

Says Papers Failed On Stockpile Story

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. (UPI) — Presidential news secretary Pierre Salinger accused the nation's newspapers Saturday night of being derelict in their duty for failing to publish sufficient news about the investigation of stockpiling in the Eisenhower administration.

Salinger termed the stockpiling "as great a scandal as Teapot Dome," and said it was "the major uncovered story of the past one and a half years."

Salinger's address featured a dinner concluding a day-long meeting of the United Press International Indiana newspaper editors. The meeting, which included an afternoon workshop and a reception for Salinger at the state executive residence with Gov. and Mrs. Matthew Welsh as host and hostess, attracted more than 200 persons.

Bible Salesman Uses Playboy Lure

JACKSONVILLE, N.C., (UPI)— A fast-talking salesman, who offered Bibles packaged with a subscription to Playboy Magazine, was arrested here today after one of his prospective customers complained to the sheriff.

David Lee Miller, 28, of Baltimore, Md., was charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. Onslow County law officers said Miller sold orders for Bibles and included a subscription to the magazine to those who placed an order. Officers said some 20 persons paid Miller approximately $250 for the twin literary offer.

OFFICERS SAID Miller gave his customers receipts reading, "Bonds dealer receipt, Bible accounts, Charlotte."

Sheriff's investigator Joe Pollock said he called the Charlotte concern, and they told him they had never heard of Miller except in letters from persons who complained they had not received merchandise ordered from him.

Citizenship Theme for VFW Contest

The 17th annual scriptwriting contest sponsored by The Veterans of Foreign Wars with the cooperation of the National and State Associations of Broadcasters has as its theme this year "The Challenge of Citizenship."

The contest is open to all 10th, 11th and 12th grade students in public, parochial and private schools in the U.S. and its possessions and to this age children of military and civilian personnel serving with the armed forces overseas.

Scholarship of $5,000, $3,500, $2,500 and $1,500 will be awarded the four top national winners. Department winners will receive fash prizes of $500, $100 and $50 plus an all-expense trip to Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Va., and to Washington, D.C., for the national judging and the VFW congressional banquet.

High school principals have the necessary contest information, according to Edward R. Doyle, contest chairman and publicity officer for VFW Post 981 in Arlington Heights.

Meyers to Lead Barber Shoppers

THE BOARD of directors, also selected in Oct. 28 election, includes Bob Cecrle, Len Klaproth, Jack Musich, Gus Neill, Dick Reed, and immediate past president Lou Behrle.

The Arlington chapter draws its membership from several other communities in the northwest suburbs as well as Arlington Heights. (B9

Bible Salesman Uses Playboy Lure

JACKSONVILLE, N.C., (UPI)— A fast-talking salesman, who offered Bibles packaged with a subscription to Playboy Magazine, was arrested here today after one of his prospective customers complained to the sheriff.

David Lee Miller, 28, of Baltimore, Md., was charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. Onslow County law officers said Miller sold orders for Bibles and included a subscription to the magazine to those who placed an order. Officers said some 20 persons paid Miller approximately $250 for the twin literary offer.

OFFICERS SAID Miller gave his customers receipts reading, "Bonds dealer receipt, Bible accounts, Charlotte."

Sheriff's investigator Joe Pollock said he called the Charlotte concern, and they told him they had never heard of Miller except in letters from persons who complained they had not received merchandise ordered from him.

Community College Parley Set Nov. 16

To Determine Plan's Status

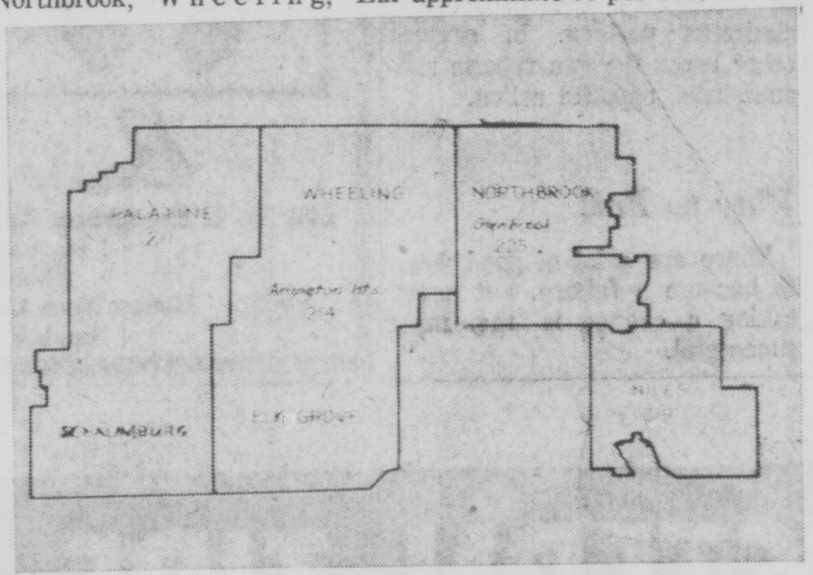
by HELENE BRISTOL
Education Editor

High school board members and administrators will meet with members of the Citizens Community College Committee (CCCC) Saturday, Nov. 16, to hear just where the proposed community college now stands.

The meeting will be a form of reunion for the four high school districts and the college committee since the spark for the required community college survey and study came from the high schools more than two years ago. After appointing citizen members to the original college survey committee and underwriting the required original expenditures, the high schools withdrew to give the college committee independence from high school control.

A tentative March date has been set by the CCCC for a referendum on the proposed community college.

Included in the proposed community college are Palatine - Schaumburg School District 211, Arlington High School District 214, Glenbrook High School District 225 and Niles High School District 219. This includes Niles, Northbrook, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Palatine Townships.



MAP OF THE FOUR high school districts which have joined in the proposed community junior college district. The four districts are (from the left) Palatine-Schaumburg District 211, Arlington District 214, Glenbrook District 225 and Niles District 219. (A-14

The Saturday meeting will be held at 9:30 a.m. in Glenbrook South High School, 4000 W. Lake (Euclid) Ave., Northbrook.

ATTENDING THE meeting will be people from other junior college areas to discuss their experiences in establishing junior colleges.

Studies by the CCCC show that the projected tax rate needed to support a community junior college would range from nine cents to 15 cents per $100 valuation. This would provide both annual operating funds and money to retire bonds issued for the college construction.

This compares to taxes ranging from $1.50 to more than $2 per $100 valuation to operate each elementary and high school district in the proposed junior college area.

Studies by the CCCC, verified by expert surveys, show that the population of the proposed college district will jump from 267,200 in 1960 to 484,000 in 1970, with an estimated 685,000 residents living in the area in 1980.

VALUATION IS expected to go from the present $1.184 billion to $1.7 billion in 1968.

Between 55 and 70 per cent of the high school graduates of the proposed district go on to college. At least 20 per cent of the graduates are expected to attend a community college if organized.

The Palatine Chamber of Commerce has stated the technical education offered by a community college could be an inducement to industries to locate in the community college area. This would provide tax relief for individual home owners and provide job opportunities for area residents and junior college graduates.

MRS. R. B. YADON, a member of the Arlington District 214, CCCC sub-group, last week cited the advantages provided by a community college. These include:

—College facilities close to home for students who are not yet mature enough to take full advantage of study opportunities without parental supervision;

—College opportunities for students who cannot afford tuition, board and room expenses at distant universities;

—Enrollment opportunities for students in the "middle group" of scholastic ability who find it increasingly difficult to get into private and state colleges;

—A "second chance" for the approximate 50 per cent of freshmen students who are "washed out" of state colleges to bring enrollment down to manageable levels; and —A source of post-high school level technical training for students who need additional skills, but who do not wish to undertake regular four-year college courses of study.

AN EXTENSIVE public informational campaign is planned by the CCCC before the referendum date.

Members of the CCCC from High School District 211 are Erie Jones and Marion Jordan of Palatine, David Mann of Hoffman Estates and Mrs. Fred Nicklas of Inverness.

In addition to Mrs. Yadon, members of the High School District 214 CCCC group are M. Edward Smith and Kenneth Dougan of Arlington Heights and Mrs. R. J. Bristol of Rolling Meadows. (A14

Palatine Chamber Supports Community College Project

A statement favoring establishment of a community college has come from the Palatine Chamber of Commerce as they announced a public meeting to outline the work done for creation of the college to date.

A public meeting to outline the work done to date by the Citizens Community College Committee (CCCC) and its sub-group, the Palatine - Schaumburg College Committee, is being sponsored by the Nov. 18.

The meeting will be held at the Palatine Frosh-Soph High School cafeteria, 1000 S. Quentin Road, Palatine. It will start at 8 p.m.

ACCORDING to the statement, the Palatine chamber "believes that a community college in this area would increase the economic stability through having industry more agreeable in locating here." In addition, the statement says that the chamber "believes that the establishment of a junior college will furnish low-cost education for students who might not otherwise have the opportunity to attend college."

Purpose of the meeting, as outlined by the C of C., is "to acquaint leaders of local organizations, the residents of the area with the results of the college survey and its recommendations; to report the need for additional facilities for higher education in general, and particularly in this area; to show the kind of education that is desired in the area and how a community college can perform this service, both for young students and adults; and to show how the uniting of four large high school districts (in one community college district) can bring the cost down very low."

The proposed community college district would include the area covered by the four high school districts of Palatine - Schaumburg 211, Arlington 214, Glenbrook 225, and Niles 219. This is the area of six townships — Niles, Northbrook, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Palatine.

MRS. FRED Nicklas of Inverness, chairman of the Palatine - Schaumburg College Committee, will be the principal speaker. She will be assisted in the presentation program by Erie Jones of Palatine, a member of the committee.

Mrs. Nicklas and Jones have served on the survey committee since the original work began in studying community college formation in nine north and northwestern Cook County suburbs more than two years ago.

Mrs. Nicklas is a former Palatine-Rolling Meadows PTA board member and state board member of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. During her term in PTA work Mrs. Nicklas was chairman of a work program for school legislation.

JONES SERVED as chairman of the original Community College Survey for the nine high school districts. A former president of the board of education of Palatine-Schaumburg High School District 211, Jones resigned his board membership in September to give more time to the formation of a community college.

Cooperating with the Palatine chamber in the Nov. 18 meeting are other chambers and civic organizations of the area.

The chamber of commerce has issued a "cordial invitation" to the general public to attend the meeting, noting that the organization of a community college district will "have a bearing on future tax rates."

High School Must Fork Up $883 Premium

A recent opinion by the legal advisor to the Illinois Superintendent of Public Instruction is costing High School District 214 $883.

In a verbal opinion, the state school legal counsel said that school districts were now liable acts of all employees in the case of corporal punishment.

A review of the insurance policies covering employees, school board members, the school district, the township school trustees and township school treasurer, no specific protection was given for acts of corporal punishment. Upon hearing that acts of corporal punishment have occurred at least twice in the past two to three years, board members quickly authorized the purchase of the additional insurance.

JOHN HAAS, president of the school board, noted, "Let's face it! When this happens it just isn't an accident." Coverage was previously given to all acts of accidental injury.

Illinois school districts have had to undertake extensive liability insurance programs in the past two years. Until that time legal opinions held that school districts were not liable for damages and could not be sued. A series of court cases covering injuries to several children in a school bus crash did find one southern Illinois school district liable for damages, and the damage assessments bankrupted the school system. The state legislature had to appropriate funds to put the school district back in business, and school districts throughout the state scrambled to buy liability insurance coverage.

Not only did school districts not carry liability insurance before the recent court ruling, but in the words of Palatine-Schaumburg High School Superintendent G. L. McElroy, "We used to be told that buying liability insurance was a waste of taxpayers' money and the schools could be the subject to a tax suit if they bought such insurance."

While most schools have purchased adequate cverage for any liability for accidental injuries, corporal punishment might not be covered by "accidental' clauses. To be sure of complete school personnel and funds, District 214 found the $883 corporal punishment insurance premium not "too expensive."

High School District OKs Changes for Supervision

High School District 214 board members have taken the "plunge" into the controversial supervision changes recommended by a district-wide efficiency survey last year.

The board members did not take the head-on dive from the highest board into the entire four-high-school pool of reluctant teachers and chairmen.

The new division head plan, with a probable seven chairmen, will replace the present 12 department chairman organization at Wheeling High School when it opens next September.

IMPLEMENTATION OF the changeover will come at Prospect and Arlington High Schools "as openings occur." No change will be made at Forest View High School.

The reorganization plan was recommended by Booz, Allen & Hamilton, management consultants, in a survey of District 214 organization, general administration and business services. The addition of administrative personnel recommended by the report was made last spring. The only change not made by the school board at that time was the proposed change from department chairmen to division heads.

The almost unanimous opposition of present department chairmen and the lack of information among teachers was the basic reason for the waiting period. In addition, making the change to division heads at the opening of the new Wheeling High School would permit six or seven more division heads to be named, cutting the need to demote department chairmen no longer needed in the changeover.

THE CHANGE to a division organization has the endorsement of Supt. H. L. Slichenmyer. The division plan had been favorably cited by the superintendent before the survey was made.

The present department chairman organization provides a chairman for each basic subject-matter grouping. These include art, business education, English, foreign language, guidance, home economics, industrial arts mathematics, music, physical education, science and social science.

Under the division plan there would be a head for six, or possibly seven subject areas. These are English and speech, fine and applied arts (art, music, business education, industrial arts and home economics), guidance, physical education and athletics, social science and foreign language, and science and mathematics.

THE DIVISION of fine and applied arts has come under heavy fire from teachers and some administrators. This will probably be changed to two divisions — fine arts, covering art and music, and applied arts for business education, industrial arts and home economics.

The year-old Teachers Association of District 214 ran a survey of teachers and their opinions on the department chairman and division head plans. While some of the questions were "weighted" toward the present department-chairman plan, the 70 per cent of the replies to all of the questions opposed the proposed change. An average of 13 per cent favored the change, while the 17 per cent of the replies did not answer one or another of the questions. There were 145 questionnaires returned with a faculty staff of little more than 300.

Cost of the two plans is about the same. To make up for the lack of possible subject-matter knowledge in particular fields (except for English and physical education, division heads would be in charge of two or more subject areas, but probably would be a teacher experienced in only one subject category) the school will have to employ instructional coordinators at an average salary of $11,583. There will be one instructional coordinator for each high school.

THE OPENING of the new Wheeling High School provides the school board with a ready-made "clean slate" to institute the division head program there. The plan has the support of the Wheeling High principal.

Prospect High Principal Alvin Kulieke indicated he would favor the division head plan, noting that although leadership in curriculum change was the argument advanced by present department chairmen that most of the major curriculum changes had come from teachers who had attended special summer institutes on the various programs.

Bruno Waara, principal of Arlington High School, stated he tended "to disagree with the report" on all the advantages cited in changing to the division head system. He said "the possibility exists that we make appropriate changes in personnel at the department head level when openings exist and when we have the right person for the job." He added that the district should experiment further in developing the merits of the two kinds of organization.

THE ONLY principal to outspokenly oppose the division head plan was Larry Jenness of Forest View. Jenness said the two biggest problems to be faced in District 214 in the next 10 years would be (1) "the recruitment, orientation, supervision, guidance and evaluation of new teachers," and (2) "keeping up with and selecting the best from rapidly changing curricula areas."

Jenness noted that "if we are to concentrate administrative efforts in these directions" the school district would be the most successful by retaining department chairmen who have a "good background in the academic area under consideration." "Doubling the number of people that a man must supervise in addition to extending curricular considerations into less familiar areas seriously complicates the task required," Jenness continued.

A third consideration cited by Jenness was the need for District 214, which is rapidly expanding, "to constantly search for administrative talent, regardless of the system used." He pointed out the division head plan would provide less opportunity to introduce people into administrative positions because of the fewer division head positions available.

JENNESS SAID the "major advantages of the division head program . . . are primarily administrative — the tightening of administrative control, etc."

"I do not believe that administrative efficiency should be purchased at the cost of what I consider to be less effective personnel and curriculum supervision," he added.

According to the survey, "division heads will have major responsibility for evaluating instruction and curriculum." Questioned by Paddock Publications on how a division head could evaluate instruction and curriculum for subject matter with which he was not familiar, members of the management firm stated the school would need men "highly competent, trained and qualified who would be able to understand the problems of teachers in subjects with which they might be a comparative stranger."

SUPT. SLICHENMYER cited five reasons for supporting the change to division heads: 1) various subjects will be tied more closely together into a compact hole, facilitating better cooperation and coordination within the school; 2) greater appreciation and understanding of the problems found in other subject areas through grouping teachers of various disciplines; 3) desirable change will be easier to implement within the total organization because fewer units are involved; 4) the importance of the teacher as a subject matter specialist is emphasized; and 5) the division concept will make it possible for the principals to work more closely with teachers and to involve himself more completely in the educational program.

A survey taken of Palatine - Schaumburg High School District 211 at the same time as the District 214 study came to the exact opposite recommendation there. The major emphasis of the Palatine survey was the need to strengthen the department chairman position. In several other areas the two reports recommended opposite action.

Notes from Arlington Acres

Marie Marshall CLearbrook 5-2936

Arlington Acres extends a welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Krauss, now at home at 524 S. Phelps, the former home of the Ben Roman family. The Krausses came to Arlington Heights from Elk Grove Village and have a 2-week-old son, Alan Scott. Mr. Krauss is with United Air Lines.

Mrs. L. Q. Yowell, 441 S. Forrest, who has been a patient in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, for the past two weeks, reports via telephone that she expects to be home by the time this copy goes to press. Peggy's neighbors and friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Karyl Oravetz, 533 S. Prindle, a freshman at Bob Jones University at Greenville, S. C., spent six studyfree days at home before returning to the campus last Tuesday.

Nov. 6 Raymond Kleinhuizen, 512 S. Phelps, was 16. As is a family tradition, Raymond's birthday was celebrated with a turkey dinner by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Kleinhuizen, and his sister, Janet.

A WEEKEND guest of the Kleinhuizen family was Alice's aunt, Mrs. Mayme Sanz of Garden Grove, Calif. A former area resident, she is spending a few weeks visiting family and old friends in Chicago and nearby Indiana.

Ed Ehlen, 437 S. Gibbons, in company with two friends spent the weekend deer hunting in western Illinois and returned Sunday evening with only a small buck. Dry weather is blamed for the scarcity of game which is warned off by the sounds of the approaching hunters.

Best wishes for many more happy birthdays ahead go to Barbara Kremer, 417 S. Prindle, who was 17 Nov. 9.

Kelly Donovan was 2 Nov. 6. Too young to appreciate a party, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Donovan, and her brother, Kevin, toasted the young lady at a family dinner. The Donovans live at 524 S. Prindle.

The members of the Dinner of the Month Club met Saturday for their November get-together. After a pre-dinner cocktail at the Frank Marshall home on Forrest Avenue, the group consisting of the Al Mays, Charles Pipkins and the Roy Stoehrs of Prindle Avenue and the Howard Schulzes of Des Plaines proceeded to Bensenville for dinner at Plentywood Farm.

Ridge Park—Sherwood

Ridge Parkers have a television treat ahead tonight! John Oertel, 708 N. Salem St., was editor for "The Glass House," to be presented Nov. 14 at 9:30 on channel 7. The documentary deals with the little immoralities of everyday life. The show, and John, were commended in a lead editorial last week in two Chicago dailies.

Home from Marshfield, Wis., are the Harry Phillipps. They visited Mrs. Elmer Nelson, Pat's mother, the Tom Seubert family and the Dennis Nelsons. Pat's brother-in-law, whose arm was amputated after a corn picker accident, is recovering slowly. It is hoped that the leg amputation can be avoided.

Tonsillitis has temporarily sidelined Nancy Cunningham, daughter of the Vince Cunninghams, 802 N. Harvard, who was 7 on Wednesday, but big sister, Donna, a sophomore at Northern Illinois, DeKalb, will be home this weekend to cheer her up. Donna was 19 and Peggy, 12. Mr. Cunningham drove down for Dad's Day at the University, along with Donna's grandfather, Arthur Cunningham, and uncle, Roger Cunningham, both of Chicago.

KENNICOTT neighbors are glad to learn that 2-month-old Kenneth Klein is home from St. Joseph Hospital, Elgin. Son of Al Klein, 1003 N. Kennicott, he spent a week there following emergency surgery. Because of Kenneth's illness, David, 2 on Tuesday, will celebrate his birthday with a quiet family party.

Visiting the Jim Ronaynes, 1011 N. Kennicott, were Mr. and Mrs. George Compton, Mrs. Ronayne's parents. Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Ronayne on the sudden death of her uncle in Princeton, Ill.

Garin Kroll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Kroll, 918 N. Chicago, was honored at a family party on his first birthday.

Back for classes at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, is Valerie Juhl, daughter of the Stan Juhls, 831 N. Salem. Valerie, a senior, has been practice-teaching this fall at the South School in Des Plaines and living at home.

FROM SHERWOOD

Eric Matthew Lund, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lund, 1119 N. Harvard, was baptized Sunday at St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, by Pastor David Quill. His godparents were a cousin, Miss Susan Burchinal of Sleepy Hollow, Dundee, and an uncle, Walter E. Lund of Vancouver, B.C. Eric's father acted as proxy godfather. Afterwards, the Lunds entertained at family dinner for Dr. and Mrs. Arno Langjahr of Milwaukee and the senior Carl Lunds from Racine, grandparents of Eric, and Mrs. Burchinal and her five children.

New Sherwood residents are the Roger J. Frocks, who moved to 1115 N. Patton, the former Charles Bergman home, from Melrose Park. Mr. Frock is with A. T. Kearney of Chicago, a management consultant firm.

The Frocks' son, Gregory Eric, was baptized Oct. 27 at St. Simon Episcopal Church by Father Samuel Keys. His godparents were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Holtz of Melrose Park and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Morse of Skokie. Joining the Frocks for the baptism and as weekend guests were Gregory's grandfather, Ivan Frock of Detroit, and aunt, Miss Carole Frock, a freshman at the University of Michigan.

St. Peter Boys Tour Seminary

Thirty-two boys in the seventh and eighth grades at St. Peter Lutheran School in Arlington Heights recently visited Concordia Seminary of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, at Springfield, Ill.

They were accompanied on their bus trip by Pastors Robert O. Bartz, Leonard A. Martin and Kenneth J. Putt, all graduates of the Springfield seminary.

President J. A. O. Preuss welcomed the boys who then were taken on a tour before joining seminarians for lunch in the school's dining hall. After lunch they heard from seminary students and staff members.

DO YOU PAY YOURSELF FIRST?

Do you find (as most families do) that the many demands on your income, and the cost of living generally, leave very little over at the end of the month?

The answer is simple, to people who will make use of it. Set aside a certain amount out of your paycheck in a savings account and treat it the same as you would a bill!

Putting savings FIRST, rather than LAST, will do a surprising job in building a worthwhile fund that you can use for future enjoyment, to profit by opportunities, or to meet an emergency.

SNOW • BIRD

The Pleasant, Easy Way to Remove Snow

Does all the work — you just guide it. Self-Propelled forward and in reverse.

The perfect balance, smooth control, and reserve power makes self-propelled Snow • Bird a delight to handle. It's rugged, durable . . . burrows into wet, heavy snow and clears it off quick and clean. The three essential engineering principles for complete snow removal (slow-speed auger, high-speed blower, and all-directional non-clog discharge chute) are developed to perfection.

Light and fluffy, wet and heavy, whatever the texture, depth ,or weight of snow, Snow • Bird handles it all with speed, ease, and convenience . . . takes work out and puts fun in snow removal. As one customer reported, "Snow • Birding is winter's newest sport."

Notes from Arlington Acres

Marie Marshall CLearbrook 5-2936

Arlington Acres extends a welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Krauss, now at home at 524 S. Phelps, the former home of the Ben Roman family. The Krausses came to Arlington Heights from Elk Grove Village and have a 2-week-old son, Alan Scott. Mr. Krauss is with United Air Lines.

Mrs. L. Q. Yowell, 441 S. Forrest, who has been a patient in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, for the past two weeks, reports via telephone that she expects to be home by the time this copy goes to press. Peggy's neighbors and friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Karyl Oravetz, 533 S. Prindle, a freshman at Bob Jones University at Greenville, S. C., spent six studyfree days at home before returning to the campus last Tuesday.

Nov. 6 Raymond Kleinhuizen, 512 S. Phelps, was 16. As is a family tradition, Raymond's birthday was celebrated with a turkey dinner by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Kleinhuizen, and his sister, Janet.

A WEEKEND guest of the Kleinhuizen family was Alice's aunt, Mrs. Mayme Sanz of Garden Grove, Calif. A former area resident, she is spending a few weeks visiting family and old friends in Chicago and nearby Indiana.

Ed Ehlen, 437 S. Gibbons, in company with two friends spent the weekend deer hunting in western Illinois and returned Sunday evening with only a small buck. Dry weather is blamed for the scarcity of game which is warned off by the sounds of the approaching hunters.

Best wishes for many more happy birthdays ahead go to Barbara Kremer, 417 S. Prindle, who was 17 Nov. 9.

Kelly Donovan was 2 Nov. 6. Too young to appreciate a party, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Donovan, and her brother, Kevin, toasted the young lady at a family dinner. The Donovans live at 524 S. Prindle.

The members of the Dinner of the Month Club met Saturday for their November get-together. After a pre-dinner cocktail at the Frank Marshall home on Forrest Avenue, the group consisting of the Al Mays, Charles Pipkins and the Roy Stoehrs of Prindle Avenue and the Howard Schulzes of Des Plaines proceeded to Bensenville for dinner at Plentywood Farm.

Ridge Park–Sherwood

Ridge Parkers have a television treat ahead tonight! John Oertel, 708 N. Salem St., was editor for "The Glass House," to be presented Nov. 14 at 9:30 on channel 7. The documentary deals with the little immoralities of everyday life. The show, and John, were commended in a lead editorial last week in two Chicago dailies.

Home from Marshfield, Wis., are the Harry Phillipps. They visited Mrs. Elmer Nelson, Pat's mother, the Tom Seubert family and the Dennis Nelsons. Pat's brother-in-law, whose arm was amputated after a corn picker accident, is recovering slowly. It is hoped that the leg amputation can be avoided.

Tonsillitis has temporarily sidelined Nancy Cunningham, daughter of the Vince Cunninghams, 802 N. Harvard, who was 7 on Wednesday, but big sister, Donna, a sophomore at Northern Illinois, DeKalb, will be home this weekend to cheer her up. Donna was 19 and Peggy, 12. Mr. Cunningham drove down for Dad's Day at the University, along with Donna's grandfather, Arthur Cunningham, and uncle, Roger Cunningham, both of Chicago.

KENNICOTT neighbors are glad to learn that 2-month-old Kenneth Klein is home from St. Joseph Hospital, Elgin. Son of Al Klein, 1003 N. Kennicott, he spent a week there following emergency surgery. Because of Kenneth's illness, David, 2 on Tuesday, will celebrate his birthday with a quiet family party.

Visiting the Jim Ronaynes, 1011 N. Kennicott, were Mr. and Mrs. George Compton, Mrs. Ronayne's parents. Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Ronayne on the sudden death of her uncle in Princeton, Ill.

Garin Kroll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Kroll, 918 N. Chicago, was honored at a family party on his first birthday.

Back for classes at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, is Valerie Juhl, daughter of the Stan Juhls, 831 N. Salem. Valerie, a senior, has been practice-teaching this fall at the South School in Des Plaines and living at home.

FROM SHERWOOD

Eric Matthew Lund, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lund, 1119 N. Harvard, was baptized Sunday at St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, by Pastor David Quill. His godparents were a cousin, Miss Susan Burchinal of Sleepy Hollow, Dundee, and an uncle, Walter E. Lund of Vancouver, B.C. Eric's father acted as proxy godfather. Afterwards, the Lunds entertained at family dinner for Dr. and Mrs. Arno Langjahr of Milwaukee and the senior Carl Lunds from Racine, grandparents of Eric, and Mrs. Burchinal and her five children.

New Sherwood residents are the Roger J. Frocks, who moved to 1115 N. Patton, the former Charles Bergman home, from Melrose Park. Mr. Frock is with A. T. Kearney of Chicago, a management consultant firm.

The Frocks' son, Gregory Eric, was baptized Oct. 27 at St. Simon Episcopal Church by Father Samuel Keys. His godparents were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Holtz of Melrose Park and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Morse of Skokie. Joining the Frocks for the baptism and as weekend guests were Gregory's grandfather, Ivan Frock of Detroit, and aunt, Miss Carole Frock, a freshman at the University of Michigan.

Session Added To Dance Class

The women's dancing class is directed and taught by Delores Eiler and is designed for fun and figure control.

THE NEW class will start Wednesday, Nov. 27, and run for eight weeks until Jan. 29. On Feb. 5 a third session will begin.

The participants will meet on Wednesdays from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., and free baby sitting is supplied, all for $7.

Call CL 3-0620 or stop in at Pioneer Park office to register.

Q. Should garage attendants or service station attendants be tipped?

A. Only if some special service has been performed outside of what is regularly charged for.

St. Peter Boys Tour Seminary

Thirty-two boys in the seventh and eighth grades at St. Peter Lutheran School in Arlington Heights recently visited Concordia Seminary of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, at Springfield, Ill.

They were accompanied on their bus trip by Pastors Robert O. Bartz, Leonard A. Martin and Kenneth J. Putt, all graduates of the Springfield seminary.

President J. A. O. Preuss welcomed the boys who then were taken on a tour before joining seminarians for lunch in the school's dining hall. After lunch they heard from seminary students and staff members.

DO YOU PAY YOURSELF FIRST?

Do you find (as most families do) that the many demands on your income, and the cost of living generally, leave very little over at the end of the month?

The answer is simple, to people who will make use of it. Set aside a certain amount out of your paycheck in a savings account and treat it the same as you would a bill!

Putting savings FIRST, rather than LAST, will do a surprising job in building a worthwhile fund that you can use for future enjoyment, to profit by opportunities, or to meet an emergency.

81 Graduates Apply For Scholarships

There were 81 requests for teacher training scholarships from 1963 graduates of one private and three public high schools in the area, according to a report from Dr. Noble J. Puffer, Cook County Superintendent of Schools.

Another three graduates asked for scholarships in special education training to teach physically and mentally handicapped children, the report said.

THE SCHOLARSHIPS entitle the holder to enroll in any of six state supported universities to train for the teaching profession.

Thirty graduates of Palatine High School applied for scholarships. Requests from Arlington Heights High School totaled 24, three of them for special education scholarships. There were 24 applications from Prospect High School and six from St. Patrick Academy in Des Plaines.

No applications were received from Forest View as there were no 1963 graduates from that high school.

"THE IMPORTANCE of these teacher training scholarships can hardly be over-estimated," Puffer said, "for in some of our state teacher training universities, as many as 50 per cent of the students are enrolled under some sort of scholarship, principally teacher training scholarships."

In Cook County there are 973 regular teacher training scholarships available, and 752 applications were received from 1963 graduates. A total of 250 special education scholarships are available in the state. There were 54 requests in Cook County. (B9

PARTICULARLY needed are tubas, French horns and clarinets.

The band rehearses each Monday evening at Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows, under the direction of George Yingst, instrumental instructor in the school system.

Noisy War

A political war is one in which everyone shoots from the lip. —Raymond Moley.

Voters May Register For Primary

Northwest suburban residents who are not registered to vote may register with village and township clerks between Tuesday, Nov. 19, and Jan. 21.

Voters must be registered at least 28 days before the April 14 Primary Election, making March 16, 1964, the last day to register.

TO BE ELIGIBLE to vote in the Primary, residents must have lived in the state for one year, in Cook County for 90 days, and in the local precinct for 30 days by April 14.

Village and township clerks in all northwest suburbs will accept registrations beginning Nov. 19. Questions regarding eligibility and procedure should be directed to the clerks. (B-9

81 Graduates Apply For Scholarships

There were 81 requests for teacher training scholarships from 1963 graduates of one private and three public high schools in the area, according to a report from Dr. Noble J. Puffer, Cook County Superintendent of Schools.

Another three graduates asked for scholarships in special education training to teach physically and mentally handicapped children, the report said.

THE SCHOLARSHIPS entitle the holder to enroll in any of six state supported universities to train for the teaching profession.

Thirty graduates of Palatine High School applied for scholarships. Requests from Arlington Heights High School totaled 24, three of them for special education scholarships. There were 24 applications from Prospect High School and six from St. Patrick Academy in Des Plaines.

No applications were received from Forest View as there were no 1963 graduates from that high school.

"THE IMPORTANCE of these teacher training scholarships can hardly be over-estimated," Puffer said, "for in some of our state teacher training universities, as many as 50 per cent of the students are enrolled under some sort of scholarship, principally teacher training scholarships."

In Cook County there are 973 regular teacher training scholarships available, and 752 applications were received from 1963 graduates. A total of 250 special education scholarships are available in the state. There were 54 requests in Cook County. (B9

Municipal Band Needs Musicians

Area musicians are invited to join the Rolling Meadows Municipal Band.

Anyone who has an instrument and can read music is eligible to join the new musical organization which will play concerts, perform for civic affairs and march in parades.

Membership already includes representatives of several northwest suburbs as well as Rolling Meadows, junior high, high school and adults.

PARTICULARLY needed are tubas, French horns and clarinets.

The band rehearses each Monday evening at Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows, under the direction of George Yingst, instrumental instructor in the school system.

General manager of the band is Hubert Splichal, 2609 Wilke Rd., Rolling Meadows. Musicians may register for the band by phoning him at CL 3-1381.

Voters May Register For Primary

Northwest suburban residents who are not registered to vote may register with village and township clerks between Tuesday, Nov. 19, and Jan. 21.

Voters must be registered at least 28 days before the April 14 Primary Election, making March 16, 1964, the last day to register.

TO BE ELIGIBLE to vote in the Primary, residents must have lived in the state for one year, in Cook County for 90 days, and in the local precinct for 30 days by April 14.

Village and township clerks in all northwest suburbs will accept registrations beginning Nov. 19. Questions regarding eligibility and procedure should be directed to the clerks. (B-9

MOUNT EMBLEM

"Illinois' Most Beautiful Cemetery"
Site of the
OLD DUTCH MILL
Built in 1850

The DuPage County Historical Society presented an AWARD OF HONOR to Mount Emblem in 1956 for preserving the Old Dutch Mill as an educational and historic exhibit.

Visitors to the Old Dutch Mill are always welcome.

AUTUMN brings a glorious burst of color to the superb landscape of Mount Emblem. This is one of Nature's most impressive moments which we invite you to enjoy.

You will see acre upon acre of multi-colored effects from our great variety of trees and shrubs each lending its particular hue to the scene.

For such extensive landscaping you could reasonably expect to pay more. Yet our prices are moderate. It costs no more to own the best.

"It is better to have it and not need it—than to need it and not have it."

Site of the
OLD DUTCH MILL
Built in 1850

The DuPage County Historical Society presented an AWARD OF HONOR to Mount Emblem in 1956 for preserving the Old Dutch Mill as an educational and historic exhibit.

Visitors to the Old Dutch Mill are always welcome.

AUTUMN brings a glorious burst of color to the superb landscape of Mount Emblem. This is one of Nature's most impressive moments which we invite you to enjoy.

You will see acre upon acre of multi-colored effects from our great variety of trees and shrubs each lending its particular hue to the scene.

For such extensive landscaping you could reasonably expect to pay more. Yet our prices are moderate. It costs no more to own the best.

Forum Planned On Youth Eyesight

A local forum for educators, nurses and optometrists to discuss visual problems of children and youth is in the planning stages, according to Dr. Conrad E. Mazeski of Mount Prospect.

Dr. Mazeski is president of the Chicago chapter of the Illinois Optometric Association and a member of the state organization's committee on visual problems of children and youth.

He and several educators from the area attended the seventh annual forum on vision and reading conducted by the state optometric association and the American Optometric Ass. in Chicago Nov. 9.

EDUCATORS IN attendance were Mrs. Mable Mitchell and Mrs. Audrey Cline, remedial reading teachers in Mount Prospect; Mrs. Dorothy Ehrke, principal of South School, Prospect Heights, and a representative of Sister Valentine, St. Emily's School, Mount Prospect.

Interest aroused by the forum has led to tentative plans to conduct similar meetings about every two months in this area, Dr. Mazeski said. It is hoped the first one can be held shortly after the first of January, he added.

Because visual difficulties are a common contributing factor to reading problems, Dr. Mazeski explained, the educators were pleased to learn of the optometrists interest.

ONE OF THE forum speakers, Alfred A. Rosenbloom, dean of the Illinois College of Optometry, reported that present visual screening tests in schools miss detecting about 40 per cent of pupils who need eye help. He suggested annual examinations along with the usual physical and dental checkups.

Another speaker, Ralph C. Staiger, executive secretary-treasurer of the International Reading Association, listed objective symptoms in retarded readers. He said 20 per cent or more students have reading problems before they enter high school.

Rare Blood Sought For Bleeding Youth

Richard Beck, 18, of Mount Prospect, a hemophiliac, lies in critical condition at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

The boy entered the hospital Aug. 4, for an operation to remove a cyst from his spine. Following the relatively minor surgery, the boy developed a bleeding condition.

HOSPITAL authorities have been unable to effectively stop the bleeding since the operation, and Beck has used nearly 140 pints of rare AB type blood. This type of blood, which is found in about 3 per cent of the population, cannot be made into plasma or stored for more than 24 hours.

Hospital authorities have issued an appeal for blood donors, who are between 21 and 60 years of age, in good health and without a history of malaria or hepatitis. Donors will be called when the blood is needed, officials said.

PARTICIPATING in the "christening" of the name for what is temporarily known as District No. 3 will be John G. Woods, Arlington Heights president, and John J. Woods, Rolling Meadows mayor.

The District No. 4 name will be introduced by C. O. Schlaver, Mount Prospect mayor; A. R. McIntyre, Wheeling mayor; William J. Farrington, mayor of Buffalo Grove; and LeRoy Kist, president of Prospect Heights District 23 board of education.

Ray Weaver, deputy regional executive for the Boy Scouts of America, will be the principal speaker. Harold English, Barrington, president of the Northwest Suburban Council, will also be present at the dinner which starts with a 6 p. m. business meeting and election of district officers.

Talk on Chile Next In Travel Series

A visit to Chile is on the itinerary for High School District 214 travel and adventure fans in their world tour which will start from the Little Theater at Prospect High School at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 19.

The tour will be conducted by Nicol Smith, author, photographer, lecturer and adventurer. Smith has written five books about the many interesting places he has visited and, according to W. L. Randle, director of Adult Education for the district, he is one of the most popular lecturer-photographers in the Travel and Adventure Series.

Smith's tours concern themselves chiefly with the people of the lands he visits and photographs.

CHILE ITSELF is over 3,000 miles long, yet averages only 100 miles wide. Its northern one-third contains the world's driest desert, where rainfall has neevr been recorded. Its southern one-third contains one of the rainiest regions of the earth. Off its shores are the Pacific's greatest depths, yet only 100 miles away the Andes are the western hemisphere's highest mountains.

Single admissions may be purchased at the door. For information, readers are invited to call CL 3-1700.

Report on Helicopter Survey of Old Orchard

Village Planner Gives 'Guidelines'

A preliminary report on factors to be considered in negotiations with the Old Orchard Corp. before annexation of the country club was presented via slides, films and charts Tuesday night by Tec-Search Inc.

Attending the presentation were members of the Mount Prospect village board, planning commission, and the zoning board of appeals.

The report dealt with general factors under consideration by Tec-Search to arrive at recommendations for revision of the zoning ordinance text in relation to height.

Old Orchard proposes a 20-story lodge-type building, as well as five high-rise apartment buildings and several other buildings in a "planned development."

The village is attempting to study various factors relative to possible annexation of the area through reearch. Presently the village code does not allow buildings of that height. The development would be on a 208-acre tract.

GENE BAUGHMAN, an associate of Tec-Search and planner for the village, led an expedition Nov. 2 in two helicopters over the Old Orchard area, as well as a site south of Mount Prospect which has also been considered for possible "planned development high-rise buildings."

Baughman illustrated his points with films and slides taken from the ground and from the air during the trip.

One helicopter was nearly stationary over the site of the proposed development of the 20-story structure, but at varying altitudes.

Photographers stationed on the ground, one on the country club grounds, another about a quarter mile away and a third five-eights of a mile away, photographed the 'copter at the varying altitudes.

THE IDEA was to show how the appearance of any large structure changes with distance.

For example, the photographer on the grounds proper captured the 'copter at every altitude. The second photographer found the 'copter's position obscured by trees and buildings on a couple of shots, but plainly visible on the third altitude, which was 250 feet.

The third photographer, after moving his position, was able to capture the 'copter on the third level also.

The idea was not to show how hard it was to see the helicopter, but to present an idea of the building's appearance using the helicopter's altitude as the roof level of the building.

THE PRINCIPLE employed was much the same as shutting one eye and sighting on an object several feet away with the other eye.

If a finger is held in front of the object, less of the object is visible the closer to the eye the finger is moved.

The travelogue also portrayed existing high-rise buildings using the same principle. Those viewed were the Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge, and "no-man's land" apartments near Kenilworth.

The motion picture and slide presentations were handled by David Swarthout, director of graphic division, Tec-Search, and by Donald Peto, planning consultant with Tec-Search.

BAUGHMAN, with a title of director of planning division, Tec-Search, set forth several basic guidelines for the village to follow in arriving at their conclusions concerning the proposed development and others that may arise in the future.

Some of these guidelines include:

—That the village building code remain in effect with limitations on floor area within buildings:

—That sewer and water facilities be furnished with adequate capacity for proposed densities;

—That the zoning lot for a planned development be properly defined to permit land owned by a petitioner across a public highway from the tract on which a building is installed to be included as a part of the lot for minimum area calculations and to measure minimum property setbacks;

—That all regulations be based upon development of urban rather than agricultural use;

—THAT DECISIONS on the developments be made on zoning district classifications in the periphery of the property on zoning maps in existence at the time of review;

—That the zoning ordinance retain density standards now used or of a more restrictive classification;

—That section line and quarter section highways have 100 and 80 foot rights of way;

—That proposed standards be arrived at through consideration of environment and regulatory zoning controls for property near the development area whether in an unincorporated area, an adjacent incorporated area or an area under the jurisdiction of another municipality;

—THAT DECISIONS relative to height and setbacks be made in relation to existing setback standards to achieve a comparable effect;

—That public or semi-public land areas be used as bonus provisions with assurance given that the open space will remain open,

—And that all recommendations and conclusions be on the basis of the development of all land within the village for urban use and not as agricultural.

Baughmann emphasized several times during the presentation that it was one of several planned and needed before decisions can be arrived at on the Old Orchard development or any other.

Burglars Enter VFW Home Again

The Arlington Heights VFW Hall, 811 N. Yale Ave., was burglarized again Monday for the third time in the past two months.

The burglar gained entrance to the building on the west side by breaking a window — the same entrance method used in previous burglaries.

A cigarette machine and juke box were looted, and $13.60 was taken from behind the bar.

Police theorize that all burglaries have been the work of one person.

Registration Begins for Playschools

Arlington Heights Park District is now taking registrations for the second session of playschool.

The playschool classes are open to boys and girls three to five years of age. The second session will begin on Dec. 3 and run for 10 weeks until Feb. 20.

The class meets on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursdays from 9 to 11:30 a.m.

THE PLAYSCHOOL is scheduled at three locations: Recreation Park, Pioneer Park and Hasbrook Park. The Hasbrook Park class is presently meeting at Recreation Park, but will move to Hasbrook on completion of the new building.

Those attending the first session may sign up for the second session after Nov. 25.

For further information and to register call or stop in at Pioneer Park office, CL 3-0620.

Report on Helicopter Survey of Old Orchard

Village Planner Gives 'Guidelines'

A preliminary report on factors to be considered in negotiations with the Old Orchard Corp. before annexation of the country club was presented via slides, films and charts Tuesday night by Tec-Search Inc.

Attending the presentation were members of the Mount Prospect village board, planning commission, and the zoning board of appeals.

The report dealt with general factors under consideration by Tec-Search to arrive at recommendations for revision of the zoning ordinance text in relation to height.

Old Orchard proposes a 20-story lodge-type building, as well as five high-rise apartment buildings and several other buildings in a "planned development."

The village is attempting to study various factors relative to possible annexation of the area through reearch. Presently the village code does not allow buildings of that height. The development would be on a 208-acre tract.

GENE BAUGHMAN, an associate of Tec-Search and planner for the village, led an expedition Nov. 2 in two helicopters over the Old Orchard area, as well as a site south of Mount Prospect which has also been considered for possible "planned development high-rise buildings."

Baughman illustrated his points with films and slides taken from the ground and from the air during the trip.

One helicopter was nearly stationary over the site of the proposed development of the 20-story structure, but at varying altitudes.

Photographers stationed on the ground, one on the country club grounds, another about a quarter mile away and a third five-eights of a mile away, photographed the 'copter at the varying altitudes.

THE IDEA was to show how the appearance of any large structure changes with distance.

For example, the photographer on the grounds proper captured the 'copter at every altitude. The second photographer found the 'copter's position obscured by trees and buildings on a couple of shots, but plainly visible on the third altitude, which was 250 feet.

The third photographer, after moving his position, was able to capture the 'copter on the third level also.

The idea was not to show how hard it was to see the helicopter, but to present an idea of the building's appearance using the helicopter's altitude as the roof level of the building.

THE PRINCIPLE employed was much the same as shutting one eye and sighting on an object several feet away with the other eye.

If a finger is held in front of the object, less of the object is visible the closer to the eye the finger is moved.

The travelogue also portrayed existing high-rise buildings using the same principle. Those viewed were the Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge, and "no-man's land" apartments near Kenilworth.

The motion picture and slide presentations were handled by David Swarthout, director of graphic division, Tec-Search, and by Donald Peto, planning consultant with Tec-Search.

BAUGHMAN, with a title of director of planning division, Tec-Search, set forth several basic guidelines for the village to follow in arriving at their conclusions concerning the proposed development and others that may arise in the future.

Some of these guidelines include:

—That the village building code remain in effect with limitations on floor area within buildings:

—That sewer and water facilities be furnished with adequate capacity for proposed densities;

—That the zoning lot for a planned development be properly defined to permit land owned by a petitioner across a public highway from the tract on which a building is installed to be included as a part of the lot for minimum area calculations and to measure minimum property setbacks;

—That all regulations be based upon development of urban rather than agricultural use;

—THAT DECISIONS on the developments be made on zoning district classifications in the periphery of the property on zoning maps in existence at the time of review;

—That the zoning ordinance retain density standards now used or of a more restrictive classification;

—That section line and quarter section highways have 100 and 80 foot rights of way;

—That proposed standards be arrived at through consideration of environment and regulatory zoning controls for property near the development area whether in an unincorporated area, an adjacent incorporated area or an area under the jurisdiction of another municipality;

—THAT DECISIONS relative to height and setbacks be made in relation to existing setback standards to achieve a comparable effect;

—That public or semi-public land areas be used as bonus provisions with assurance given that the open space will remain open,

—And that all recommendations and conclusions be on the basis of the development of all land within the village for urban use and not as agricultural.

Baughmann emphasized several times during the presentation that it was one of several planned and needed before decisions can be arrived at on the Old Orchard development or any other.

Burglars Enter VFW Home Again

The Arlington Heights VFW Hall, 811 N. Yale Ave., was burglarized again Monday for the third time in the past two months.

The burglar gained entrance to the building on the west side by breaking a window — the same entrance method used in previous burglaries.

A cigarette machine and juke box were looted, and $13.60 was taken from behind the bar.

Police theorize that all burglaries have been the work of one person.

Spilled Bottles Cause Road Havoc

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Highway department employes began the big sweep this morning to clear a three - mile section of U. S. 67 strewn with glass early today.

Some 28 autos were damaged by the glass on the highway. Several incurred broken windshields as whole soda bottles smashed through them.

THE CAUSE of the damage was a truck loaded with 1,800 cases of empty bottles bound from Alton, Ill., to somewhere in Kansas. An unofficial estimate set the number of cases which fell from the truck at 500.

A trooper counted 136 cases in one area of the highway which had fallen off the truck.

Highway department workers swept the highway for three to four hours this morning in an attempt to clear it. So much glass had piled up on the shoulder of the road that officials expressed fear the shoulder would have to be resurfaced.

Clark Rules Estate Must Pay Coroner

A coroner should get his fee from the estate of the deceased no matter whether the estate is administered in an Illinois county or in any other state of the Union, Illinois Atty. Gen. William G. Clark has ruled.

If the deceased has no estate or if the claim of the coroner is not paid, Clark's opinion advised State's Attorney Glenn W. Appleton of Mercer county, then the county where the deceased died and the inquest was held is liable.

The coroner, Clark's opinion said, should ascertain if possible at the inquest the residence address of the deceased and within a reasonable time thereafter endeavor to learn whether the deceased left an estate. If so, Clark's opinion said, he should file a claim for the inquest fee. In the event there is no estate or the claim is not paid, the county is liable, Clark's opinion said.

INVESTORS SAVINGS & LOAN ASSOCIATION

A Reflection of the Growing Financial Security of Over Thirty-Five Million Savers Throughout the U.S.A. America's Savings & Loan Associations Now One Hundred Billion Dollars Strong

Last Month . . . the Savings & Loan Business passed the One Hundred Billion Dollar mark in assets!

Only 132 years ago when the savings and loan business had its beginning the U.S.A. was a stripling nation, much of it still wilderness.

The first home loan by a Savings & Loan Association was made to a Lamplighter in a little town in Pennsylvania in 1831. The home is still standing.

Since that time the Savings & Loan business has grown in size with America, until it is now one of the nation's leading financial operations.

Investors Savings & Loan Association, 4353 W. Lawrence Ave., Chicago, at the corner of Kostner Ave., is proud to be a part of this phenomenal growth.

Investors Savings & Loan Association maintains a convenient Parking Lot for customers, just across the street from the entrance on Lawrence Ave., also they invite you to take advantage of their Mail-In Savings Service.

Today, savings and loan associations—known also as cooperative banks and homestead associations . . . make more than a million home loans a year . . . more than all other financial institutions combined.

Investors Savings & Loan Association paid out over one million dollars in dividends in 1962, and offers modern, courteous services and facilities for Mortgage Loans and Insured Savings Accounts that pay dividends as high as Four point Six Per Cent per annum, payable semi-annually . . . All Savings Accounts are insured up to $10,000 by F.S.L.I.C. . . .

Spilled Bottles Cause Road Havoc

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Highway department employes began the big sweep this morning to clear a three - mile section of U. S. 67 strewn with glass early today.

Some 28 autos were damaged by the glass on the highway. Several incurred broken windshields as whole soda bottles smashed through them.

THE CAUSE of the damage was a truck loaded with 1,800 cases of empty bottles bound from Alton, Ill., to somewhere in Kansas. An unofficial estimate set the number of cases which fell from the truck at 500.

A trooper counted 136 cases in one area of the highway which had fallen off the truck.

Highway department workers swept the highway for three to four hours this morning in an attempt to clear it. So much glass had piled up on the shoulder of the road that officials expressed fear the shoulder would have to be resurfaced.

SQUARE DANCE CLUB NEWS

Dorothy Meyer CL 3-2298

ARLINGTON SQUARES

Club Caller Bill Clarke suffered a heart attack prior to last week's dance, and is in Oak Park Hospital. Latest report is that he is considered to be out of danger and making satisfactory progress. It will be a long time, though, before he'll be back at the mike, squarin' 'em up for all his clubs.

Bill has called for the Arlington Squares for all of their nine years and he's also No. 1 man for the Friendly Squares, Dudes and Dolls and Hollywood Squares. Everyone will miss him mightily, but even more they'll be pulling for his complete recovery. Get well wishes help a lot and Bill's in Room 320. 'Nuff sed?

BOB KIM substituted for Bill at last Friday's dance and Arlington Squares are most grateful for Bob's big-hearted response to their short-notice holler for help. He did an extra fine job, lifting everyones' spirits and making them dance their worries away, just the way Bill would want them to.

Part of the night's fun came in the door with some Bustle Bumpers. 'Way last summer some Arlington Squares traveled 70 miles to dance with the Bustle Bumpers and just incidentally to steal their banner. Friday night the Bustle Bumpers came here and retrieved their pennant and now the Arlington Squares say, "Guess we'll have to get some new decorations for the hall."

It sounds as though a new outbreak of banner banditry is in the offing.

The club's next dance is Nov. 22 in South Junior High School, Arlington Heights. The caller will be announced here next week.

SWINGIN' SQUARES

Tomorrow night's dance is a "Turkey Trot" which means fine dancing plus the opportunity to trot home with a Thanksgiving turkey. Club caller Dale Manson promises the kind of a program just right for such an occasion, and round dance leaders, Carl and Marie Peterson, will review "walking to Kansas City," taught at the last dance.

Club officials' report of the Old Timers dance begins with "Heavens be praised, we had a dance when our banner wasn't stolen!" Adding to the remarkable success of the evening was the fine turnout of guests, most of them the former square dance enthusiasts for whom the "old timers" program was planned.

To all one-time dancers who wish to get back in the swing, Swingin' Squares address a reminder about the refresher course soon to start. Co-sponsored by Swingin' Squares, Arlington Squares and Palatine Squares, and in cooperation with the Arlington Heights Park District, the course will be held in Recreation Park Field House, the first four Monday nights in December. Further information may be had by calling the park, Cl 5-8850.

Everyone's invited to join members at the dance tomorrow night. Starting at 8:30 sharp, the Turkey Trot will be held in Recreation Park Field House, 500 E. Miner, Arlington Heights. The club dances the first and third Friday nights of every month and the dancing public is always welcome.

JAMBOREE

This is the last call from the Saints and Swingers of Libertyville. Their annual Jamboree is open to all square dance club members and their callers; it's coming Sunday afternoon, from 1 to 5 p.m., and will be held in Highland School, 310 W. Rockland, Libertyville.

Callers Jim Shiporski, Lenny Roos, Ed Hempel and Tessa Malopsy will keep things moving in two halls, one for new dancers and one for intermediates. (A14

Modern Etiquette

Q. When a bride's own father or mother is not living, and she has a step-parent, how are her wedding invitations worded?

A. "Mr. and Mrs. Stanley P. Martin request the honour of your presence at the marriage of her (or, his) daughter," and if she has a step-father, you of course include her real father's surname.

Music Teachers Reveal Programs

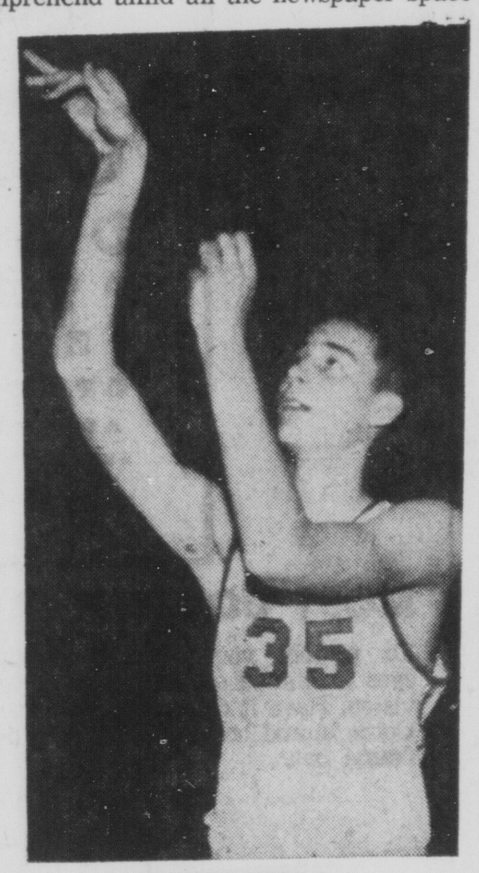
KICKIN' IT AROUND

Another Cage Campaign Approaches; R-B Tough

CONTRARY TO POPULAR BELIEF, as the calendar still suggests fall and football, talk in the corner barber shop these days doesn't restrict itself to the weekend exploits of the Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers, Michigan State and Illinois, and Roger Staubach and George Bork.

It may be difficult to comprehend amid all the newspaper space currently devoted to football, but there is another sport anxious to start sharing some of those headlines.



TOM KONDLA

High school basketball is just around the corner, and folks in these parts always look forward to those four months of hardwood hysteria which reach a stirring climax in late March.

Schoolboy basketball often is labeled as the most exciting prep sport, the game in which the most people become absorbed. It contains more action than any other high school team sport. The lead changes hands with rapidity. It's easy for the spectator to follow. The fan feels he is a part of the action, and he tends to identify more readily with both the coaches and players.

Color is added to basketball through the tournaments. Fans start talking about possible state finalists as early as the first week of the season. The tournaments offer new starts to those clubs which have trouble leaving the gate in November or sputter in January and February.

Because of the tournaments, basketball fans develop and even seek a knowledge of the state's classiest quintets. A personal favorite may be bumped early but with an adequate background on the over-all field you're properly ready to be enthralled by state tourney play.

Every year about this time fans start kicking around names of both players and teams who are expected to grab most of the big headlines in the upcoming campaign. This is certain to encourage some arguments, but there is some agreement this year about possible hardwood hot-shots.

And you don't have to travel too far to find the club labeled most likely to succeed.

Riverside-Brookfield's Bulldogs of the West Suburban Conference boast three returning starters from a 17-5 outfit and a bona fide All-State candidate in 6-foot-7 Tommy Kondla.

"We may be a better club than last year but for two reasons may not win the title," head man Ron Nikcevich says. "Number one is that all the other teams will be pointing to R-B and number two is that the team seems to lack the depth it had last year."

But with a front line that should go 6-7, 6-3, 6-3 and a clever backcourt operator in swift Randy Hrkel the Bulldogs appear to have the horses to give everyone a rough time in cage circles in 1963-64.

Marty Berg (6-3), Kondla (6-7), and Hrkel (5-10) are the three returning regulars at Riverside. Craig Timko (6-3) saw extensive action as a reserve last winter and should fit nicely in the Bulldogs' front line.

Graduation took co-captains Jim Fickas, a guard, and Al Moravec, a rugged forward, and highly regarded reserve Jerry Dancik. "They'll be rough to replace," Nikcevich emphasizes.

Kondla is the big man in the Riverside hardwood picture, and you may have to go some to find a better pivot in the state. Tommy averaged 19.9 in league warfare last winter but lost out in the race for scoring honors in the final game. The rangy Bulldog topped 30 on two occasions with 31 against York and 30 against Arlington. He eclipsed 20 in six conference outings and was never held below double figures.

Riverside is tough. It wouldn't surprise too many people if the Bulldogs emerged as the strongest quintet in the Chicago area.

R-B fans, naturally excited over this year's prospects, will get their first look at the 1963-64 club tomorrow night (Friday) when the Bulldogs journey to Evergreen Park for a non-league encounter.

Ten Years Ago This Week . . .

ARLINGTON HIGH SCHOOL continued preparations for the season opener in basketball. Coach Howard Lester was still undecided about a starting alignment although he indicated that his top prospects were seniors Bob Turner, George Skelton, Roger Thomas, and Larry Slinkard and juniors Wayne Mueller, Jack Riggs, and Denny Maher.

The wrestlers also were busy preparing for the mat campaign with head man Dick Mudge encouraging more candidates at the lower levels.

Skeet Shoot Set For Local Brigade

A combined turkey and skeet shoot will be held at the 45th Artillery Brigade in Arlington Heights on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 24, the Sportsman's Club at the base announced this week.

The shoot is open to the public, and each entry will be allowed up to seven and one-half shots.

"We will have shot guns available and ammunition for sale," Sgt. Walter Neas, director of the shoot, announced.

Hams and turkeys will be given as prizes for the competition which will be held on the post at the air strip. Tickets will be available on the day of the shoot.

Anyone interested in additional information may contact Sgt. Nease after 5 p.m. at 259-1534.

Complete statistics for the varsity football teams at Arlington, Prospect, Forest View, and St. Viator High Schools will be presented next week.

McMillan, Murphy, Kaspari Honored on All-Star Squad; Maine Dominates Selections

Powerful Maine West, unbeaten champion of the Mid-Suburban Conference, captured 11 of 26 positions on the league's all-star football team announced this week.

Kenny Olson's high-scoring Warriors, author of 143 points in four Mid Suburban outings, placed three ends, two tackles, two guards, a center, and three backs on the post-season honor squad selected by the division coaches.

The five loop schools each earned slots on the all-conference team with Deerfield, runnerup in the title chase, also runnerup in the balloting with five positions.

Rounding out the all-star team are Glenbrook North with four berths, Prospect with two, and Forest View with one.

AREA PERFORMERS honored are halfbacks Jim McMillan of Prospect and Ralph Kaspari of Forest View and guard Bill Murphy of Prospect. Prospect tackle Lynn Nelson and quarterback Dave White earned honorable mention consideration.

Size isn't lacking on this 26-man Mid Suburban all-star team. Five of the linemen go 217 or better and the three giant tackles average a mere 234 pounds per man. Four of those five 200-plus linemen are from Maine West, which says a lot in regard to the one-sided flag race.

The Warriors picked up three of the four end slots with Ray Bartholomew (182), Les Jannusch (183), and Earl White (151). Deerfield's Art "Tee" Newbrough (175), one of the finest pass receivers in the area, rounds out the flanks.

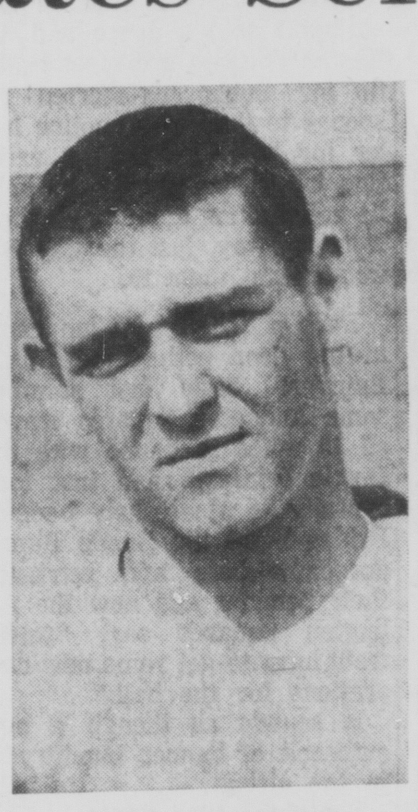
Richard Page (175) of Glenbrook North and Dick Lunsford (197) of Maine West fill the two all-star center berths.

Nine backs were chosen by the division coaches with Maine West (who else?) boasting a trio in Johnny Gabbert, Chuck Esposito, and conference scoring champ Chuck Curren.



BILL MURPHY
Knight Captain

OTHER BACKS on the all-stars are McMillan of Prospect, Kaspari of Forest View, John Lindquist and Ricky Moore of Deerfield, and Don Johanson and Del Mackie of Glenbrook North.

Twenty-three of the 26 Mid Suburban all-stars are seniors. Only underclassmen are juniors Nannini of Deerfield and Curren of Maine West and sophomore Lindquist of Deerfield.

You can't argue with the selections of McMillan, Murphy, and Kaspari on the all-star team.

McMillan, a 5-10, 165-pounder, rolled up 631 yards rushing this season for a 6.6 per carry average and scored ten touchdowns. He pulled in 11 passes for 120 yards and had one 90 yard kickoff return for a score.

"JIM HAD the respect of all the coaches at the all-star meeting," Prospect's head man J. O. Jackson said. "He played both ways for us and did a fine job. Mac was a real leader. He was hurt early in the season but once he got back on a full-time basis he was outstanding.

"He doesn't have great speed," J.O. continued, "but he has fine balance. He's real hard to bring down."

McMillan, selected the most valuable player on the Knight squad, enjoyed his biggest game rushing in the finale against Marian Central when he racked up 119 yards and three touchdowns.

MURPHY, THE rugged Prospect guard, also drew plaudits from Jackson. "Bill was a hard worker, another team leader," J.O. praised. "He called our defensive signals as a middle linebacker."

Jackson sees Murphy as a

MVPs Meet at Banquet

GEORGE BORK (right), the greatest passing quarterback in college football history and certainly the most valuable player on Northern Illinois University's Huskies, greets another most valuable, Arlington High's Tom Fagerson, at the school's fall sports banquet last week. Bork, an Arlington graduate, and his coach Howard Fletcher were special guests at the awards night. Fagerson, a senior halfback, was an all-league selection and the squad's most valuable player for 1963.

Jones 4th in League

St. Ignatius edged St. Patrick for team honors Saturday morning in the varsity division of the Chicagoland Prep League cross country meet at Riis Park.

The champs posted a winning total of 40 markers for a five-point bulge over the runnerup Shamrocks.

Rounding out the team slots were DeLaSalle (60), St. Mel (108), St. Viator and St. George (152), and St. Joseph (174).

Mike Cunningham of St. Patrick was an easy individual winner with a snappy 9:47 clocking over the Riis Park course.

Mike Jones gave St. Viator its top finish with an impressive fourth. Also scoring for Bob Martineau's Lions were John Lightner (30), Jerry Pachard (25), Mike Sheetz (39), and Jim Kiefer (44).

"Two of our boys (Mike Smith and Dan Mulcahy) had to drop out with bad legs," Martineau reported.

Three Squads Open Nov. 22

Wissen Only New Head Coach in Area Camps

by BOB FRISK

No longer is the major concern at area high schools over the progress of a quarterback, speed of a halfback, or size of a tackle.

Today, they're talking in terms of forwards, centers, and guards . . . zone presses and man-to-man defenses . . . rebounding position.

Basketball has moved into the athletic spotlight with the openers only a week away for three of four area aggregations.

PRACTICE SESSIONS have been under way for two weeks in most camps with a host of returning lettermen on hand for another campaign of hardwood warfare.

Over-all, there are 18 lettermen in the four camps with Forest View and St. Viator, featuring three-year schools last winter, accounting for 13. Ken Arneson has eight veterans back at Forest View, and Ron Feiereisel currently is working with five at St. Viator.

Prospect's Dick Kinneman is counting on three vets to bolster the Knight attack, and Arlington's Ted Wissen, a newcomer in head coaching ranks, has two returning monogram winners.

Three of the four area entries are pointing toward openers on Friday, Nov. 22, with Arlington High slated to kick off its schedule on Wednesday, Nov. 27.

Forest View faces games on both Friday and Saturday of that first weekend. The Falcons host Rich Central Friday, Nov. 22, and journey to Palatine Saturday, Nov. 23.

St. Viator opens at Fenton and Prospect hosts Evanston on Friday, Nov. 22.

Arlington's cage lidlifter is the traditional Thanksgiving Eve headliner with neighboring Palatine.

IN TERMS of varsity experience Forest View's Arneson is in the best shape with eight lettermen, but Ken is the first to admit that the season still remains a question-mark.

The Falcons won only two of 21 last winter, but did boast one of the area's top scorers in Joe Mueller, a 6-foot-1 package of perpetual motion. Also back for another season are Dick Anderson (6-4), Brian Karp (6-5), Garron Kokai (6-2), Russ Barger (6-1), Chip Julin (6-4), Bill Reising (6-3), and Bob Benavides (5-10).

Mueller was practically the whole show last season, but should have some more help in the next four months. Joe's a good one though as indicated by his healthy 20.3 per game average in 15 league outings as a junior.

Arneson is working with 38 boys at the varsity and junior-varsity levels.

FINDING replacements for Charley Close and Gary Brodnan is the big problem for Wissen as he prepares his first Cardinal five for the opener with Palatine.

Close and Brodnan worked in the backcourt for three years at Arlington and combined for more than 1500 points. Close holds the AHS career scoring mark of 85 markers.

Wissen may reach into the lower levels for his starting guards as there is some promising talent available. Ted does have some returning size and experience in his front line with letter winners Paul Splittorff (6-4) and Dan Sherman (6-2) and junior Bob Connors (6-4).

Arlington finished 12-10 overall last winter with a 7-7 mark in West Suburban play.

OVER IN Prospect's camp Dave White (5-10), Ron Moehling (6-1), and Rich Freyman (6-2) are the returning lettermen with White, a clever backcourt operator, the squad's most valuable as a junior.

A combined turkey and skeet shoot will be held at the 45th Artillery Brigade in Arlington Heights on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 24, the Sportsman's Club at the base announced this week.

McMillan, Murphy, Kaspari Honored on All-Star Squad; Maine Dominates Selections

Powerful Maine West, unbeaten champion of the Mid-Suburban Conference, captured 11 of 26 positions on the league's all-star football team announced this week.

Kenny Olson's high-scoring Warriors, author of 143 points in four Mid Suburban outings, placed three ends, two tackles, two guards, a center, and three backs on the post-season honor squad selected by the division coaches.

The five loop schools each earned slots on the all-conference team with Deerfield, runnerup in the title chase, also runnerup in the balloting with five positions.

Rounding out the all-star team are Glenbrook North with four berths, Prospect with two, and Forest View with one.

AREA PERFORMERS honored are halfbacks Jim McMillan of Prospect and Ralph Kaspari of Forest View and guard Bill Murphy of Prospect. Prospect tackle Lynn Nelson and quarterback Dave White earned honorable mention consideration.

Size isn't lacking on this 26-man Mid Suburban all-star team. Five of the linemen go 217 or better and the three giant tackles average a mere 234 pounds per man. Four of those five 200-plus linemen are from Maine West, which says a lot in regard to the one-sided flag race.

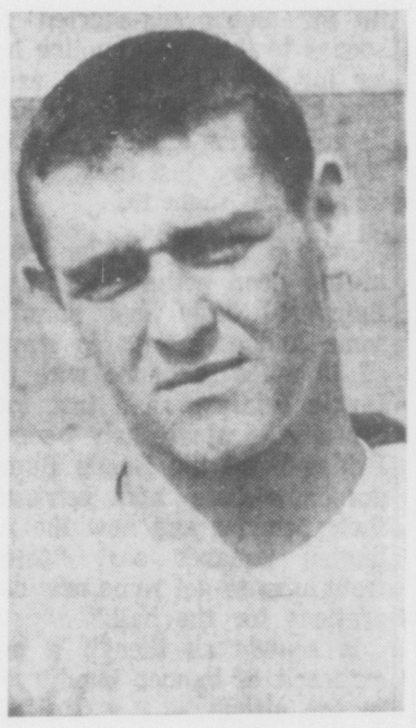
MAINE'S Dale Luzinski (230) and Bob Unroe (228) join Deerfield's Tom Brown (245) at tackle with the guards manned by Dave Agerter (217) and Volker Engel (220) of Maine West, Bruce Nannini (175) of Deerfield, Wayne Carmignani (180) of Glenbrook North, and Murphy (180) of Prospect.

Richard Page (175) of Glenbrook North and Dick Lunsford (197) of Maine West fill the two all-star center berths.

Nine backs were chosen by the division coaches with Maine West (who else?) boasting a trio in Johnny Gabbert, Chuck Esposito, and conference scoring champ Chuck Curren.



BILL MURPHY
Knight Captain

OTHER BACKS on the all-stars are McMillan of Prospect, Kaspari of Forest View, John Lindquist and Ricky Moore of Deerfield, and Don Johanson and Del Mackie of Glenbrook North.

Twenty-three of the 26 Mid Suburban all-stars are seniors. Only underclassmen are juniors Nannini of Deerfield and Curren of Maine West and sophomore Lindquist of Deerfield.

You can't argue with the selections of McMillan, Murphy, and Kaspari on the all-star team.

McMillan, a 5-10, 165-pounder, rolled up 631 yards rushing this season for a 6.6 per carry average and scored ten touchdowns. He pulled in 11 passes for 120 yards and had one 90 yard kickoff return for a score.

"JIM HAD the respect of all the coaches at the all-star meeting," Prospect's head man J. O. Jackson said. "He played both ways for us and did a fine job. Mac was a real leader. He was hurt early in the season but once he got back on a full-time basis he was outstanding.

"He doesn't have great speed," J.O. continued, "but he has fine balance. He's real hard to bring down."

McMillan, selected the most valuable player on the Knight squad, enjoyed his biggest game rushing in the finale against Marian Central when he racked up 119 yards and three touchdowns.

MURPHY, THE rugged Prospect guard, also drew plaudits from Jackson. "Bill was a hard worker, another team leader," J.O. praised. "He called our defensive signals as a middle linebacker."

MVPs Meet at Banquet

GEORGE BORK (right), the greatest passing quarterback in college football history and certainly the most valuable player on Northern Illinois University's Huskies, greets another most valuable, Arlington High's Tom Fagerson, at the school's fall sports banquet last week. Bork, an Arlington graduate, and his coach Howard Fletcher were special guests at the awards night. Fagerson, a senior halfback, was an all-league selection and the squad's most valuable player for 1963.

Jones 4th in League

St. Ignatius edged St. Patrick for team honors Saturday morning in the varsity division of the Chicagoland Prep League cross country meet at Riis Park.

The champs posted a winning total of 40 markers for a five-point bulge over the runnerup Shamrocks.

Rounding out the team slots were DeLaSalle (60), St. Mel (108), St. Viator and St. George (152), and St. Joseph (174).

Mike Cunningham of St. Patrick was an easy individual winner with a snappy 9:47 clocking over the Riis Park course.

Mike Jones gave St. Viator its top finish with an impressive fourth. Also scoring for Bob Martineau's Lions were John Lightner (30), Jerry Pachard (25), Mike Sheetz (39), and Jim Kiefer (44).

"Two of our boys (Mike Smith and Dan Mulcahy) had to drop out with bad legs," Martineau reported.

Wissen Only New Head Coach in Area Camps

by BOB FRISK

No longer is the major concern at area high schools over the progress of a quarterback, speed of a halfback, or size of a tackle.

Today, they're talking in terms of forwards, centers, and guards . . . zone presses and man-to-man defenses . . . rebounding position.

Basketball has moved into the athletic spotlight with the openers only a week away for three of four area aggregations.

PRACTICE SESSIONS have been under way for two weeks in most camps with a host of returning lettermen on hand for another campaign of hardwood warfare.

Over-all, there are 18 lettermen in the four camps with Forest View and St. Viator, featuring three-year schools last winter, accounting for 13. Ken Arneson has eight veterans back at Forest View, and Ron Feiereisel currently is working with five at St. Viator.

Prospect's Dick Kinneman is counting on three vets to bolster the Knight attack, and Arlington's Ted Wissen, a newcomer in head coaching ranks, has two returning monogram winners.

Three of the four area entries are pointing toward openers on Friday, Nov. 22, with Arlington High slated to kick off its schedule on Wednesday, Nov. 27.

Forest View faces games on both Friday and Saturday of that first weekend. The Falcons host Rich Central Friday, Nov. 22, and journey to Palatine Saturday, Nov. 23.

St. Viator opens at Fenton and Prospect hosts Evanston on Friday, Nov. 22.

Arlington's cage lidlifter is the traditional Thanksgiving Eve headliner with neighboring Palatine.

IN TERMS of varsity experience Forest View's Arneson is in the best shape with eight lettermen, but Ken is the first to admit that the season still remains a question-mark.

The Falcons won only two of 21 last winter, but did boast one of the area's top scorers in Joe Mueller, a 6-foot-1 package of perpetual motion. Also back for another season are Dick Anderson (6-4), Brian Karp (6-5), Garron Kokai (6-2), Russ Barger (6-1), Chip Julin (6-4), Bill Reising (6-3), and Bob Benavides (5-10).

Mueller was practically the whole show last season, but should have some more help in the next four months. Joe's a good one though as indicated by his healthy 20.3 per game average in 15 league outings as a junior.

Arneson is working with 38 boys at the varsity and junior-varsity levels.

FINDING replacements for Charley Close and Gary Brodnan is the big problem for Wissen as he prepares his first Cardinal five for the opener with Palatine.

Close and Brodnan worked in the backcourt for three years at Arlington and combined for more than 1500 points. Close holds the AHS career scoring mark of 85 markers.

Wissen may reach into the lower levels for his starting guards as there is some promising talent available. Ted does have some returning size and experience in his front line with letter winners Paul Splittorff (6-4) and Dan Sherman (6-2) and junior Bob Connors (6-4).

Arlington finished 12-10 overall last winter with a 7-7 mark in West Suburban play.

OVER IN Prospect's camp Dave White (5-10), Ron Moehling (6-1), and Rich Freyman (6-2) are the returning lettermen with White, a clever backcourt operator, the squad's most valuable as a junior.

Cagers Prep For Openers

The presence of Moehling and White give Kinneman his 1-2 scorers of 1962-63. Freyman saw limited action, but did pop in 56 markers with some nifty reserve chores.

Kinneman guided his Knights to a snappy 21-5 mark last winter and berth in the regional finale. But Dick lost some good boys via graduation in captain Kenny Groh, Bob Hope, Ron Koepke, and Jim Hogarty.

RON FEIEREISEL, head man of the St. Viator High School cage fortunes, has his starting team intact, but he's faced with what appears to be a thin bench.

Sophomore guard Joe Sanchez, a top reserve with the varsity as a freshman, is ineligible and will be sidelined until Jan. 24. John Kidd, a highly regarded junior, didn't report.

Keying Feiereisel's attack again will be senior guards Jim Murray and Ken Hoffman with help up front from Jim Vidt, Chuck Grandt, and Joe Heitz. That served as the Lions' starting alignment last winter.

Murray was St. Viator's leading point-producer in 1962-63 with 328 markers in 19 games, a 17.3 standard. Hoffman dialed 218.

possible "sleeper" for college scouts. "I think Bill has the potential," he asserted, "and he's going to grow. He should go 200 or better as a college player."

Murphy was chosen captain of the Prospect squad by his teammates.

Honorable mention selections Nelson and White also were key performers on the Prospect eleven.

"LYNN PLAYED offensive right tackle and some defensive tackle," Jackson said. "He was competing in a rough position or he might have made the all-conference team. Lynn was up from the Jayvees and did an excellent job for us. The backs liked to run on his side of the line."

White, who did some alternating with Mike Phillips at quarterback, also played halfback on defense. "Dave developed into a fine passer," Jackson praised, "and was a very good defensive back."

Forest View's lone all-star, halfback Kaspari, enjoyed two fine varsity seasons with the Falcons. He gained over 900 yards rushing in those two campaigns and scored 11 touchdowns.

Kaspari's statistics weren't as glittering this fall as they were in the 1962 campaign, but he still showed 467 yards and three touchdowns in 74 cracks. The 5-foot-10, 170-pounder also pulled in 15 passes for 154 yards.

"They started keying on him," backfield coach Dick Ohl pointed out. "He was a pretty well marked player this year. But he still did a fine job."

HEAD MAN BOB Scott calls Kaspari "a very coachable boy who definitely can play college football."

"He's not exceptionally fast," Bob remarked, "but he does have adequate speed. He went both ways for us, playing corner back on defense."

Scott singles out the East Leyden game this fall as Kaspari's best although the senior back also turned in a sparkling performance against Deerfield when he personally outgained the entire Warrior team.

"Ralph played all three positions for us," Scott summed up.

"Actually, our system was built around him."

Injuries hampered Kaspari in his senior year but he still was a near-unanimous choice on the all-star aggregation.

Chiefs Top Travelers In Finale

In a preview of the Nov. 24 title match in the Central States Football League, the Manitowoc Chiefs edged the Elmhurst Travelers 7-0 in Sunday's regular season finale at Manitowoc, Wis.

The Chief victory gave both division champions a record of 7-3.

A second period touchdown pass from Dick Oregarde to Jerry Tadych covering 46 yards was the only score of the defensive battle.

It was a frustrating day for the Travelers, who penetrated the Chief 15 yard line four times, but failed to score. The lack of an aerial attack hurt the Travelers badly.

JUST DOGS

by DAVE TERRILL

The Ancient Ones - -

Perhaps the oldest and rarest breed of dog in the world, the Ibizan, hound of the Pharaohs, now boasts a total population in this country of about 100 dogs, which are living images of those carved on the tombs of Egyptian Pharaohs, can outrun a deer or rabbit with little or no effort.

Found by tourists visiting the Spanish island of Ibiza in the Mediterranean, at the time of their "discovery" there were, perhaps, not more than a couple of hundred specimens alive, for the people of the island are rather poor and feed the dogs a diet which consisted mainly of fish heads . . . something on which no breed could thrive.

At the present time, the largest concentration of the breed in this country seems to be in Florida, where there are 11. This is probably due in no small part, to the fact that the secretary of the Ibizan Hound Club of America, Stetson Kennedy, lives in Mandarin.

IN AN ARTICLE about the breed, Kennedy has reported some rather interesting facts relative to hunting. The dogs work in packs when required and have an excellent sense of smell, along with even sharper faculties for sound and sight. They also have a highly developed communications system, including different barks to signal hitting a trail, flushed game, pursuit and treed.

Appearance wise, the dog has an average width head, long muzzle, eyes set close, long erect ears. The coat is short and color is typical hound with a combination of brown and white. Standing about 20 inches high on an average, they have one requirement, and that is room in which to exercise. . . and lots of it.

Fashion note - - -

In the women's section of this issue of the paper, there is an article on an up and coming fashion show at which a number of dogs owned by area residents will be handled by the models as they are showing the latest styles.

This use of dogs in fashion work has been going on for many years and be it "high-fashion," or sports-wear, the dogs seem to add something to the overall picture.

Busy season - - -

It's not only time for hunting, but also time for shows in general. The field trial folks are really going strong. The AKC Kennel Gazette has lists on more than two pages, all in small print, of just Beagle trials. The Weimaraner Club had a trial the end of October, near Elmhurst, and the Western Irish Setter Club finished one at Joliet on Nov. 3.

In obedience, the next shows in the area will be Lyons Township at La Grange, on Nov. 24. This will be followed by the Rand Park trial on Dec. 1, in Des Plaines.

Two specialty shows coming up on Nov. 17 are the Western Boston Terrier Club, at the Lake Motel Exhibition Hall, and the Chihuahua Club of America, at the Shoreland Hotel, both in Chicago.

Barks & Bays - - -

Guess winter weather has arrived. As this column was being written the wind had changed and with it came a few flakes of snow. Hope you have "Slugger's" outside house ready with the storm windows on and some warm bedding inside.

Lancers Cited

Rick Schimmel and Norm Pfortmiller, former Lake Park athletes, were cited by Cornell college coach Jerry Clark for their play in the Rams' 14-12 victory over Coe last Saturday.

Schimmel, a sophomore end from Itasca, was awarded the game ball. Not only did he snare four passes including the game winning TD aerial, he was outstanding on defense.

Pfortmiller, a Roselle junior, was a member of the Ram defensive unit that five times stopped the Kohawks inside the Cornell 20 yard line.

Field Hockey Tourney Slated For Maine West

The annual Midwest Women's Field Hockey Tournament will be held at Maine West in Des Plaines Nov. 16 and 17.

The tournament, which will be hosted by the North Shore Hockey Association, will be composed of field hockey teams representing clubs from Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Iowa. These teams will compete against each other from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16., and from 8 a.m. until noon on Sun., Nov. 17.

The highlight of the two day tourney occurs after the selection committee names the 22 best players to form Midwest I and Midwest II teams. These two teams then play around 2 p.m. Sunday.

Many of the girls named to these teams will then represent Midwest, and compete for All American honors at the national tournament held over Thanksgiving week-end in Rochester, N. Y.

It is from these tournaments that the best U. S. Field Hockey players are found to represent the United States against other countries. Last year the U. S. Touring Team played All-England in Wembley Stadium in London before 50,000 spectators.

Eagles Whip Raiders to Clinch 2nd

The Glen Ellyn Eagles sewed up second place in the Northwest Suburban Junior Football League last Sunday when they whipped the Hoffman Raiders, 26-13.

The Eagles consistently gained on a power sweep series and halfback John Anderson worked it for touchdown runs of 10, 16 and 20 yards. The fourth Eagle touchdown came on a blocked punt.

Raider star Barry Alexa scored both of his club's touchdowns, one of a 40 yard dash, the other on a swing pass from Paul Witkowski.

All four of the Hoffman losses have come at the hands of North Austin and Glen Ellyn, the top two teams in the league.

The Raiders close their season Sunday at Addison.

Too Much Talent

At the all-conference meeting last week, North Suburban coaches named an all-star team in excess of the number provided for by a league rule that states the All-Conference teams are not to exceed twice the number of boys that ordinarily constitute a team (22 for football). Therefore, the team they selected is subject to revision by the league administrators and has not been released to date.

Lions Fall

Boylan Central of Rockford hammered St. Viator's sophomore football team Sunday afternoon, 33-7, handing the Lions their first loss of the season.

It was St. Viator's first game in over a month and the layoff obviously affected the squad's performance.

Jim Mikes counted the Lions' only touchdown when he pulled in a two-yard pass from Mike Campana.

Tom Hansen's sophs finished with a 3-1-1 record.

Skating Club Meeting Set For Nov. 22

The sixth annual kick-off meeting of the Mount Prospect Speed Skating club will be held on Friday evening, Nov. 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lions Memorial Park fieldhouse in Mount Prospect.

Anyone from the Mount Prospect area who is interested in learning about speed skating is urged to attend this meeting. Boys and girls seven years of age and up are eligible to participate in the several classes of speed skating competition sanctioned by the state and national associations.

Novice skaters joining the Mount Prospect club will receive their instructions and coaching from former Chicago area skating great Herman Haenisch, and will work alongside several National and State, Indoor and Outdoor, medal winners who have earned for Mount Prospect an enviable reputation in this winter sport.

MOUNT PROSPECT club members from all classes, including novices, are already hard at work during their reserved practice sessions on Friday evenings from 6 to 7 at the Polar Dome in Dundee.

They are preparing for the first Indoor meet of the season to be held at the Polar Dome on Dec. 1 under the sponsorship of the Amateur Skating Assn. of Illinois.

This marks the beginning of a full schedule of National, State and Club sponsored meets for the Mount Prospect speedsters.

AN INTERESTING program has been arranged for the Kick-Off meeting. Several distinguished speed skating personalties and illustrious medal winners will be on hand. Color films of the Mount Prospect Winter Carnival, recognized as one of the finest meets of the season, will be shown.

An excellent collection of the trophies and medals that have been won will be on display. Refreshments will be served. There is no charge.

Mount Prospect's Red Rush Signed For Loyola Games

Wresley "Red" Rush, 606 South Owens, Mount Prospect, has been signed by WBBM Radio to broadcast the Loyola University basketball games. The station has obtained exclusive radio rights to all Loyola home and away games with a total of 25 scheduled, beginning Monday, December 2, when Loyola meets North Dakota University.

Red was most recently with WCFL, Chicago, where he reported the Loyola games last season. He entered broadcasting in 1954 as a disk jockey at KCSB, San Bernardino, California, and in a short time became one of the most popular radio personalities on the West Coast.

His first taste of professional sportscasting came quite by accident, while still a pre-legal student at the University of Southern California. He attended a Harlem Globetrotters basketball game at the local auditorium, and when the announcer failed to show up, Red volunteered to handle the game. From that moment on, he abandoned his law studies, to concentrate on radio.

He did all the Minneapolis Lakers' basketball games over station WLOL, and had his own nightly sports show on KSTP-TV, also in Minneapolis, in 1958. Red broadcast the San Francisco Seals baseball games over station KYA in 1957, and that same year was named Sports Director of KPOA, Honolulu.

A native of Long Beach, California, Red, 36, is married to the former Nancy Hawkins, also a Californian. They have two children - Casey, 10, and Cathy, who is nine.

St. Raymond's Wins League Opener, 29-21

St. Raymond's of Mount Prospect launched basketball play in the Northwest Catholic Grammar School division with an impressive 29-21 victory over St. Monica's of Carpentersville Sunday afternoon.

Operating in the cage league for the first time, St. Raymond's held a 20-9 halftime advantage.

Mike Cunningham paced the winner's balanced attack with eight points, and he sparkled on defense. Also chipping in points for coach Jim O'Donnell's outfit were Tim Moore (6), Tom Lehrke (4), 'Chico' Sophie (4), Tom Sheppard (2), Steve Hartung (2), and Mike Sander (1).

O'Donnell praised the squad in its opening game.

"They actually surprised me," he said. "There had been only two practices before the game. They played well on both offense and defense."

O'Donnell cleared the bench in the victory with 15 boys playing.

The all-day affair will be an "all you can eat" service. Funds raised will be used to meet additional expenses in the Falcon Booster Club school program. The school enrollment this year has increased from 1500 to about 2500 students.

Menu for the pancake meal consists of pancakes, sausages, syrup, butter, sugar, coffee or milk.

Tickets will be available at the door of the Forest View High School cafeteria. They are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12.

Prospect High Seeking Games For JV Squad

Prospect High School has two openings in its 1964 junior-varsity football schedule.

Athletic Director Dick Kinneman has announced that the Knights will travel on either Friday or Saturday, Sept. 18-19, or Friday and Saturday, Oct. 16-17.

"We would like to play on the road," Kinneman said, "but it could be against either another junior-varsity team or a three-year school."

Kinneman did stress that he would prefer road games.

Any school interested should contact Kinneman at Prospect High School (CLearbrook 5-9700).

Travelers May Drop From Loop

George Kulton, general manager of the Elmhurst Travelers, said today his team may pull out of the Central States Football League.

The Travelers have won five league titles in the last eight seasons and meet the Manitowoc Chiefs Nov. 17 for the 1963 title.

"We may decide to sell out," said Kulton who voiced dissatisfaction with continued complaints from the other five teams in the league about Elmhurst's game schedule.

Kulton said because many players on his team are coaches at area high schools, they play on Sundays.

"It has become tiresome to listen to the wrangling over our scheduling at meetings," said Kulton.

He said a few colleges in Illinois have shown interest in buying the team's football equipment and the club may accept the offers.

Rolling Meadows Boys' Baseball

Planning for the 1963-64 Rolling Meadows Boys' Baseball season is under way.

Officers of the program are Bob Davidson, president; Frank Coppoletta, vice president; Roy Manning, secretary; Rudy Balek, treasurer; Bob Batchelor, player agent of the National League; and Will Ernst, player agent of the American League.

Many people do not realize that league activities continue during the fall and winter months, a full 12-months project.

Some of the off-season activities are the general planning of the playing season, selection of managers, purchasing and repairing of equipment, establishing the various rules and regulations governing the organization, and the planning of fund raising activities.

All fathers of boys participating in league activites and any other interested adults are urged to join the association. Meetings are held the first Monday of the month at 8 p.m. at the Bank of Rolling Meadows.

For any additional information, call Lee Jacobs, CLearbrook 5-5479.

The presence of Moehling and White give Kinneman his 1-2 scorers of 1962-63. Freyman saw limited action, but did pop in 56 markers with some nifty reserve chores.

Kinneman guided his Knights to a snappy 21-5 mark last winter and berth in the regional finale. But Dick lost some good boys via graduation in captain Kenny Groh, Bob Hope, Ron Koepke, and Jim Hogarty.

RON FEIEREISEL, head man of the St. Viator High School cage fortunes, has his starting team intact, but he's faced with what appears to be a thin bench.

Sophomore guard Joe Sanchez, a top reserve with the varsity as a freshman, is ineligible and will be sidelined until Jan. 24. John Kidd, a highly regarded junior, didn't report.

Keying Feiereisel's attack again will be senior guards Jim Murray and Ken Hoffman with help up front from Jim Vidt, Chuck Grandt, and Joe Heitz. That served as the Lions' starting alignment last winter.

Murray was St. Viator's leading point-producer in 1962-63 with 328 markers in 19 games, a 17.3 standard. Hoffman dialed 218.

MID-SUBURBAN ALL-STARS

possible "sleeper" for college scouts. "I think Bill has the potential," he asserted, "and he's going to grow. He should go 200 or better as a college player."

Murphy was chosen captain of the Prospect squad by his teammates.

Honorable mention selections Nelson and White also were key performers on the Prospect eleven.

"LYNN PLAYED offensive right tackle and some defensive tackle," Jackson said. "He was competing in a rough position or he might have made the all-conference team. Lynn was up from the Jayvees and did an excellent job for us. The backs liked to run on his side of the line."

White, who did some alternating with Mike Phillips at quarterback, also played halfback on defense. "Dave developed into a fine passer," Jackson praised, "and was a very good defensive back."

Forest View's lone all-star, halfback Kaspari, enjoyed two fine varsity seasons with the Falcons. He gained over 900 yards rushing in those two campaigns and scored 11 touchdowns.

Kaspari's statistics weren't as glittering this fall as they were in the 1962 campaign, but he still showed 467 yards and three touchdowns in 74 cracks. The 5-foot-10, 170-pounder also pulled in 15 passes for 154 yards.

"They started keying on him," backfield coach Dick Ohl pointed out. "He was a pretty well marked player this year. But he still did a fine job."

HEAD MAN BOB Scott calls Kaspari "a very coachable boy who definitely can play college football."

"He's not exceptionally fast," Bob remarked, "but he does have adequate speed. He went both ways for us, playing corner back on defense."

Scott singles out the East Leyden game this fall as Kaspari's best although the senior back also turned in a sparkling performance against Deerfield when he personally outgained the entire Warrior team.

"Ralph played all three positions for us," Scott summed up.

"Actually, our system was built around him."

Injuries hampered Kaspari in his senior year but he still was a near-unanimous choice on the all-star aggregation.

Chiefs Top Travelers In Finale

In a preview of the Nov. 24 title match in the Central States Football League, the Manitowoc Chiefs edged the Elmhurst Travelers 7-0 in Sunday's regular season finale at Manitowoc, Wis.

The Chief victory gave both division champions a record of 7-3.

A second period touchdown pass from Dick Oregarde to Jerry Tadych covering 46 yards was the only score of the defensive battle.

It was a frustrating day for the Travelers, who penetrated the Chief 15 yard line four times, but failed to score. The lack of an aerial attack hurt the Travelers badly.

JUST DOGS

by DAVE TERRILL

The Ancient Ones - -

Perhaps the oldest and rarest breed of dog in the world, the Ibizan, hound of the Pharaohs, now boasts a total population in this country of about 100 dogs, which are living images of those carved on the tombs of Egyptian Pharaohs, can outrun a deer or rabbit with little or no effort.

Found by tourists visiting the Spanish island of Ibiza in the Mediterranean, at the time of their "discovery" there were, perhaps, not more than a couple of hundred specimens alive, for the people of the island are rather poor and feed the dogs a diet which consisted mainly of fish heads . . . something on which no breed could thrive.

At the present time, the largest concentration of the breed in this country seems to be in Florida, where there are 11. This is probably due in no small part, to the fact that the secretary of the Ibizan Hound Club of America, Stetson Kennedy, lives in Mandarin.

IN AN ARTICLE about the breed, Kennedy has reported some rather interesting facts relative to hunting. The dogs work in packs when required and have an excellent sense of smell, along with even sharper faculties for sound and sight. They also have a highly developed communications system, including different barks to signal hitting a trail, flushed game, pursuit and treed.

Appearance wise, the dog has an average width head, long muzzle, eyes set close, long erect ears. The coat is short and color is typical hound with a combination of brown and white. Standing about 20 inches high on an average, they have one requirement, and that is room in which to exercise. . . and lots of it.

Fashion note - - -

In the women's section of this issue of the paper, there is an article on an up and coming fashion show at which a number of dogs owned by area residents will be handled by the models as they are showing the latest styles.

This use of dogs in fashion work has been going on for many years and be it "high-fashion," or sports-wear, the dogs seem to add something to the overall picture.

Busy season - - -

It's not only time for hunting, but also time for shows in general. The field trial folks are really going strong. The AKC Kennel Gazette has lists on more than two pages, all in small print, of just Beagle trials. The Weimaraner Club had a trial the end of October, near Elmhurst, and the Western Irish Setter Club finished one at Joliet on Nov. 3.

In obedience, the next shows in the area will be Lyons Township at La Grange, on Nov. 24. This will be followed by the Rand Park trial on Dec. 1, in Des Plaines.

Two specialty shows coming up on Nov. 17 are the Western Boston Terrier Club, at the Lake Motel Exhibition Hall, and the Chihuahua Club of America, at the Shoreland Hotel, both in Chicago.

Barks & Bays - - -

Guess winter weather has arrived. As this column was being written the wind had changed and with it came a few flakes of snow. Hope you have "Slugger's" outside house ready with the storm windows on and some warm bedding inside.

Lancers Cited

Rick Schimmel and Norm Pfortmiller, former Lake Park athletes, were cited by Cornell college coach Jerry Clark for their play in the Rams' 14-12 victory over Coe last Saturday.

Schimmel, a sophomore end from Itasca, was awarded the game ball. Not only did he snare four passes including the game winning TD aerial, he was outstanding on defense.

Pfortmiller, a Roselle junior, was a member of the Ram defensive unit that five times stopped the Kohawks inside the Cornell 20 yard line.

Field Hockey Tourney Slated For Maine West

The annual Midwest Women's Field Hockey Tournament will be held at Maine West in Des Plaines Nov. 16 and 17.

The tournament, which will be hosted by the North Shore Hockey Association, will be composed of field hockey teams representing clubs from Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Iowa. These teams will compete against each other from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16., and from 8 a.m. until noon on Sun., Nov. 17.

The highlight of the two day tourney occurs after the selection committee names the 22 best players to form Midwest I and Midwest II teams. These two teams then play around 2 p.m. Sunday.

Many of the girls named to these teams will then represent Midwest, and compete for All American honors at the national tournament held over Thanksgiving week-end in Rochester, N. Y.

It is from these tournaments that the best U. S. Field Hockey players are found to represent the United States against other countries. Last year the U. S. Touring Team played All-England in Wembley Stadium in London before 50,000 spectators.

Eagles Whip Raiders to Clinch 2nd

The Glen Ellyn Eagles sewed up second place in the Northwest Suburban Junior Football League last Sunday when they whipped the Hoffman Raiders, 26-13.

The Eagles consistently gained on a power sweep series and halfback John Anderson worked it for touchdown runs of 10, 16 and 20 yards. The fourth Eagle touchdown came on a blocked punt.

Raider star Barry Alexa scored both of his club's touchdowns, one of a 40 yard dash, the other on a swing pass from Paul Witkowski.

All four of the Hoffman losses have come at the hands of North Austin and Glen Ellyn, the top two teams in the league. The Raiders close their season Sunday at Addison.

Too Much Talent

At the all-conference meeting last week, North Suburban coaches named an all-star team in excess of the number provided for by a league rule that states the All-Conference teams are not to exceed twice the number of boys that ordinarily constitute a team (22 for football). Therefore, the team they selected is subject to revision by the league administrators and has not been released to date.

Lions Fall

Boylan Central of Rockford hammered St. Viator's sophomore football team Sunday afternoon, 33-7, handing the Lions their first loss of the season.

It was St. Viator's first game in over a month and the layoff obviously affected the squad's performance.

Jim Mikes counted the Lions' only touchdown when he pulled in a two-yard pass from Mike Campana.

Tom Hansen's sophs finished with a 3-1-1 record.

Mount Prospect's Red Rush Signed For Loyola Games

Wresley "Red" Rush, 606 South Owens, Mount Prospect, has been signed by WBBM Radio to broadcast the Loyola University basketball games. The station has obtained exclusive radio rights to all Loyola home and away games with a total of 25 scheduled, beginning Monday, December 2, when Loyola meets North Dakota University.

Red was most recently with WCFL, Chicago, where he reported the Loyola games last season. He entered broadcasting in 1954 as a disk jockey at KCSB, San Bernardino, California, and in a short time became one of the most popular radio personalities on the West Coast.

His first taste of professional sportscasting came quite by accident, while still a pre-legal student at the University of Southern California. He attended a Harlem Globetrotters basketball game at the local auditorium, and when the announcer failed to show up, Red volunteered to handle the game. From that moment on, he abandoned his law studies, to concentrate on radio.

He did all the Minneapolis Lakers' basketball games over station WLOL, and had his own nightly sports show on KSTP-TV, also in Minneapolis, in 1958. Red broadcast the San Francisco Seals baseball games over station KYA in 1957, and that same year was named Sports Director of KPOA, Honolulu.

A native of Long Beach, California, Red, 36, is married to the former Nancy Hawkins, also a Californian. They have two children - Casey, 10, and Cathy, who is nine.

St. Raymond's Wins League Opener, 29-21

St. Raymond's of Mount Prospect launched basketball play in the Northwest Catholic Grammar School division with an impressive 29-21 victory over St. Monica's of Carpentersville Sunday afternoon.

Operating in the cage league for the first time, St. Raymond's held a 20-9 halftime advantage.

Mike Cunningham paced the winner's balanced attack with eight points, and he sparkled on defense. Also chipping in points for coach Jim O'Donnell's outfit were Tim Moore (6), Tom Lehrke (4), 'Chico' Sophie (4), Tom Sheppard (2), Steve Hartung (2), and Mike Sander (1).

O'Donnell praised the squad in its opening game.

"They actually surprised me," he said. "There had been only two practices before the game. They played well on both offense and defense."

O'Donnell cleared the bench in the victory with 15 boys playing.

Unbeaten Loyola Academy landed three positions on the honor squad with Joliet Township picking up two. Over-all, twenty-two schools are represented on the 1963 aggregation.

Although the balloting was close in most positions, the fullback slot is filled by three unanimous choices.

NAMED AT fullback were Charlie Winters (5-10, 216) of Joliet Township, Ryan Strong (6-1, 215) of Evanston Township, and Al Koranda (6-1, 210) of Hinsdale.

Other unanimous selections on the all-star team are tackles Runo Anderson (6-3, 200) of La-Grange and Bill Mittlefehldt (5-11, 205) of Downers Grove and halfback Ernie Sharpe (5-11, 187) of Carl Sandburg.

Size is evident in the all-star line with the three tackles averaging 220 pounds per man. Biggest of the lot is 5-foot-10, 263-pound Jack Sutton of Thornton.

The centers also have good size with John Williams (6-3, 233) of Joliet Township and Tom Klimek (6-2, 205) of Argo.

QUICK, crisp-blocking guards are headed by Mike LeGrand (6-2, 205) of Lockport and Phil Major (6-0, 200) of Rich East. Loyola Academy's Bob Weskamp (6-2, 200) was right behind in the balloting.

Leading vote-getter at end was Kevin Rasses, a 6-foot-2, 195-pounder from Loyola Academy. Deerfield's Tee Newbrough (6-0, 170), Bremen's Bud Smith (6-0, 183), and Bloom's Bob Moran (6-2, 185) also ranked high.

Rich Erickson of Naperville, a slick 175-pounder who enjoyed a brilliant season, was a near-unanimous choice at quarterback, and Carl Sandburg's Sharpe dominated the halfback balloting. Wheaton's Johnn Wright followed Sharpe in the battle for the all-star halfback berths.

Mineral Bowl Group Considers Northern Huskies

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, MO., (UPI)—The Mineral Water Bowl selection committee listed five outstanding football teams under consideration for the 15th renewal of the post-season game at 2 p.m. Nov. 30.

At the top of the list was Northern Illinois, who lost 23-20 in last year's Mineral Bowl to Adams State of Alamosa, Colo. The Huskies have completed this season with a 9-0 record.

The team's offensive leader, George Bork, holds more collegiate passing records than any other player.

Another contender for a bid, Luther, Iowa, also has a 9-0 season mark. The Decorah Norsemen downed their nine Iowa opponents with little strain.

Southwest Missouri State of Springfield, another candidate, was crowned Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association champion with an 8-0 mark. It has one game left on its schedule, against Akron (Ohio) University this weekend.

Two other teams being screened by the committee were South Dakota State of Brookings, and Colorado Western State at Gunnison.

With one game remaining, the South Dakota State has an 8-1 record with its only loss to Nebraska of the Big Eight. Its final season game will be against Arkansas State this weekend.

Western Colorado lost 14-7 last weekend to Flagstaff to make it a 7-1 record. It plays Weber, Utah, this weekend for its final season contest.

Bork Dazzles Central Michigan In Loop Finale

Football teams in the Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic Conference may relax now. George Bork has played his last conference game.

Bork, who set one passing record or another everytime he got his hands on the ball the last few weekends, closed out his college career - barring a bowl bid for Northern Illinois- by leading the Huskies to a 27-22 victory over Central Michigan.

The victory gave Northern its first IIAC title since 1951. Bork, an Arlington High School product, completed 43 of 68 passes for 416 yards and two touchdowns.

He wound up the regular season with 244 of 374 passes completed for 32 touchdowns and 3,077 yards gained. During his career Bork tossed 60 touchdown passes and completed 577 out of 902 passes for 6,782 yards.

North Wins All-Star Grid Games

North side all-star teams won both games in the recent Arlington Heights Midget Football attraction sponsored by the Arlington BPO Elks No. 2048.

The North juniors triumphed 14-0 with the seniors scoring in the closing minutes for a 7-6 victory.

Proceeds from the games will help defray costs of the league's midget football program.

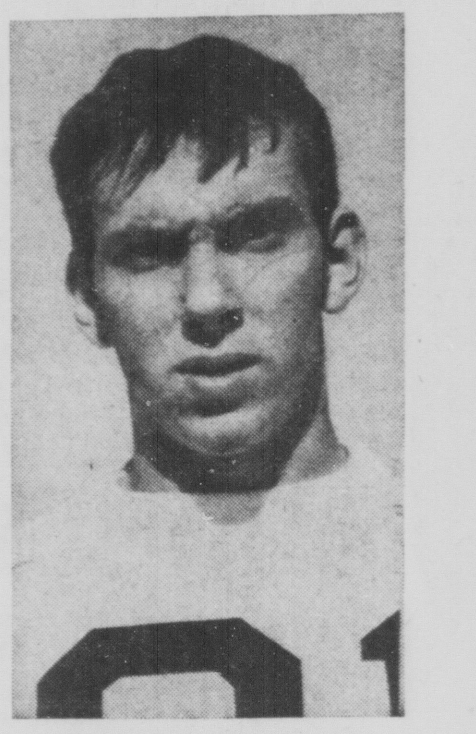
Ostermann Scores Decisive Touchdown In Lions' 14-12 Win

Tom Ostermann bolted four yards for the decisive touchdown Sunday afternoon as St. Viator's varsity football Lions concluded the 1963 season with a thrilling 14-12 victory over host Boylan Central of Rockford.

The senior fullback carried in for the six points in the final period as Joe Gliwa's Lions fought back from a 12-7 deficit. Ostermann had set up the touchdown when he rambled 36 yards with a flat pass on a fourth down play.



TOM OSTERMANN
The Clincher

The victory was St. Viator's sixth in nine games this fall and third straight. Gliwa's outfit won its first three, dropped its next three, and then concluded the season with a trio of triumphs.

AFTER FALLING behind by five points early in the fourth period Sunday St. Viator immediately went to work on offense.

Ostermann returned the kickoff to the Lion 46-yard-line, and St. Viator then moved for a first down at the Titans' 40. Tim Walinski scampered to the 30 but the march temporarily stalled here.

On a fourth down play at the 36 Joe Heitz flipped a flat pass to Ostermann, and the hard-running fullback dashed to the four. On a second down play Tom smashed over for the touchdown.

BOYLAN DIDN'T throw in the towel at this point and moved to the St. Viator 26-yard-line before Tom Nitch stepped in for a game-saving interception.

St. Viator had some scoring chances early in the game but didn't cash in until the third period.

The Lions moved to the Titan 20 with he opening kickoff but couldn't score. Paul Carroll recovered a Boylan fumble on the 24, but a Heitz pitch was intercepted to check this threat.

THE LIONS reached the 30 and 10 in the second quarter but sputtered again. Just before the inermission and thanks to a short punt St. Viator was knocking on the door when a 15-yard-penalty spoiled the fun.

St. Viator counted in the third period following the kickoff. Walinski ran to the 33, and Jim Murray scampered all the way to the Titan 16. Jim carried again to the eight, and the payoff came when Heitz, faking beautifully to Murray, flipped a short pass to Chuck Heinrich for the touchdown.

Heitz added the extra point.

ON THE ENSUING kickoff the Titans launched a drive on the Lion goal which was aided by three pass interference calls. Boylan counted when Greg Marinelli slammed in from the two, but the hosts missed the conversion.

Early in the fourth quarter Boylan got a break when the Lions fumbled on the 44. Marinelli and Pete Gulatto teamed up on a 42-yard aerial for the touchdown.

But the Lions weren't dead yet, and Ostermann's heroics pulled this one out.

The victory avenged a 1962 reversal for St. Viator.

Score by Quarters:

St. Viator	0	0	7	7—14
Boylan	0	0	6	6—12

Six Unanimous Selections on All-Star Team

25 Boys Honored on Suburban Area Squad

Six unanimous selections, including a trio of the state's finest fullbacks, head the suburban area all-star football team announced this week by the Suburban Press and Radio Association.

Twenty-five high school standouts were named to the team culled from approximately 100 high schools in the Chicago Suburban area.

Unbeaten Loyola Academy landed three positions on the honor squad with Joliet Township picking up two. Over-all, twenty-two schools are represented on the 1963 aggregation.

Although the balloting was close in most positions, the fullback slot is filled by three unanimous choices.

NAMED AT fullback were Charlie Winters (5-10, 216) of Joliet Township, Ryan Strong (6-1, 215) of Evanston Township, and Al Koranda (6-1, 210) of Hinsdale.

Other unanimous selections on the all-star team are tackles Runo Anderson (6-3, 200) of LaGrange and Bill Mittlefehldt (5-11, 205) of Downers Grove and halfback Ernie Sharpe (5-11, 187) of Carl Sandburg.

Size is evident in the all-star line with the three tackles averaging 220 pounds per man. Biggest of the lot is 5-foot-10, 263-pound Jack Sutton of Thornton.

The centers also have good size with John Williams (6-3, 233) of Joliet Township and Tom Klimek (6-2, 205) of Argo.

QUICK, crisp-blocking guards are headed by Mike LeGrand (6-2, 205) of Lockport and Phil Major (6-0, 200) of Rich East. Loyola Academy's Bob Weskamp (6-2, 200) was right behind in the balloting.

Leading vote-getter at end was Kevin Rasses, a 6-foot-2, 195-pounder from Loyola Academy. Deerfield's Tee Newbrough (6-0, 170), Bremen's Bud Smith (6-0, 183), and Bloom's Bob Moran (6-2, 185) also ranked high.

Rich Erickson of Naperville, a slick 175-pounder who enjoyed a brilliant season, was a near-unanimous choice at quarterback, and Carl Sandburg's Sharpe dominated the halfback balloting. Wheaton's Johnn Wright followed Sharpe in the battle for the all-star halfback berths.

Mineral Bowl Group Considers Northern Huskies

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, MO., (UPI)—The Mineral Water Bowl selection committee listed five outstanding football teams under consideration for the 15th renewal of the post-season game at 2 p.m. Nov. 30.

At the top of the list was Northern Illinois, who lost 23-20 in last year's Mineral Bowl to Adams State of Alamosa, Colo. The Huskies have completed this season with a 9-0 record.

The team's offensive leader, George Bork, holds more collegiate passing records than any other player.

Another contender for a bid, Luther, Iowa, also has a 9-0 season mark. The Decorah Norsemen downed their nine Iowa opponents with little strain.

Southwest Missouri State of Springfield, another candidate, was crowned Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association champion with an 8-0 mark. It has one game left on its schedule, against Akron (Ohio) University this weekend.

Two other teams being screened by the committee were South Dakota State of Brookings, and Colorado Western State at Gunnison.

With one game remaining, the South Dakota State has an 8-1 record with its only loss to Nebraska of the Big Eight. Its final season game will be against Arkansas State this weekend.

Western Colorado lost 14-7 last weekend to Flagstaff to make it a 7-1 record. It plays Weber, Utah, this weekend for its final season contest.

Bork Dazzles Central Michigan In Loop Finale

Football teams in the Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic Conference may relax now. George Bork has played his last conference game.

Bork, who set one passing record or another everytime he got his hands on the ball the last few weekends, closed out his college career - barring a bowl bid for Northern Illinois - by leading the Huskies to a 27-22 victory over Central Michigan.

The victory gave Northern its first IIAC title since 1951. Bork, an Arlington High School product, completed 43 of 68 passes for 416 yards and two touchdowns.

He wound up the regular season with 244 of 374 passes completed for 32 touchdowns and 3,077 yards gained. During his career Bork tossed 60 touchdown passes and completed 577 out of 902 passes for 6,782 yards.

North Wins All-Star Grid Games

North side all-star teams won both games in the recent Arlington Heights Midget Football attraction sponsored by the Arlington BPO Elks No. 2048.

The North juniors triumphed 14-0 with the seniors scoring in the closing minutes for a 7-6 victory.

Proceeds from the games will help defray costs of the league's midget football program.

Complete details were unavailable on the two all-star games.

Ostermann Scores Decisive Touchdown In Lions' 14-12 Win

Tom Ostermann bolted four yards for the decisive touchdown Sunday afternoon as St. Viator's varsity football Lions concluded the 1963 season with a thrilling 14-12 victory over host Boylan Central of Rockford.

The senior fullback carried in for the six points in the final period as Joe Gliwa's Lions fought back from a 12-7 deficit. Ostermann had set up the touchdown when he rambled 36 yards with a flat pass on a fourth down play.

Olympic Fund Raising Event At Polar Dome

The 1963-64 speed skating season will get under way on Sunday, December 1, when the Amateur Skating Associaton of Illinois conducts the Olympic Fund raising meet at the Polar Dome, on Highways 25 and 72 in Dundee.

Over 400 of the leading blade artists from Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri, Minnesota, and Iowa are expected to take part in the 27 event program, with races for boys and girls of all ages from the Pony (under 10 years of age) to the seniors. Among the group will be the state indoor and outdoor champions, Silver Skates winners along with Sectional and National title holders.

President Ed Schmitzer of the Skating Association has been assured by the officers of the Amateur Skating Association of the U. S. that most of the stars in the middle west will appear on the card, which should assure the racing fans of the best in the sport.

THE ILLINOIS skaters have been working out on the Polar Dome ice for several weeks, under the watchful eyes of their coaches who are anxious to have them score points early so that they may qualify for places on the Illinois team who will represent the state in the nationals later in the season.

Among the state champions who are certain to compete are Brian Schmitzer, senior representing the Northwest Skating Club, holder of the indoor title, and Silver Skates champion; and Mike Passarella, another Northwest star who holds the Intermediate title, and set several new records last year. It is expected that Schmitzer will get stiff competition from George Michehl, Northbrook; Ron Scholefield, Peirce Skating Club; Bob Groff, U.C.T. Champaign; and Gordon Rudolph, who toured Europe last winter, competing against the best on the continent in a series of International races.

Tickets for the afternoon session starting at 2 p.m. at which time all the finals will be run, have been prices at $1.50 for adults, and 75 cents for youngsters under 12 years of age.

Tickets can be purchased at the Polar Dome, Sears Roebuck and Company stores, Mr. Madison Restaurant, 4733 W. Madison St., and in the loop from Harry Berz, 189 West Madison St.

It is emphasized that money from the event will go to the United States Olympic Fund.

"Only the boys and girls will benefit, not anyone else," one official stressed.

Wheeling Frosh Close with Win Over Maine West

An impressive 20-0 victory over Maine West's 'B' team concluded the season's activities for the Wheeling High School freshmen based at Forest View.

With the victory Wheeling posted a 3-4 over-all mark for 1963 in its first season of interscholastic competition. The locals topped 'B' entries from Forest View, Waukegan, and Maine and bowed twice to Wheaton's [illegible]ten 'A's' and once to [illegible] and Glenbard East.

"The boys learned quite a bit of football in the way of fundamentals and showed us good desire," Elliott (Bus) Ormsbee, one of the men who worked with the plebes, pointed out.

Ormsbee, Jim Hoffmann, and Wayne Selvig handled the frosh.

"We definitely lacked team speed, but there's some size there," Ormsbee continued. "They looked very good against Maine and it was encouraging to see the steady improvement with each game."

Sixty-seven boys started with the Wheeling frosh and 54 completed a full season.

The coaches praised a "team effort," but did mention some boys who showed promise with steady play throughout the campaign. Earning post-season plaudits were fullback John Hittman, center Ryan Sarti, tackle Dan Gribbon, guard-fullback Joe Goffman, and tackle Leo Richardson.

Les Zikes Captures All-Events

Les Zikes, Jr., manager of Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights, won the All-Events championship in the Federation Internationale des Quilleurs World bowling tournament in Mexico City.

Zikes, who earned the trip to Mexico with a victory in the Chicago Individual Match Game championships, averaged 197.3 as the United States won seven of eight matches in the world meet.

Zikes received a sterling silver sombrero hat for his triumph. He also placed high in doubles in the competition with 16 nations.

Kelly Belts Charlotte's In Headliner

Balance Pays Off for Classic League Leaders

That'll teach those gals from Charlotte's Pizza to threaten the leaders.

Pace-setting Kelly Olds, holding a slim one-point advantage prior to last week's action, swept four points from Charlotte's Saturday in a crucial match and vaulted into a five-point lead in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League.

Nancy

NANCY DIETZ
Paces Gals

Only a point away from the lead the previous week, Charlotte's tumbled into a second place tie with Irv's Fire Extinguisher Co. Irv's took three points from fourth place Steve's Restaurant.

BALANCE PAID off for the Kelly Olds squad as the five keglers eclipsed 500 with substitutes Arlene Stohrer and Agnes Saula sharing honors with identical 553 totals. Rounding out the winners were Edith Wayne (532), Maxine Moehling (511), and Esther Barr (502).

Edith had a 201 finale and was the only gal able to top that magic number in this battle for first place.

Watching from the sidelines again was Kelly's Rosemary Babich. Rosemary, a valuable performer on the league leaders, suffered a broken ankle in an automobile accident and will be unable to compete for several weeks.

Winnie Lohse was high for Charlotte's with a 513 series.

IRV'S FIRE Extinguisher took three markers from Steve's as Nancy Dietz flipped a neat 574 series with 202 high. Her series was tops for the evening and keyed a 2625 team total.

Laverne Rosset headed Steve's with a fine 566 count. She wound up at 210. Teammate Delores Harris handled the pins at a 213 total in her second game for the evening's top effort.

Cellar dwelling River Rand Bowl impressed its followers with an impressive 3-1 conquest of Morton Pontiac as "Tiny" Davis fired a 561 despite a 160 opener. She finished at 200 and 201.

Penny Smith's 533 topped Morton which now has dropped seven points in two nights and is only four markers on top of River Rand.

Olympic Fund Raising Event At Polar Dome

The 1963-64 speed skating season will get under way on Sunday, December 1, when the Amateur Skating Associaton of Illinois conducts the Olympic Fund raising meet at the Polar Dome, on Highways 25 and 72 in Dundee.

Over 400 of the leading blade artists from Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri, Minnesota, and Iowa are expected to take part in the 27 event program, with races for boys and girls of all ages from the Pony (under 10 years of age) to the seniors. Among the group will be the state indoor and outdoor champions, Silver Skates winners along with Sectional and National title holders.

President Ed Schmitzer of the Skating Association has been assured by the officers of the Amateur Skating Association of the U. S. that most of the stars in the middle west will appear on the card, which should assure the racing fans of the best in the sport.

THE ILLINOIS skaters have been working out on the Polar Dome ice for several weeks, under the watchful eyes of their coaches who are anxious to have them score points early so that they may qualify for places on the Illinois team who will represent the state in the nationals later in the season.

Among the state champions who are certain to compete are Brian Schmitzer, senior representing the Northwest Skating Club, holder of the indoor title, and Silver Skates champion; and Mike Passarella, another Northwest star who holds the Intermediate title, and set several new records last year. It is expected that Schmitzer will get stiff competition from George Michehl, Northbrook; Ron Scholefield, Peirce Skating Club; Bob Groff, U.C.T. Champaign; and Gordon Rudolph, who toured Europe last winter, competing against the best on the continent in a series of International races.

Tickets for the afternoon session starting at 2 p.m. at which time all the finals will be run, have been prices at $1.50 for adults, and 75 cents for youngsters under 12 years of age.

Tickets can be purchased at the Polar Dome, Sears Roebuck and Company stores, Mr. Madison Restaurant, 4733 W. Madison St., and in the loop from Harry Berz, 189 West Madison St.

It is emphasized that money from the event will go to the United States Olympic Fund.

"Only the boys and girls will benefit, not anyone else," one official stressed.

Wheeling Frosh Close with Win Over Maine West

An impressive 20-0 victory over Maine West's 'B' team concluded the season's activities for the Wheeling High School freshmen based at Forest View.

With the victory Wheeling posted a 3-4 over-all mark for 1963 in its first season of interscholastic competition. The locals topped 'B' entries from Forest View, Waukegan, and Maine and showed twice to Wheaton's [illegible] 'A's' and once to [illegible] and Glenbard East.

"The boys learned quite a bit of football in the way of fundamentals and showed us good desire," Elliott (Bus) Ormsbee, one of the men who worked with the plebes, pointed out.

Ormsbee, Jim Hoffmann, and Wayne Selvig handled the frosh.

"We definitely lacked team speed, but there's some size there," Ormsbee continued. "They looked very good against Maine and it was encouraging to see the steady improvement with each game."

Sixty-seven boys started with the Wheeling frosh and 54 completed a full season.

The coaches praised a "team effort," but did mention some boys who showed promise with steady play throughout the campaign. Earning post-season plaudits were fullback John Hittman, center Ryan Sarti, tackle Dan Gribbon, guard-fullback Joe Goffman, and tackle Leo Richardson.

Les Zikes Captures All-Events

Les Zikes, Jr., manager of Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights, won the All-Events championship in the Federation Internationale des Quilleurs World bowling tournament in Mexico City.

Zikes, who earned the trip to Mexico with a victory in the Chicago Individual Match Game championships, averaged 197.3 as the United States won seven of eight matches in the world meet.

Zikes received a sterling silver sombrero hat for his triumph. He also placed high in doubles in the competition with 16 nations.

Kelly Belts Charlotte's In Headliner

Balance Pays Off for Classic League Leaders

That'll teach those gals from Charlotte's Pizza to threaten the leaders.

Pace-setting Kelly Olds, holding a slim one-point advantage prior to last week's action, swept four points from Charlotte's Saturday in a crucial match and vaulted into a five-point lead in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League.

Only a point away from the lead the previous week, Charlotte's tumbled into a second place tie with Irv's Fire Extinguisher Co. Irv's took three points from fourth place Steve's Restaurant.

NANCY DIETZ
Paces Gals

BALANCE PAID off for the Kelly Olds squad as the five keglers eclipsed 500 with substitutes Arlene Stohrer and Agnes Saula sharing honors with identical 553 totals. Rounding out the winners were Edith Wayne (532), Maxine Moehling (511), and Esther Barr (502).

Edith had a 201 finale and was the only gal able to top that magic number in this battle for first place.

Watching from the sidelines again was Kelly's Rosemary Babich. Rosemary, a valuable performer on the league leaders, suffered a broken ankle in an automobile accident and will be unable to compete for several weeks.

Winnie Lohse was high for Charlotte's with a 513 series.

IRV'S FIRE Extinguisher took three markers from Steve's as Nancy Dietz flipped a neat 574 series with 202 high. Her series was tops for the evening and keyed a 2625 team total.

Laverne Rosset headed Steve's with a fine 566 count. She wound up at 210. Teammate Delores Harris handled the pins at a 213 total in her second game for the evening's top effort.

Cellar dwelling River Rand Bowl impressed its followers with an impressive 3-1 conquest of Morton Pontiac as "Tiny" Davis fired a 561 despite a 160 opener. She finished at 200 and 201.

Penny Smith's 533 topped Morton which now has dropped seven points in two nights and is only four markers on top of River Rand.

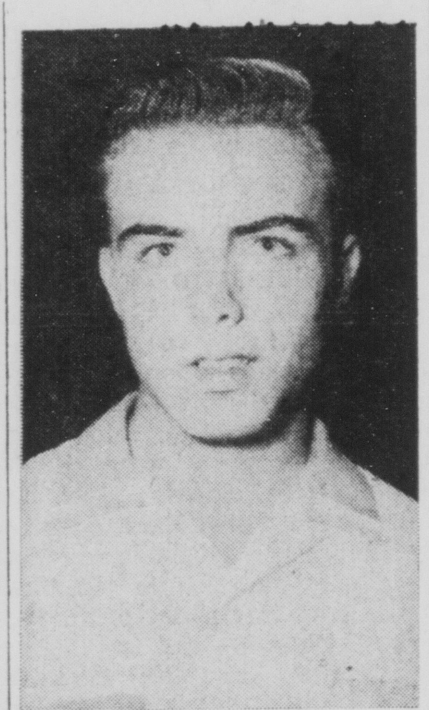
Casares Gains In Classic First Place

Holds Half Point Edge Over Morton, Pines

Casares Pro Bowl climaxed a month long battle to the top last Saturday evening at River Rand when they dumped Jeffery Lane, 3-1 to take over first place in the men's division of the Paddock Classic Traveling League.

But, the Casares hold on the top spot is a precarious one. Just a half point back of the pacesetting figure of 24½, are last week's leader Morton Pontiac and Pines Industries. The Brass Rail is contending with 23 and fifth place Pioneer Lanes has 22.



WARREN WALTER
Hot Night

The Pontiacs lost their hold on first place when they split with the Brass Rail. Pines, getting a big series from Warren Walter, trounced Hamm's Beer, 4-0, and Pioneer Lanes whipped Rolling Meadows, 3-1.

THE PRO Bowl stopped Jeffery in a match that didn't produce a 600 series on either team. Lobby Lobinsky topped Casares with 576, while Bill Harris knocked down 551 for Jeffery.

Morton rallied valiantly, but saw their league lead slip away for the want of eight pins. They split the first two games with the Brass Rail, and copped the third but lost the point for total by the scant margin of 2762-2755.

Don Oberg's highest game of the year, a 244, gave the Railers their fat second game edge and pushed him toward a 610 series. Ed Duff topped the Pontiacs with a 578.

Pines turned its top series of the year—2925—to blitz Hamms. Walter bounced off a 180 with a 257 (second best in the league this season) and a 222 to turn a 659, his top figure of the year. Teammates Tony Sasso and Mike Wagner chipped in with 623 and 620 respectively.

MIKE DINSCHEL, the season's leader with a 195 average, tipped 617 pins to pace Pioneer to its victory. Al Haase downed 588 for Rolling Meadows.

This week the action shifts to Jeffery Lanes where the feature pits Casares against The Brass Rail. Other action finds Pines Industries battling Pioneer Lanes, Morton Pontiacs taking on Jeffery Lanes and Hamm's Beer meeting Rolling Meadows.

Pro Bowl Offers Varied Entertainment

(This is the second in a series of articles on team sponsors in the Paddock Classic Traveling League.)

Rick Casares Pro Bowl is more than a bowling lanes. It is quite possible to get an evening's entertainment at the Buffalo Grove establishment without getting any closer to the lanes than the coat room.

Casares and associates are getting a little entertainment of their own these days. New sponsors in the PCTL, they watched their rookie team climb to the top of the standings last week.

The most amazing thing about the Pro Bowl's month long surge to the top is the fact that only one team member, Lobby Lobinsky has seen any action in the league prior to this season, and Lobinsky hardly qualifies as a veteran.

Lobinsky's mates; Bob Hurwitz, Norm Schoemann, John Emmert, Bob Rogers and Tony Donushi are all PCTL newcomers.

A man who isn't a rookie in his league is Casares, the nine year Chicago Bear fullback. An All-American at Florida, and an All Southeast Conference choice as well, Casares is firmly entrenched in both Bear and NFL record books.

Three years ago, the same season the Pro Bowl opened its doors, Casares replaced Bronco Nagurski as the all time Bear rushing leader. Prior to that, in 1956, he became a member of a list that has now reached twelve men who have rushed for over 1,000 yards in one season. He is also the fourth leading rusher (career) in NFL history.

Business-wise his main facility, of course, is bowlinng and Pro Bowl's 24 Brunswick lanes are home to 75 leagues. Casares' top promotion is Candlelight bowling, a regular 1 a.m. Saturday feature.

Active in Classic League events, the Pro Bowl hosted the Women's tourney last season and will be the site of the Men's tournament Jan. 27-28.

If you are not a bowler, Casares offers live entertainment in its 'Theatre in the Round' presentations. A dining room, snack, bar, cocktail lounge and pool room are also available.

The Pro Bowl is located on Dundee Road just west of Wheeling.

Casares Gains In Classic First Place

Holds Half Point Edge Over Morton, Pines

Casares Pro Bowl climaxed a month long battle to the top last Saturday evening at River Rand when they dumped Jeffery Lane, 3-1 to take over first place in the men's division of the Paddock Classic Traveling League.

But, the Casares hold on the top spot is a precarious one. Just a half point back of the pacesetting figure of 24½, are last week's leader Morton Pontiac and Pines Industries. The Brass Rail is contending with 23 and fifth place Pioneer Lanes has 22.

The Pontiacs lost their hold on first place when they split with the Brass Rail. Pines, getting a big series from Warren Walter, trounced Hamm's Beer, 4-0, and Pioneer Lanes whipped Rolling Meadows, 3-1.

THE PRO Bowl stopped Jeffery in a match that didn't produce a 600 series on either team. Lobby Lobinsky topped Casares with 576, while Bill Harris knocked down 551 for Jeffery.

Morton rallied valiantly, but saw their league lead slip away for the want of eight pins. They split the first two games with the Brass Rail, and copped the third but lost the point for total by the scant margin of 2762-2755.

Don Oberg's highest game of the year, a 244, gave the Railers their fat second game edge and pushed him toward a 610 series. Ed Duff topped the Pontiacs with a 578.

Pines turned its top series of the year—2925—to blitz Hamms. Walter bounced off a 180 with a 257 (second best in the league this season) and a 222 to turn a 659, his top figure of the year. Teammates Tony Sasso and Mike Wagner chipped in with 623 and 620 respectively.

MIKE DINSCHEL, the season's leader with a 195 average, tipped 617 pins to pace Pioneer to its victory. Al Haase downed 588 for Rolling Meadows.

This week the action shifts to Jeffery Lanes where the feature pits Casares against The Brass Rail. Other action finds Pines Industries battling Pioneer Lanes, Morton Pontiacs taking on Jeffery Lanes and Hamm's Beer meeting Rolling Meadows.

Meet the Sponsors

Pro Bowl Offers Varied Entertainment

(This is the second in a series of articles on team sponsors in the Paddock Classic Traveling League.)

Rick Casares Pro Bowl is more than a bowling lanes. It is quite possible to get an evening's entertainment at the Buffalo Grove establishment without getting any closer to the lanes than the coat room.

Casares and associates are getting a little entertainment of their own these days. New sponsors in the PCTL, they watched their rookie team climb to the top of the standings last week.

The most amazing thing about the Pro Bowl's month long surge to the top is the fact that only one team member, Lobby Lobinsky has seen any action in the league prior to this season, and Lobinsky hardly qualifies as a veteran.

Lobinsky's mates; Bob Hurwitz, Norm Schoemann, John Emmert, Bob Rogers and Tony Donushi are all PCTL newcomers.

A man who isn't a rookie in his league is Casares, the nine year Chicago Bear fullback. An All-American at Florida, and an All Southeast Conference choice as well, Casares is firmly entrenched in both Bear and NFL record books.

Three years ago, the same season the Pro Bowl opened its doors, Casares replaced Bronco Nagurski as the all time Bear rushing leader. Prior to that, in 1956, he became a member of a list that has now reached twelve men who have rushed for over 1,000 yards in one season. He is also the fourth leading rusher (career) in NFL history.

Business-wise his main facility, of course, is bowlinng and Pro Bowl's 24 Brunswick lanes are home to 75 leagues. Casares' top promotion is Candlelight bowling, a regular 1 a.m. Saturday feature.

Active in Classic League events, the Pro Bowl hosted the Women's tourney last season and will be the site of the Men's tournament Jan. 27-28.

If you are not a bowler, Casares offers live entertainment in its 'Theatre in the Round' presentations. A dining room, snack, bar, cocktail lounge and pool room are also available.

The Pro Bowl is located on Dundee Road just west of Wheeling.

1963 SUBURBAN HOMEMAKER OF THE YEAR

MRS. NANCY BRISTOL MANOS

314 W. Mueller St., Arlington Heights

STORY ON PAGE THREE, THIS SECTION

The winner in Paddock Publications search for 1963 Suburban Homemaker of the Year was announced Wednesday night before an audience of 250 guests at an award ceremony in the Northwest Suburban YMCA. In addition to her local recognition and reward, the winning homemaker will compete next week with other outstanding homemakers from suburbs throughout the nation for the honor of being named as 1963 National Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

A panel of local judges selected the winner from among 40 northwest suburban homemakers nominated in the Paddock search. Their choice was based on character, abilities, and contributions to the advancement of family living. Sponsored annually by Paddock Publications and the Suburban Press Foundation, the local search for Suburban Homemaker of the Year is part of a nation-wide community effort to honor American family living. It provides us with an opportunity to pay tribute to and offer recognition of the important role of the homemaker in the family, civic, and economic life of the suburban community.

This special section, with feature articles about each nominee in the 1963 search, pays tribute to the homemakers of northwest suburbs. It has been prepared under the direction of Mrs. Hester Kline, Suburban Homemaker editor, assisted by Mrs. Pat Adam, staff editor.

Local Judges Amazed at Women's Versatility

The choice of the 1963 Suburban Homemaker of the Year in the northwest area was made by a panel of four women and one man.

The judges met Nov. 6 and 7 to pick one woman from 40 outstanding nominees to represent the northwest area at the National Suburban Homemaking Conference in Chicago Nov. 21 and 22.

They agreed the task wasn't easy, but it was an enjoyable experience. They were impressed with the qualifications. They were amazed at the versatility of today's suburbanite.

On the panel were Dr. Frank J. Smith, a psychologist and member of the Board of Education of High School District 214, Arlington Heights; Mrs. Frank Chesnick of Bensenville, president of the Altar and Rosary Society of St. Charles Borromeo Church; Mrs. Joan Corliss, home service director of Northern Illinois Gas Company; Mrs. William Darnall, Rolling Meadows City Clerk; and Mrs. Noble J. Puffer, wife of the Cook County Superintendent of Schools.

IDENTIFYING names and places were deleted as the nominating letters were read aloud to avoid any possible prejudice. It wasn't easy to make eliminations, but finally the field was narrowed somewhat and those letters carefully restudied.

After a five-hour session, there was an adjournment until Thursday evening, when the panel gathered again and those being considered as finalists were interviewed personally.

The judges themselves represented such fields as education, home economics, social service and civic affairs, as well as homemaking.

AN ACTIVE civic leader, Dr. Smith is director of employe attitude surveys for Sears, Roebuck and Co. He has worked in the Hasbrook Civic Association and is president of the Arlington Heights chapter, Northwest Mental Health Association.

He directed the 1962 and 1963 Cancer Crusades in the northwest suburban areas and last spring was elected to Board of Education of District 214.

Dr. Smith was graduated from the University of Illinois and Iowa State College and received his doctorate at the Illinois Institute of Technology. He teaches psychology at Loyola University evening school twice a week, belongs to several professional socieites and has written articles for professional hournals.

He lives at 1523 N. Kaspar Ave., Arlington Heights, with his wife, Bessie, and four children, Paula, 8; Joeffrey, 4; Wanda, 2, and Laurence, 1.

AN EXAMPLE of today's career homemaker, Mrs. Frank Chesnick is nursing supervisor at the Franklin Park Industrial Clinic. She has a daughter Joby, 6, who was not yet two years old when the Chesnicks moved into their present home at 807 Dennis Drive in the Brentwood subdivision of Bensenville.

Mrs. Chesnick, a graduate nurse rom Mercy Hospital in Oshkosh, Wis., belongs to the Elmhurst Area Nurses Association and the Brentwood Homeowners Association. She is serving this year as president of the Altar and Rosary Society of St. Charles Borromeo Church.

MRS. JOAN CORLISS enjoys the distinction of being, if not the youngest, at least one of the youngest directors of home economics in the state of Illinois, according to her boss.

As home service director for Northern Illinois Gas Co., she organizes and coordinates the activities of 25 home service girls in her department.

A graduate of the University of Illinois with a bachelor of science degree in vocational home economics, Mrs. Corliss has to plan effective demonstrations of gas appliances, create ideas for cooking schools and formulate programs for high school home economics classes.

Mrs. Corliss lives near Glen Ellyn. She has been with Northern Illinois Gas since 1956.

YEARS OF business and management experience qualified Mrs. William Darnall for her present position of city clerk in Rolling Meadows.

The city's only full-time elected official, Mrs. Darnall is serving her second four-year term.

She and her husband have lived at 3108 Starling Lane since 1956. Their son, David, a former Marine crops staff sergeant who attended the University of Illinois, works in California.

When the Darnalls lived in Chicago, Mrs. Darnall was offerred a position as resident manager of the 3520 Lake Shore Drive building, the first woman to hold this job. She continued in real estate management for 15 years.

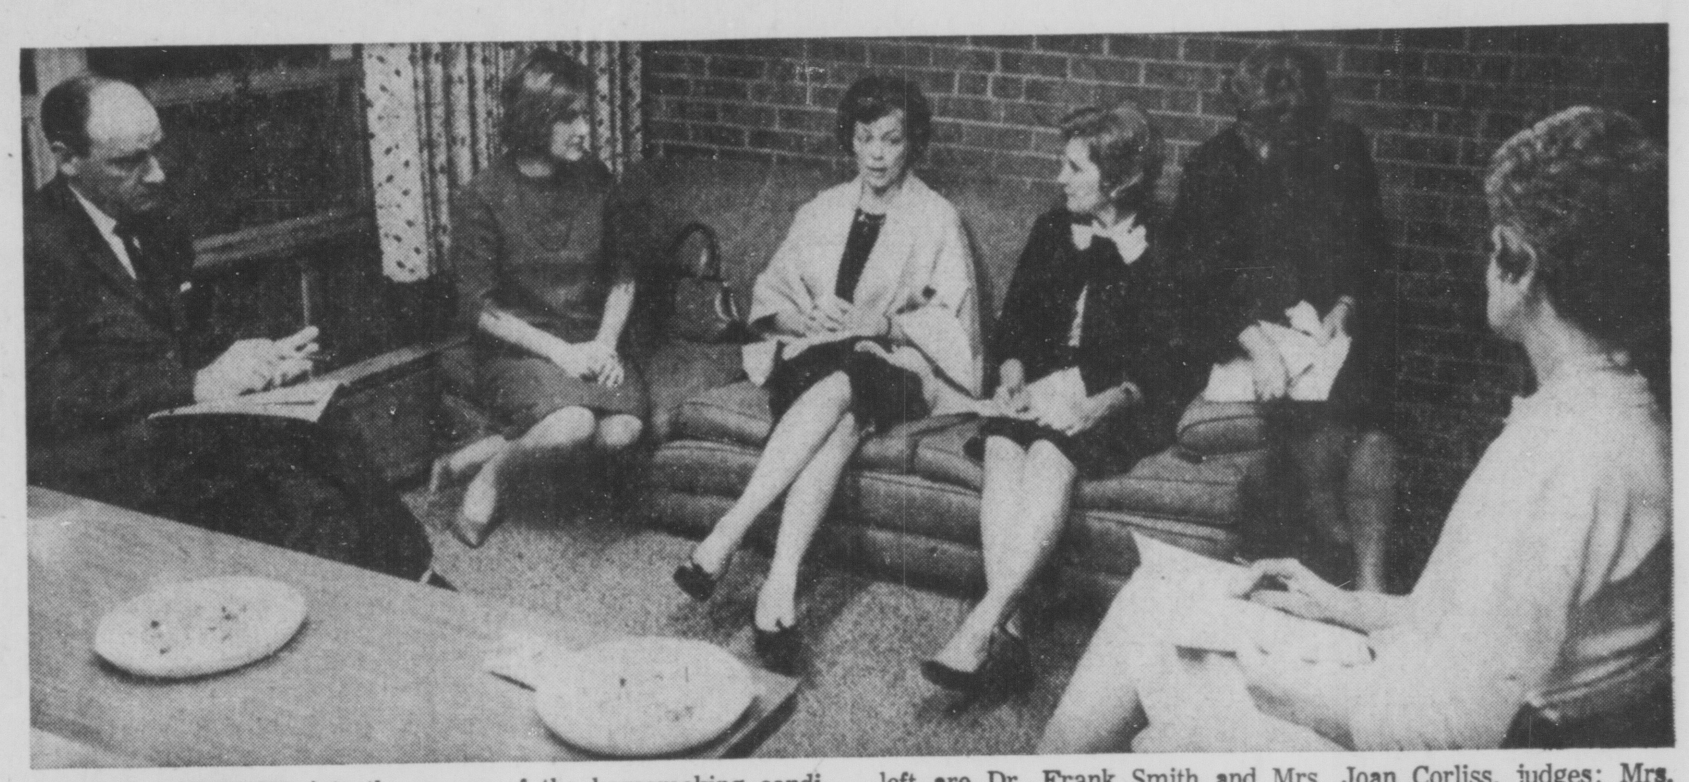
Mrs. Darnall was also the first woman ever to moderate a panel at an Illinois Municipal League Conference.

ART IS A major interest of Mrs. Noble J. Puffer, who describes herself as "just Noble's wife." She gives her husband credit for "doing over" their home at 155 S. Ela Road in Barrington.

However, she is home arts committee chairman of the Barrington Woman's Club, is a member of the local Chicago Art Institute group and a life member of the Institute and belongs to the PEO and the Drama League of Chicago.

A lover of antiques, Mrs. Puffer owns fine collections of luster, both sopper and lavender, old Jasperware and pink and cranberry glass.

She spends much time attending educational conferences with her husband. (SS



JUDGES LISTENED intently as one of the homemaking candidates told them her concept of a good homemaker, when they interviewed the five finalists, second stage of their deliberations to select the local Suburban Homemaker of the Year. Life Is Family Affair For Nominee Peg Neiweem

MRS. BERN NEIWEEM, a finalist in the 1963 Suburban Homemaker contest, stands in the kitchen of her Wheeling home where she does her weekly bread baking. A 1962 winner nominated Mrs. Neiweem. (SS

A nightly ritual for several years for Peggy and Bern Neiween of Wheeling was an after-dinner hike to relieve tensions and pressures of the day.

But last week Bern bought 15-year-old Bern Jr. a punching bag, and now the two fellows spend evenings in the garage muscle building. Peg figures the evening walks will resume when the novelty wears off.

Meanwhile, she has plenty of other interests to fill her evenings — and days.

Peg was nominated as "a living example of a good homemaker" by Beverly Modrow, one of the 1962 Suburban Homemakers of the Year. The judges agreed that Peg is outstanding and named her one of the finalists in the local search. She was honored at last night's award ceremony and received a silver bowl commemorating the occasion.

Peg enjoys a close relationship with her children, Jane, 13; John, 9, and Mark, 7, in addition to young Bern. She has been a room mother at school, and their home is always open to the children's friends.

But Peg and Bern are not permissive parents. Early age privileges are not given because of community popularity but are extended when the parents feel it is time.

Life with the Neiweems is a family affair. The summer pool pass and membership in the "Y" are used by all together. Family hikes through the forest preserve give an opportunity to study wild life. A few years ago they camped in a rugged cabin on the Appalachian Trail in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, packing in their supplies to the primitive cabin, where the water supply was a nearby mountain stream.

"We'd like to go back," Peg says.

For three years Peg has been a driver and sitter on election day. She helped raise funds for the Wheeling Community Pool, marched for Polio and Heart Fund, was co-chairman of a Catholic Woman's Club fashion show. She has been a Cub Scout Den mother for two years.

Active in her church and Catholic Woman's Club, she served a two-year term as medical mission chairman for the northwest district of ACCW, an organization which makes and collects medical supplies for overseas missions. Recently she worked part-time in the kitchen of Addolorata Villa, a home for aged women, and played cards with the ladies once a week.

Although she believes membership in a woman's organization "is an experience" not to be missed, she has cut her varied activities to concentrate on her work as volunteer librarian at both the grade and junior high schools "instead of evening meetings and committees."

Peg is particularly anxious to keep the evenings free and clear, since Bern's recent appointment as supervisor of burner service for Standard Oil. The telephone is out of bounds to the children after 4:30 each afternoon, until Bern phones what train he will take home.

"Meeting trains is a new experience," Peg finds. "Commuting by train is a whole new way of life for us."

Peg's homemaking skills are many. Her home-made German sausage, following a recipe handed down by Bern's grandmother, is a family favorite. On Saturday mornings the delicious aroma of freshly-baked bread comes from her kitchen.

Tailoring, knitting and making curtains and draperies are other talents of this all-around homemaker. Suffering from rheumatoid arthritis, she declines the heavy jobs around the house.

Just for her own amusement, she took a painting course two years ago to improve her latent artistic ability and learned to work with ceramics from a friend.

"Peg is living the goals many of us are trying to attain," according to Mrs. Modrow. "She is on call whether it be to sit in the middle of the night, do a sick neighbor's laundry or just to extend some good cheer to someone feeling blue." (SS

Shows Interest in Those Around Her

"A most gracious person and one who is vitally interested in the activities of those around her" is Mrs. Robert B. Applehans of Palatine.

That is the description written by Mrs. Alice Terrill of Mardan Estates in Long Grove, in nominating Mrs. Applehans for 1963 Suburban Homemaker of the year.

"Fran also manages to run her household in an orderly manner, maintains an attractive appearance at all times, sews and also does her share of entertaining," writes Mrs. Terrill.

MRS. APPLEHANS has held offices in the Palatine League of Women Voters, PTA, Cub Scouts and Girl Scouts and has been active in church work as well.

After piloting three sons through Cub Scouts, Mrs. Applehans was still willing and eager to sign up as a leader when it came time for daughter Mary to become a Brownie.

Fran and her husband and their three sons and one daughter recently moved into a new home at 177 Brentwood Ter. after many hours of planning their "dream house." Though busy at home and in the community, she has managed to help her husband in his business when necessary.

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Terrill, there are few activities in which Fran participates that do not include the family.

"All one has to do is to see the family together — at church, at home, at Scouts or camping — to know that each thinks the others are pretty special," says Mrs. Terrill.

"This cannot be realized unless the mother is a true homemaker," is her tribute to Fran Applehans. (SS

Courageous Mother Is Top Homemaker

Now Competes For National

by HESTER KLINE
Suburban Homemaker Editor

Fate deals out many roles, one of the hardest being a mother who must raise her children alone.

Nancy Bristol Manos, 314 W. Mueller St., Arlington Heights, is doing this with such spunk and success that judges named her the northwest area's Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

Mrs. Manos Wednesday night received the certificate of award and engraved silver tray from the Suburban Press Foundation, national sponsors of the Suburban Homemaker of the Year quest, and prizes valued at $1,000 from area businessmen. She will represent northwest suburbs at the National Suburban Homemaking Conference in Chicago next week.

THE MOST important part of homemaking, she told the judges, is raising her children. "Essentially I'm interested in how I mold my children, what they become."

This slender little woman for the past three years has shouldered the triple role of supporting her family, maintaining a house and raising four children, Jim, 12, John, 11, Margaret, almost 8, and Tony, 5.

Nancy Manos speaks with dignity and without embarrassment about her divorce, then dismisses this event of three years ago as she considers today's problems and looks to the future.

NANCY'S neighbors collaborated to nominate her for the homemaking honor. "We on Mueller Street have elected Nancy to this spot already," they wrote, "and she will always remain our Suburban Homemaker of the Year."

It was Mrs. Warren Weed of 410 Mueller St. who wrote the nominating letter, and received the $50 prize offered by Paddock Publications to the person or club whose candidate won.

These neighbors on this blocklong street just east of the Arlington High School announced proudly that "on this street there lives the greatest homemaker in all of Suburbia."

THEY CLAIM Nancy has "the courage and fortitude of three ordinary people." They have found her an "exceptionally warm and wonderful person." They remark that she never complains.

Naturally vivacious, with large, expressive eyes and a ready smile, Nancy is "afraid I cried a little bit" when she learned she had been nominated by her neighbors.

Mrs. Manos is a commercial artist, working mostly from her home, but occasionally at an advertising agency in Skokie. "Illustrating sounds too good," she insisted of the type of work she is doing. "It's mostly pen and ink, lettering, key lining."

SHE HAS a bachelor of fine arts degree from Wittenburg University in Ohio, and looks "to the day when I will have time on my hands to do all the creative things I want to."

She is moving into more creative fields. Since producing her own Christmas cards, she now has requests to make cards for others.

And posters! "Posters can be creative," she almost giggled as she told of making mobiles for one organization, received with some consternation by the committee.

IT WAS NATURAL that she should be appointed art chairman on the board of the Ridge PTA.

The First Methodist Church has also made wide use of her posters. At church she is study leader for her circle, and teaches Sunday School once a month to relieve the regular teacher.

Interior decorating ties in with her art talent. The Manos house is old, but Nancy has done her best to make it interesting and attractive with wallpaper and paint. Her paintings hang on the walls. Curtaining the old-fashioned windows called for ingenuity. A bright red door sings out the welcome the visitor meets when Nancy answers the knock.

THE HOUSE is devoted to the children. Shelves line the walls of a little room off the living room. There are kept the toys and games. The children keep a number of small pets. Pointing out two white rats in a big cage, gentle Nancy remarked she has become attached even to these rather unattractive animals.

Tony has been "mother's helper," but Nancy confessed that now she bakes cookies while he is in kindergarten. It's much quicker; and since he is "studying" like his older sister and brothers, it's mother's turn to help with his work. The two made a papier mache Indian last week, as the kindergarten class "studied" Indians.

Nancy and her children have deep affection and mutual respect for each other. She encourages scouting for the three older youngsters, and the boys have been active in the park programs.

SATURDAY mornings are set aside for chores around the house, although "sometimes I have to search my mind to find enough things that they can handle," Nancy admits.

"Sometimes it would be easier to do things myself, and maybe they would be done better," she said, "but I am strong in my belief children should have duties. I try to get across the idea that when you do a job, it is worth doing well."

The older boys recognize that they must earn spending money, and have raked leaves or cut grass for neighbors. Margaret, faced with earning money for a Sunday School project, hired out to sweep a neighbor's sidewalk.

NANCY IS neatly dressed and well groomed. She sews all of her clothes, and those of her daughter, even to tailoring winter coats.

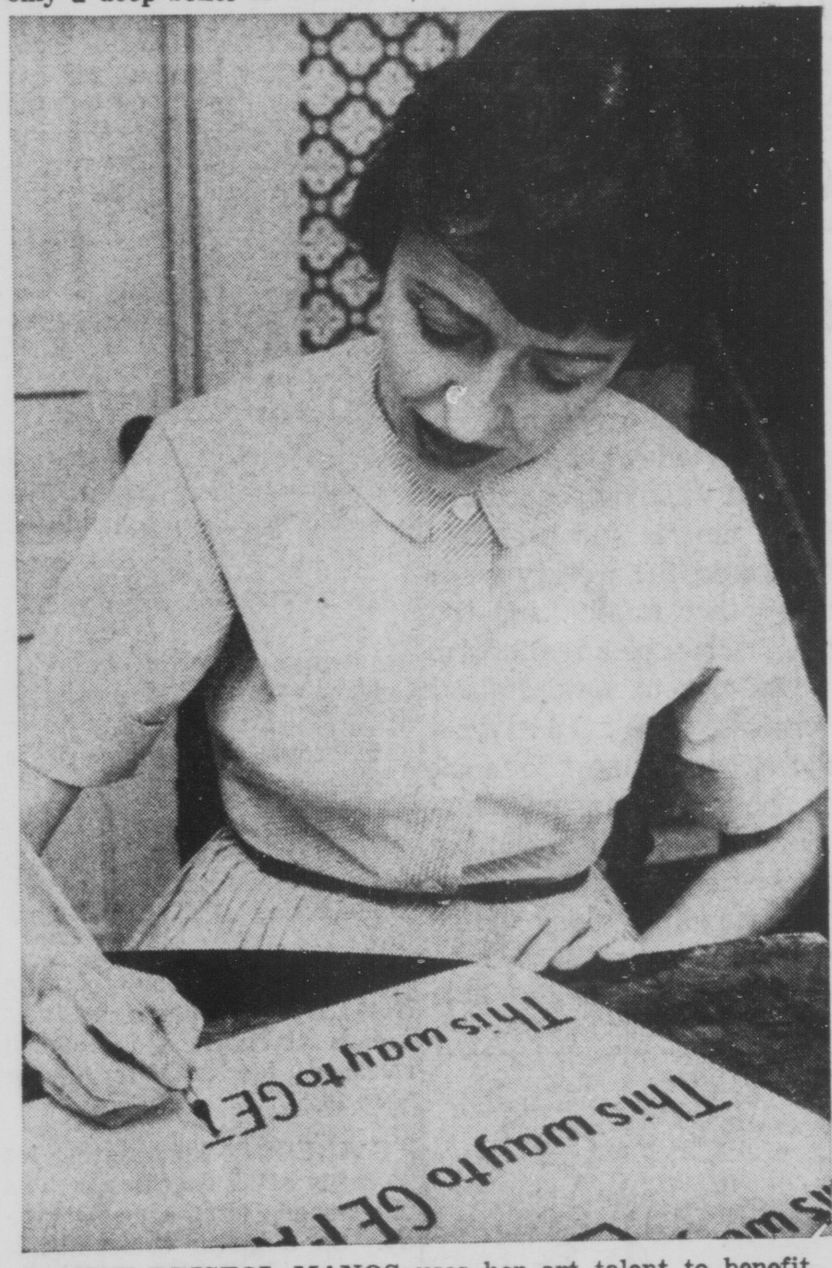
The financial arrangement of the Manos household is tight. Last February Nancy learned that major surgery was urgent. She had no time to store up her resources. The operation was a success, but she was out of work for eight weeks, including six weeks reporting to the hospital for X-ray treatment.

"She withstood this alone, except for what moral support her friends could provide," Mrs. Weed notes. "Through it all she has shown only a deep belief in God and her charming smile."

"Oh, it was wonderful to find out how wonderful people are," Nancy waved aside her own fortitude.

NANCY IS looking for more security than her free lance art work offers. Aware that teaching would give her a better income and that hours and holidays would coincide with the children's, she expects to get a provisional teaching certificate and teach next year.

As for the windfall in prizes from the businessmen, "I don't know what I'll do first," she exclaimed breathlessly.



NANCY BRISTOL MANOS uses her art talent to benefit her church and other affiliations by generously making posters for many events. (SS

Daughters Taught Old-Fashioned Way

Seven years of first-hand observation led Hope Thompson of Arlington Heights to nominate her sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Thompson, 176 Lincoln Lane, Des Plaines, as an outstanding homemaker.

Thelma Thompson's home is a happy, busy place, radiating hospitality.

IT IS AN old-fashioned home in that the three daughters, Susan, 8, Becky, 4, and Colleen, 1, are taught the word of God, respect and loyalty to their country, obedience to parents and courtesy and kindness to those they meet.

Although the Thompsons have lived in their rural home for four years, they are still active in their church in Chicago, Salem Evangelical Free Church, where Thelma sings with a trio, is on the board of the Salem Mission Home and has charge of daily vacation Bible school, as well as performing such duties as serving at church dinners.

THELMA HAS found a fine balance between her warm and hospitable home and outside activities. She is secretary of the Higgins PTA and member of a neighborhood club.

Thelma loves to sew for the girls as well as for herself, and when necessary, she can reupholster a piece of furniture or use a paint brush or roller with dexterity. (SS

Creates Warm, Loving Home

Today's suburban homemaker has to be an all-around manager — whether wielding a hammer, collecting for a fund drive, answering a child's question, or just cleaning her house.

Lois A. Upland, 540 E. Lincoln, Palatine, qualifies in all areas in the opinion of her sister, Mrs. W. J. Eisenzoph of Hermansville, Mich., who nominated her for Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

WHEN HUSBAND Edwin, a freight traffic manager for Chicago and North Western Railway, isn't home for fix-it jobs, Lois can use a hammer or plumbing tools to make the needed repairs.

She sews all her own clothes and those for daughters Marilyn, 13, and Marie, 7, and son Glenn, 11. She's used her seamstress talents to help others by acting as a leader for the 4-H extension Stitch and Chatter Sewing Club at the junior high school.

"Lois contributes to her family by creating a warm and loving environment," her sister writes. "She is always willing to help her children solve their problems and answers their many questions. She knows when to deal harshly with her children and when to be lenient.

"LOIS TEACHES them the need for justice and good sportsmanlike conduct and the need of good spiritual devotion."

Lois Upland takes an active interest in her children's activities, serving as a member of a Brownie Troop Committee and a Cadet Girl Scout Committee. She is an eighth grade room mother.

The need for spiritual devotion Lois recognizes is her own as well as her family's. She serves as chairman of St. Anthony's Guild, Palatine Catholic Church.

Mrs. Upland is helpful in her community as well at home, according to her sister.

SHE HAS helped at the blood bank and collected for cancer and polio. She participates in a community car pool to drive to school and church activities. She belongs to the Junior Woman's Club and American Association of University Women.

Lois keeps trim by bowling and playing golf. She stimulates her mind with membership in a play-reading group and has taken classes in tailoring, design and hat-making.

A graduate of Northern, Mich., College of Education at Marquette, she does substitute teaching in District 15.

WITH SUCH A busy life, Lois still has time to remember birthdays, anniversaries and other special events in the lives of her family and friends, Mrs. Eisenzoph says. (SS

Judges Select Winner

Courageous Mother Is Top Homemaker

Now Competes For National

by HESTER KLINE
Suburban Homemaker Editor

Fate deals out many roles, one of the hardest being a mother who must raise her children alone.

Nancy Bristol Manos, 314 W. Mueller St., Arlington Heights, is doing this with such spunk and success that judges named her the northwest area's Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

Mrs. Manos Wednesday night received the certificate of award and engraved silver tray from the Suburban Press Foundation, national sponsors of the Suburban Homemaker of the Year quest, and prizes valued at $1,000 from area businessmen. Radiant Personality Wins Her a Silver Dish

The radiant personality of Mary Gardner of Mount Prospect was compared to the vivid rosy-red currants of the Ribes aureum bush in a letter nominating Mrs. Gardner for the title of Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

Another friend who sent in a letter called her a "superb" homemaker, loved and respected by her family and in her community.

The judges found Mrs. Gardner so wholesome, so capable, so balanced in her many activities and interests, that they named her one of the five finalists in the local search, and Mary has a silver dish, appropriately engraved to commemorate the honor, her gift from Paddock Publications.

HER HUSBAND, Donald, a trouble shooter for Bell and Gossett, and three children, Gay, 21, Dianne, 17, and Donald, 10, are her prior consideration. Her household filled with activity but smooth running, still allows Mary time to devote attention to legions of friends made through the warmth of her personality as she devotes herself to family, church, philanthropic or social life.

No "yes" person is Mary. She knows when to say "no," gently and firmly. In matters requiring consideration, she is thoughtful and decisive. In matters requiring spur-of-the moment assistance, "no" never enters her head. She is the first to aid the ailing of body or heart, whether family or friends.

A youthful radiance matches that of her daughters. Gay, a senior at Upper Iowa University, will graduate with a double major, in history and in art, a field in which she has been an instructor for the past two years. She will appear in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." Dianne, a senior at Prospect, takes major roles in drama and music productions.

"YOU HAVE TO keep up with your children," Mary remarked, telling about a lecture on abstract art she attended.

Mary and her son, Donny, are fast friends. A ready laugh meets his boyish antics, or a soft but firm rebuke limits his enthusiasm when necessary.

The Gardner house at 1002 Pendleton Place was designed to fit family requirements. Mary's request to have a compact kitchen next to the family room was a bit unusual to the builder. Large overhead doors were installed at both ends of the garage, one end opening on the driveway and the other on a screened porch. A roll-up screen added this year to the driveway end provides a perfect setting for summer entertaining, protected from insects or showers.

"ALL OF MARY'S energies and endeavors in and out of her home are spurred by needs of her family and her community, and her desire to live a full-rounded life," summed up Mrs. William T. Mott, long-time friend of Mary's.

Mary took a job in Blue Birds when Gay joined the junior girls' organization and followed this course for six years as both Gay and then Dianne advanced into Camp Fire Girls.

When Donny was ready for Cub Scouting, so was Mary, who became an ingenuous and outstanding den mother. The totem pole her boys carved from a telephone pole was featured in Chicago as well as local newspapers.

MARY'S PRINCIPLES are firmly based on the Christian family, so as her children progressed to an active interest in church, she transferred more attention to church work. She has served in many capacities, including membership on the fellowship committee, creating handsome large-scale holiday church decorations, promoting sale of a cook book entitled "Guilded Recipes," and with her husband serving as committee chairman of Yomarcos (Young Married Couples).

Mary is a graduate nurse, trained at Ryburn Memorial Hospital in Ottawa. She is an active member of the Mount Prospect Nurses Club.

"She has never lost her innate, thoughtful readiness to do for others," attests Miss Bertha Ehard, Mount Prospect's dean of Camp Fire Girls.

Mary obtained for her an arthritic chair from the nurse's lending locker. Mary plans outings for Miss Ehard, and each year has taken her to McCormick Place to see the International Flower and Garden Show.

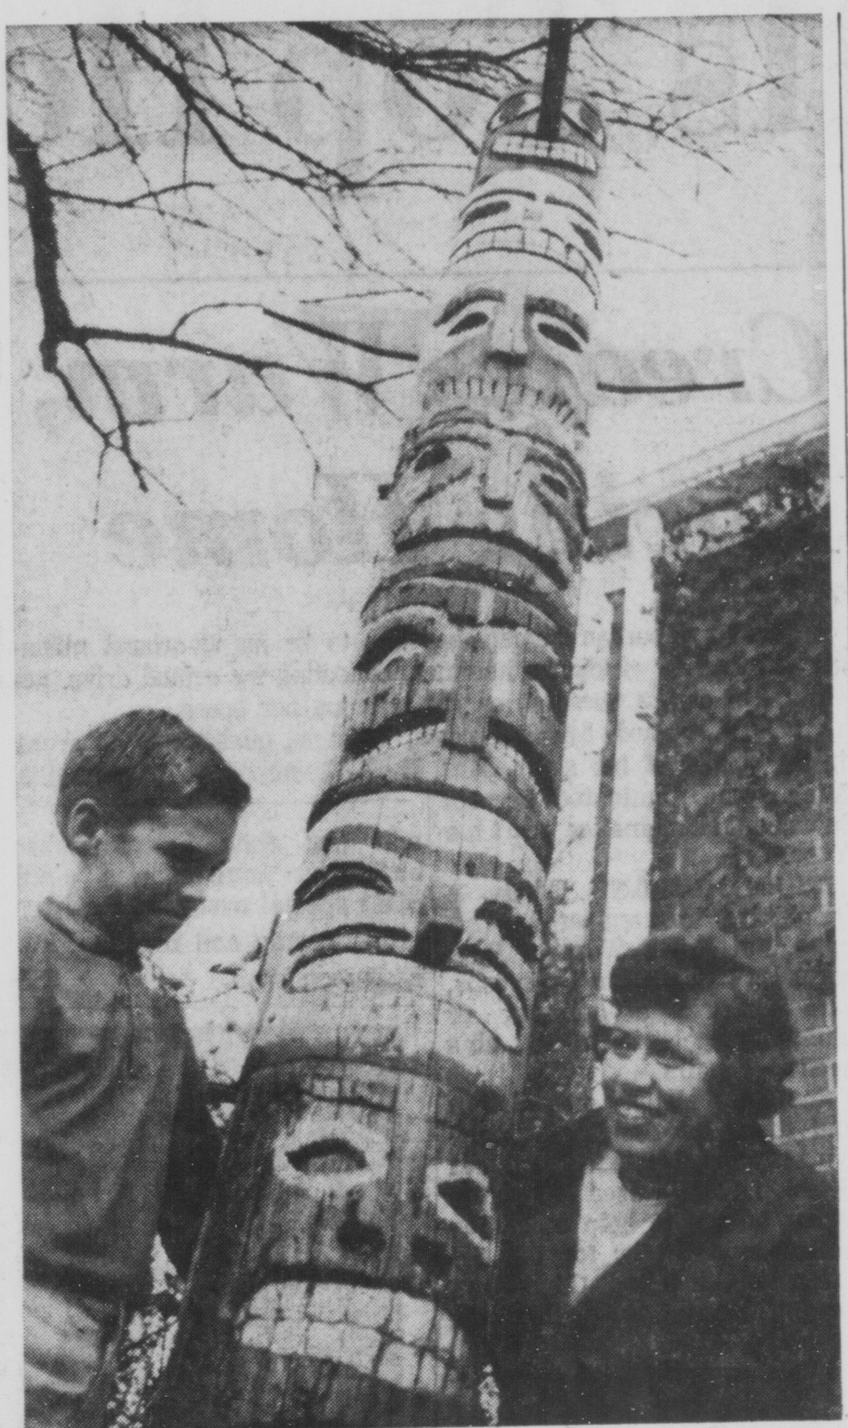
"FOR HOURS," Miss Ehard says, "she piloted me through all the exhibits in my wheel chair.

Mary is a lover of beauty for her home and family. A student of Mishi Kai School of Japanese Flower Arrangement (both Mary and Donald enjoy Oriental art, food and people), Mary is also studying to be a national flower show judge. She has many ribbons to show for her exhibits in various shows, one of them for an arrangement in the international show in Chicago. Mary belongs to Plum Grove Garden Club and is an enthusiastic charter member of the new Garden Club of Mount Prospect.

The Gardners have an avid interest in current events, and in contribution to her government, Mary has served as an election judge for six years.

Good management, and that ability to say "no," allow Mary time for fun. Mary loves to play bridge and belongs to three bridge groups. Several times a year she and her husband happily don formal attire to attend Bon Soir, a formal dinner and dance club of which they have been the treasurer couple. The Gardner home is frequently the scene of lively social gatherings of family and friends.

"An outstanding, devoted mother, capable homemaker, loyal, dependable, gracious friend," Miss Ehard and Mrs. Mott agree. (SS



MRS. DONALD GARDNER and son, Donald, 10, inspect the totem telephone pole made by her Cub Scout den to which Donny belongs. The Mount Prospect resident, nominated by friends, is among five finalists. (SS

Helps Husband

4-H Leader Lives Pledge

Youth organizations are a tremendous influence in molding the characters of children, especially when the leader is a woman like Mrs. Raymond Benson of 1050 E. Meadow Lane, Mount Prospect.

Eager that her own three daughters should learn homemaking skills, Kathleen Benson five years ago organized the Baste and Taste 4-H Club, and as she has taught the girls the fundamentals of cooking, sewing and other projects, she has been a living example of the 4-H pledge:

"I PLEDGE my head to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger service and my health to better living for my club, my community and my country."

The girls are learning the rewards of community service through their current project, selling candy to raise money for the Leukemia Fund.

A member of St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mrs. Benson is active in church affairs, teaches Sunday School and during the summer taught Bible School students.

SHE HAS been health chairman of the Feehanville PTA and belongs to the Booster Club of Prospect High School. She is also a member of the North Cook County Farm Bureau.

An avid decorator, she enjoys changing her home, and is now busy painting all the walls.

Taking phone calls and keeping the books for her husband's carpenter-contracting business is all part of the day's work for Kathleen Benson.

BUT WITH all these activities, her home, family and personal appearance are always the best, reports Mrs. Paul Seleski, a neighbor who nominated Mrs. Benson as Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

"Her family is proof of what a fine mother and wife she is," says Mrs. Seleski.

She Helps Others, Children Help Her

Automatic washers are a boon to today's homemakers, but washing for a family of nine is still a sizable task. Add the weekly wash of another family, and the laundry can be a real chore.

But not to Mrs. Robert Schwass, 708 Garland Place, Des Plaines. She took on the extra work voluntarily for six months when she discovered a Mexican family struggling along while the mother was ill.

At Christmas, the five little children brought flowers gift-wrapped in newspaper from the greenhouse where the father was employed, to say thank you.

MRS. SCHWASS was nominated as homemaker of the year by Marge Carle of Arlington Heights. The Carles moved in with the Schwass family for four months while a new house was being completed.

The home atmosphere is cheerful and informal, the family active and the house itself immaculate, Mrs. Carle testifies.

The children, ranging in age from 21 to 4, entertain their friends at home, and often on weekends the table is set for 14 to 16.

CATHERINE Schwass carries on many small charities such as the laundry for the needy family. On a larger scale, she is now president of the Chicago Archdiocese Council of Catholic Women, a post that requires her to make speeches, attend inter-racial conferences and similar activities.

Mrs. Schwass has no household help other than her children, who take a responsible attitude toward their duties and toward each other.

"After I've been out at these meetings and conferences, the four walls of home look good," Catherine Schwass says. "I can think and mull over the things I have learned while I'm scrubbing the floor."

CATHERINE and her tool and die maker husband have an active social life of their own. They entertain frequently, are interested in football and are great hockey fans.

Second Annual Conference

FBI Official to Address Nation's Top Homemakers

Keynote speaker at the second annual Suburban Homemaking Conference next week will be top official of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Inspector Edward C. Kemper Jr., discussing "Our Great Responsibilities," will point out the suburban family's role in coping with juvenile delinquency as decentralization of population changes behavior patterns.

During his 22 years of Bureau service, Inspector Kemper has held assignments throughout the country. His work has given him a broad understanding of the changing American pattern of living and of sociological changes which have far reaching implications.

OUTSTANDING suburban homemakers from across the nation will attend the conference next Thursday and Friday at the Drake Hotel in Chicago.

The 1963 Suburban Homemaker of the Year from Northwest suburbs will join her counterparts from throughout the United States, one of whom will be named National Suburban Homemaker of the Year and win a $5,000 award from the American Dairy Association.

The conference and homemaker search award are sponsored by the Suburban Press Foundation, Inc., of which Paddock Publications newspapers are members.

This second annual conference will be an expanded version of last year's successful format. The homemakers will be interviewed by top marketing and merchandising representatives, taking time out for luncheon, on Thursday.

EDWARD KEMPER

INVITATIONS to the conference have been sent to representatives of professional, social service and civic organizations, as well as of business and industry, so the conference will be an opinion and habit study conducted with an important cross section of the national suburban market.

Homemakers who attended the conference last year were enthusiastic about the panel discussions. They later commented they learned much and found inspiration at the meeting.

MEANWHILE, the national judges will have met on Nov. 20 in a closed suite at the Drake Hotel to consider the entries for the national honor, and during Thursday's conference they will briefly interview all the local winners.

THERE WILL be no advance announcement of the winner and three runners-up, so when the homemakers and their husbands, the Suburban Press Foundation publishers and their staff members, adjourn to Kungsholm for an evening of fun after the Thursday meetings, the National Suburban Homemaker of the Year will be among the party-goers, but neither she nor anyone except the judges will know her identity.

After dinner at the famous restaurant on Chicago's near north side, the entire group will view a performance of "La Tosca" by the puppet opera.

AT 11 A.M. Nov. 22 the award presentation will take place in the Gold Coast Room.

Radiant Personality Wins Her a Silver Dish

MRS. DONALD GARDNER and son, Donald, 10, inspect the totem telephone pole made by her Cub Scout den to which Donny belongs. The Mount Prospect resident, nominated by friends, is among five finalists. (SS

The radiant personality of Mary Gardner of Mount Prospect was compared to the vivid rosy-red currants of the Ribes aureum bush in a letter nominating Mrs. Gardner for the title of Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

Another friend who sent in a letter called her a "superb" homemaker, loved and respected by her family and in her community.

The judges found Mrs. Gardner so wholesome, so capable, so balanced in her many activities and interests, that they named her one of the five finalists in the local search, and Mary has a silver dish, appropriately engraved to commemorate the honor, her gift from Paddock Publications.

HER HUSBAND, Donald, a trouble shooter for Bell and Gossett, and three children, Gay, 21, Dianne, 17, and Donald, 10, are her prior consideration. Her household filled with activity but smooth running, still allows Mary time to devote attention to legions of friends made through the warmth of her personality as she devotes herself to family, church, philanthropic or social life.

No "yes" person is Mary. She knows when to say "no," gently and firmly. In matters requiring consideration, she is thoughtful and decisive. In matters requiring spur-of-the moment assistance, "no" never enters her head. She is the first to aid the ailing of body or heart, whether family or friends.

A youthful radiance matches that of her daughters. Gay, a senior at Upper Iowa University, will graduate with a double major, in history and in art, a field in which she has been an instructor for the past two years. She will appear in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." Dianne, a senior at Prospect, takes major roles in drama and music productions.

"YOU HAVE TO keep up with your children," Mary remarked, telling about a lecture on abstract art she attended.

Mary and her son, Donny, are fast friends. A ready laugh meets his boyish antics, or a soft but firm rebuke limits his enthusiasm when necessary.

The Gardner house at 1002 Pendleton Place was designed to fit family requirements. Mary's request to have a compact kitchen next to the family room was a bit unusual to the builder. Large overhead doors were installed at both ends of the garage, one end opening on the driveway and the other on a screened porch. A roll-up screen added this year to the driveway end provides a perfect setting for summer entertaining, protected from insects or showers.

"ALL OF MARY'S energies and endeavors in and out of her home are spurred by needs of her family and her community, and her desire to live a full-rounded life," summed up Mrs. William T. Mott, long-time friend of Mary's.

Mary took a job in Blue Birds when Gay joined the junior girls' organization and followed this course for six years as both Gay and then Dianne advanced into Camp Fire Girls.

When Donny was ready for Cub Scouting, so was Mary, who became an ingenuous and outstanding den mother. The totem pole her boys carved from a telephone pole was featured in Chicago as well as local newspapers.

MARY'S PRINCIPLES are firmly based on the Christian family, so as her children progressed to an active interest in church, she transferred more attention to church work. She has served in many capacities, including membership on the fellowship committee, creating handsome large-scale holiday church decorations, promoting sale of a cook book entitled "Guilded Recipes," and with her husband serving as committee chairman of Yomarcos (Young Married Couples).

Mary is a graduate nurse, trained at Ryburn Memorial Hospital in Ottawa. She is an active member of the Mount Prospect Nurses Club.

"She has never lost her innate, thoughtful readiness to do for others," attests Miss Bertha Ehard, Mount Prospect's dean of Camp Fire Girls.

Mary obtained for her an arthritic chair from the nurse's lending locker. Mary plans outings for Miss Ehard, and each year has taken her to McCormick Place to see the International Flower and Garden Show.

"FOR HOURS," Miss Ehard says, "she piloted me through all the exhibits in my wheel chair.

Mary is a lover of beauty for her home and family. A student of Mishi Kai School of Japanese Flower Arrangement (both Mary and Donald enjoy Oriental art, food and people), Mary is also studying to be a national flower show judge. She has many ribbons to show for her exhibits in various shows, one of them for an arrangement in the international show in Chicago. Mary belongs to Plum Grove Garden Club and is an enthusiastic charter member of the new Garden Club of Mount Prospect.

The Gardners have an avid interest in current events, and in contribution to her government, Mary has served as an election judge for six years.

Good management, and that ability to say "no," allow Mary time for fun. Mary loves to play bridge and belongs to three bridge groups. Several times a year she and her husband happily don formal attire to attend Bon Soir, a formal dinner and dance club of which they have been the treasurer couple. The Gardner home is frequently the scene of lively social gatherings of family and friends.

"An outstanding, devoted mother, capable homemaker, loyal, dependable, gracious friend," Miss Ehard and Mrs. Mott agree. (SS

4-H Leader Lives Pledge

Youth organizations are a tremendous influence in molding the characters of children, especially when the leader is a woman like Mrs. Raymond Benson of 1050 E. Meadow Lane, Mount Prospect.

Eager that her own three daughters should learn homemaking skills, Kathleen Benson five years ago organized the Baste and Taste 4-H Club, and as she has taught the girls the fundamentals of cooking, sewing and other projects, she has been a living example of the 4-H pledge:

"I PLEDGE my head to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger service and my health to better living for my club, my community and my country."

The girls are learning the rewards of community service through their current project, selling candy to raise money for the Leukemia Fund.

A member of St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mrs. Benson is active in church affairs, teaches Sunday School and during the summer taught Bible School students.

SHE HAS been health chairman of the Feehanville PTA and belongs to the Booster Club of Prospect High School. She is also a member of the North Cook County Farm Bureau.

An avid decorator, she enjoys changing her home, and is now busy painting all the walls.

Taking phone calls and keeping the books for her husband's carpenter-contracting business is all part of the day's work for Kathleen Benson.

BUT WITH all these activities, her home, family and personal appearance are always the best, reports Mrs. Paul Seleski, a neighbor who nominated Mrs. Benson as Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

"Her family is proof of what a fine mother and wife she is," says Mrs. Seleski.

She Helps Others, Children Help Her

Automatic washers are a boon to today's homemakers, but washing for a family of nine is still a sizable task. Add the weekly wash of another family, and the laundry can be a real chore.

But not to Mrs. Robert Schwass, 708 Garland Place, Des Plaines. She took on the extra work voluntarily for six months when she discovered a Mexican family struggling along while the mother was ill.

At Christmas, the five little children brought flowers gift-wrapped in newspaper from the greenhouse where the father was employed, to say thank you.

MRS. SCHWASS was nominated as homemaker of the year by Marge Carle of Arlington Heights. The Carles moved in with the Schwass family for four months while a new house was being completed.

The home atmosphere is cheerful and informal, the family active and the house itself immaculate, Mrs. Carle testifies.

The children, ranging in age from 21 to 4, entertain their friends at home, and often on weekends the table is set for 14 to 16.

CATHERINE Schwass carries on many small charities such as the laundry for the needy family. On a larger scale, she is now president of the Chicago Archdiocese Council of Catholic Women, a post that requires her to make speeches, attend inter-racial conferences and similar activities.

Mrs. Schwass has no household help other than her children, who take a responsible attitude toward their duties and toward each other.

"After I've been out at these meetings and conferences, the four walls of home look good," Catherine Schwass says. "I can think and mull over the things I have learned while I'm scrubbing the floor."

CATHERINE and her tool and die maker husband have an active social life of their own. They entertain frequently, are interested in football and are great hockey fans.

Second Annual Conference

FBI Official to Address Nation's Top Homemakers

EDWARD KEMPER

Keynote speaker at the second annual Suburban Homemaking Conference next week will be top official of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Inspector Edward C. Kemper Jr., discussing "Our Great Responsibilities," will point out the suburban family's role in coping with juvenile delinquency as decentralization of population changes behavior patterns.

During his 22 years of Bureau service, Inspector Kemper has held assignments throughout the country. His work has given him a broad understanding of the changing American pattern of living and of sociological changes which have far reaching implications.

OUTSTANDING suburban homemakers from across the nation will attend the conference next Thursday and Friday at the Drake Hotel in Chicago.

The 1963 Suburban Homemaker of the Year from Northwest suburbs will join her counterparts from throughout the United States, one of whom will be named National Suburban Homemaker of the Year and win a $5,000 award from the American Dairy Association.

The conference and homemaker search award are sponsored by the Suburban Press Foundation, Inc., of which Paddock Publications newspapers are members.

This second annual conference will be an expanded version of last year's successful format. The homemakers will be interviewed by top marketing and merchandising representatives, taking time out for luncheon, on Thursday.

INVITATIONS to the conference have been sent to representatives of professional, social service and civic organizations, as well as of business and industry, so the conference will be an opinion and habit study conducted with an important cross section of the national suburban market.

Homemakers who attended the conference last year were enthusiastic about the panel discussions. They later commented they learned much and found inspiration at the meeting.

MEANWHILE, the national judges will have met on Nov. 20 in a closed suite at the Drake Hotel to consider the entries for the national honor, and during Thursday's conference they will briefly interview all the local winners.

THERE WILL be no advance announcement of the winner and three runners-up, so when the homemakers and their husbands, the Suburban Press Foundation publishers and their staff members, adjourn to Kungsholm for an evening of fun after the Thursday meetings, the National Suburban Homemaker of the Year will be among the party-goers, but neither she nor anyone except the judges will know her identity.

After dinner at the famous restaurant on Chicago's near north side, the entire group will view a performance of "La Tosca" by the puppet opera.

AT 11 A.M. Nov. 22 the award presentation will take place in the Gold Coast Room.

Former Model Prefers Her Children, Dogs, Music

Never underestimate a woman!

Frank X. Barr of Buffalo Grove learned that when his wife, Edythe, who smoked two packages of cigarettes a day for nine years, gave it up to pay for dog food so she could keep a magnificent male collies pup, son of her Bonnie that she had put through obedience school.

A member of the Northwest Obedience Club and Central States Collie Club, Edythe Barr finds relaxation in walking the three collies which share the family's affection with a golden kitten.

Edythe flicked an imaginary speck of dust from her grand piano as she talked about her music, her children, her home and her dogs.

SHE WAS nominated for Suburban Homemaker of the Year by her father, Victor Vizor, who moved to Buffalo Grove a year ago to be near his only daughter and her family.

He recalls that his attractive daughter, once a photographic and fashion model in Chicago stores, turned down a fashion career to study at the Sherwood Music School and become a teacher of voice, piano and composition. Recently she has resumed her piano teaching.

Mrs. Barr once composed a complete symphony for 60 instruments and has set to music the works of Edgar Allen Poe and other poets. She met her husband when both were purchasing music.

THEIR CHILDREN are Bruce, 14; Alison, 12, and Jeffry, 10. The boys have been made Knights of the Altar at St. Mary's Church, all three children are in Scouting, and during Buffalo Grove Days they won blue ribbons and the Junior Olympic Award.

Bruce was voted a $25 savings bond by the village board for conscientiously raising and lowering the American flag in the local park for over a year. Alison won a crate of apples for her class by writing an essay telling why she thinks her teacher is one of the best.

These are examples of how the children respond to their parents' interest in their activities.

"If all mothers were homemakers such as Edythe is," concludes her father, "we would all have less to worry about regarding the coming generation."

MRS. FRANK X. BARR of Buffalo Grove, nominated by her father as 1963 Suburban Homemaker, enjoys a few minutes at her grand piano. A music teacher, she also trains collie dogs.

Church Worker Is Inspiration to Others

LaVerne Sladek is one of the charter members of the Community Church of Rolling Meadows. She has been an inspiration to others since the church was organized in a barn in 1955, to the present when it is quartered in fine facilities at Meadow Drive and Kirchoff Road.

In recognition of her devoted service, the Women's Association of the church has nominated Mrs. George Sladek, 2305 George St., Rolling Meadows, for the honor of Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

"The only reason she ever gets behind in her housework is because of church work," says one of her close friends.

LaVerne serves on the board of deaconesses and is service chairman of the Women's Association.

"WHEN YOU WALK in the kitchen door at her home, there's a loving and cozy atmosphere," her friends report.

LaVerne knows how to take advantage of a bargain when shopping.

"This comes from my Bohemian background," she laughs.

Meals are well-balanced and the table attractively set. She watches the church thrift shop for good buys on winter jackets and other apparel for her rapidly growing sons.

LaVERNE AND her engineer husband will celebrate their 20th anniversary next year, as well as their 10th year of living in Rolling Meadows.

They are the understanding parents of two boys. George Jr., a senior at Forest View High School and a top cross country runner, has applied for admission to Bradley University next fall. Randolph, better known as Randy, is an eighth grader at Carl Sandburg School.

When den mothers were needed in Cub Scouts, LaVerne volunteered for the four-year stint so Randy and other boys could join Scouts.

Since her father's death in 1957, the Sladeks have made room in their home for LaVerne's mother. When a sister was in the hospital, it was the Sladeks who cared for a young niece and nephew.

LaVERNE ALWAYS wears a smile and frequently has been called by neighbors when a pastor wasn't available. If transportation is needed, she drives.

A proud gardener, LaVerne said her roses bloomed three times this summer.

"The yellow ones were particularly nice," she remarked.

Knowing that the minister's wife is fond of roses, LaVerne kept her supplied and took bouquets to church.

"We in the Women's Association feel that LaVerne is truly a beautiful friend to have," agreed the group who know her so well. (SS

'Help the Living' Is Her Philosophy

Being the kind of housekeeper, mother, wife and woman her mother is is the goal of Dee Ann Guthrie of 3601 Wilke Road, Rolling Meadows.

She nominated her mother, Mrs. Ronald Farley, 838 Rose Ave., Des Plaines, for the honor of Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

A very young working mother, Dee Ann and her husband, Joe, have two small children. Mrs. Farley cares for the babies while Dee Ann works, doing the shopping for her daughter, cooking extra quantities of food for her to take home when she picks up the children, and doing laundry for the young family.

THEN, MRS. Farley takes off for her own job as a waitress.

Mrs. Farley's second marriage brought with it a ready-made family, Susan, now 15, and Jimmy, 14.

"I consider them my real brother and sister," Dee Ann remarked.

The two families attend church together twice on Sundays, with a family-style dinner between services.

A DEEPLY religious woman, Mrs. Farley, who comes from Utah, finds Midwesterners somewhat cold in their attitudes towards others.

"The only thing you can do is help people while they're living," is her philosophy.

Dee Ann testifies that "she'll do anything in the world for people as long as they are happy."

When Mrs. Farley bakes, she includes something extra for one of the neighbors.

"To have good neighbors you have to be a good neighbor," she reasons.

MRS. GRAHAM MORGAN of Arlington Heights recalls her 13 years as a Girl Scout Leader. Her daughter, Kathleen, now married, nominated her mother for the Homemaker title.

Alumni to Have Dance

Chicagoland alumni of Bradley University will gather for their autumn dinner - dance on Saturday, Nov. 16, at Glendale Country Club on U.S. 20 near Bloomingdale.

Mother to All—Mrs. Morgan Befriends Many Young People

A woman who is "mother" to all young people who come her way — that is Mrs. Graham Morgan, 1010 N. Harvard, Arlington Heights. She was nominated by her own daughter and an "adopted" son for the honor of Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

"She should be crowned 'Homemaker of the Century,' " claims Kathleen Morgan Gruner of Littleton, Col., who was visiting her parents when the search began for outstanding homemakers of 1963.

A young man of Hawaiian-Japanese ancestry, Thomas T. Kurisu, thinks of Mrs. Morgan as the "all-American suburban homemaker."

"BY HER MANY years of fine experience, executing the right plays, she has knitted her family into one excellent team. In doing so, she received 100 per cent cooperation from her team. No task is too great for her to tackle," Kurisu said in his letter of nomination.

Mrs. Morgan possesses a quality of universal motherhood — love of young people everywhere and under all conditions. Mother of two sons and a daughter, all grown and married, and grandmother of three, she has extended her concern to many outside the family circle.

WHEN LIVING near Cleveland some years ago, she was a volunteer with the Cleveland Youth Bureau. Some of her dearest treasures are letters she received from those she befriended, thanking her for her mental and moral help, her love and kindness, her generosity in supplying clothing, books, writing materials.

While her own children were growing up, she was a Girl Scout leader for 13 years. In that capacity she was the only adult Scout to represent all the then 48 states and Canada at the YMCA Centennial at Oberlin College.

IT WAS THERE in 1951 that Kurisu, then a high school student in Hawaii, met Mrs. Morgan and became one of her "adoptee" children. After high school, the young man joined the Air Force and was sent to North Africa.

"It was a desolate place," he recalls, "but Mrs. Morgan's letters were 'like aspirin are to a headache.' They were full of joy and spark, seemed to pick me up and do wonders to my faith."

HER JOY IN life Mrs. Morgan also injects into her housekeeping and cooking.

Daughter Kathleen remembers the "delicious meals," the lemon meringue pies "with meringue an inch high," fluffy hot biscuits and other goodies made by her mother.

Through the years Mrs. Morgan has been quite a seamstress, too, sewing curtains and slipcovers, formals for Kathleen, Halloween costumes not only for her own youngsters but for neighbor children as well. Knitting and crocheting were kept handy for spare moments.

THE COMFORTABLY furnished Morgan home shows signs of use. A young man who visited the family once commented, "This is a home that puts its arms around you."

Tall and slender with reddish blond hair, Hazel Morgan found too much time on her hands as her children grew up. When her youngest was a high school senior, she became a secretary, and soon it will be four years since she opened her Executive Secretarial Service in Arlington Heights.

In her husband's opinion, "only a person with such superb skill and unique personality could raise a family and then go out single-handed into a successful business of her own. . ."

Widow Rears Family In Spite of Illness

A woman who has been both mother and father to her children, kept a nice home and been an inspiration to her two daughters and a son, has been nominated by one daughter for the suburban homemaking honor.

She is Mrs. E. J. Dresmal, 1106 W. Wing St., Arlington Heights, who arranged her work since the death of her husband 12 years ago so she was always home when the children returned from school.

"I REMEMBER happy times," writes Nancyanne, now a student at Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital in training for a nursing career.

The youngsters had trips, went fishing and picnicking, enjoyed outdoor cooking and hikes and played games with their mother.

Mrs. Dresmal attends church regularly, has taught Sunday School for 11 years, been church librarian, a deaconess and circle chairman and a Westminster Foundation representative.

SHE IS ONE of the dependables when there is a fund raising drive, helping with the Heart Fund, March of Dimes, Red Cross, Muscular Dystrophy, Boy and Girl Scout drives. She was co-chairman of the cancer drive for Arlington Heights in 1955. As a pink lady volunteer at Northwest Community Hospital, she spends Saturday evenings working at the hospital.

Twice during the years she was raising her three children all alone, she had major surgery. She is now a cured cancer patient, but has chronic rheumatic fever.

Withal, she is a cheerful and happy person, radiating a happy outlook on life.

HER CHILDREN consider themselves well looked after. After college, the older girl went on to earn her master's degree. Now married, she is teaching school in Colorado. Jim graduated from college, too, and is now with the army in Korea. His mother writes to him every other day. Nancyanne is in nurse's training.

"She is loved and respected by all of us and we hold her in deep affection," says Nancyanne. "She has been quite a success. She's the best."

Former Teacher Uses Her Home Ec Skills

A woman who wanted — and got — a rototiller for her birthday now has asked Santa to bring her a paint sprayer, the compressor type.

She is Mrs. Myron Johnson, 1808 Park Place, Arlington Heights, the Wheeling Junior Woman's Club candidate for Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

A close budgeting of time is needed to squeeze in all the things Joanne Johnson does.

For one thing, she makes each member of the family —the seven children range in age from 12 to 1½—feel his importance as a contributing member. Sharing is important.

"In our home, God is always talked of as being right here and a part of our life," Joanne says. "He is not a 'Sunday' thing."

The family says evening rosary, and grace is as much a part of meals as dessert.

THE DINNER table is the time for family conversation, and topics range from the birth of a baby to batting averages, her friends say. Whatever the question raised, it is answered fully on the spot.

As a unit the Johnsons swim and play volleyball and partake o. other activities at the YMCA, take hikes in the nearby forest preserve. Scouts and Little League are encouraged.

Because of the growing family, the Johnsons added a four-room addition to their home, set on acreage.

"The addition is bigger than the original house," Mrs. Johnson said of the new section which her husband designed himself.

Myron Johnson is an electrical engineer doing research for Stewart Warner. He went to Marquette University, and in January will enroll at the University of Chicago to work toward his master's degree in business administration.

Joanne, herself an education major from Southwest Missouri State with lots of home economics and art courses, taught school for two years.

SHE USES her home ec skills to good advantage.

"Joanne has been known to whip up a new outfit including a hat for a meeting, with a new hairdo and makeup to go with it," her friends claim.

She also knits, and has recently completed a mohair coat. To improve her techniques, she brushed up her tailoring knowledge from college courses with a refresher at Arlington High night school. Now she makes her husband's suits.

She does some dressmaking for others to supplement the family income. Selling cosmetics is another source of revenue for her.

THIS indefatigable woman is a "plain dirt gardener." She canned 350 quarts of food from her garden, and her freezer is stocked with full meals.

Her boundless energy spills over to the community. The Junior Woman's Club considers her an "invaluable member." Joanne has been on the executive board, including the post of first vice president which includes being dean of chairmen and coordinating the work of all committees. This year she is American Home chairman. She's learning creweling and flower arranging so she can teach other members.

She is a room mother at school.

Joanne's vibrant personality and wholesome attitude are an inspiration to her friends, who say she influences them to strive for "greater success as homemakers and citizens."

'Help the Living' Is Her Philosophy

Being the kind of housekeeper, mother, wife and woman her mother is is the goal of Dee Ann Guthrie of 3601 Wilke Road, Rolling Meadows.

She nominated her mother, Mrs. Ronald Farley, 838 Rose Ave., Des Plaines, for the honor of Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

A very young working mother, Dee Ann and her husband, Joe, have two small children. Mrs. Farley cares for the babies while Dee Ann works, doing the shopping for her daughter, cooking extra quantities of food for her to take home when she picks up the children, and doing laundry for the young family.

THEN, MRS. Farley takes off for her own job as a waitress.

Mrs. Farley's second marriage brought with it a ready-made family, Susan, now 15, and Jimmy, 14.

"I consider them my real brother and sister," Dee Ann remarked.

The two families attend church together twice on Sundays, with a family-style dinner between services.

A DEEPLY religious woman, Mrs. Farley, who comes from Utah, finds Midwesterners somewhat cold in their attitudes towards others.

"The only thing you can do is help people while they're living," is her philosophy.

Dee Ann testifies that "she'll do anything in the world for people as long as they are happy."

When Mrs. Farley bakes, she includes something extra for one of the neighbors.

"To have good neighbors you have to be a good neighbor," she reasons.

Keeps Busy with Mission Work, Children's Interests

Life is full of choices, but sometimes a person gets to fulfill more than one dearest desire.

This is true for Mrs. Antonio Toledano, 2104 Hawk Lane, Rolling Meadows.

"If I hadn't chosen the married state, I would have been a missionary," she confesses.

It was long after her marriage that a small incident started her on the mission work that now engrosses her.

Tony Toledano, Mexican-born artist with Foote, Cone and Belding, came home from work despondent. Isabel learned his depression stemmed from seeing little Spanish American children waiting for the school bus on the cold morning, rubbing their bare hands to warm them.

"Don't you have some mittens and scarves of the children's that we could give them," he asked his wife.

"I CAN'T keep them in mittens," she replied.

Their own five, Michael, 13; Anthony, 12; Marlene, 10; James, 6, and Kathy, 4, are prone to lose mittens.

But the matter preyed on her mind and heart, and the next day she started a campaign among her friends and neighbors to collect a supply of warm clothing for these children.

The Toledano home has become a collection spot for clothing, food and books for missions, and Isabel is chairman of missionary work aiding Spanish-speaking people of the northwest area for St. Colette Catholic Woman's Club, as well as recording secretary. Each summer for a six-week period she helps the missionary nuns in Buffalo Grove teach the children of migrant workers.

It was at the summer school that she met Sister Therese Mary, and the two have pooled their resources to increase the volume of their missionary work.

IT WAS happenstance that she met Father Vadakaen, a Carmelite father and native of India, who was in this country seeking support of his medical clinic in India. Isabel Toledano invited him to her home, and soon she was so interested in his project that she started a collection of medical supplies and books for him to take back with him. She continues the project, and gathers works of non-fiction, literature, reference and texts for his non-denominational library.

At holiday time, this devoted woman seeks donations of food to prepare baskets for needy families.

Isabel Toledano attended Mundelein College in Chicago. She expects all of her children to go to college, and "God willing," she, too, hopes to return to the classroom and earn her degree some day.

Isabel keeps her pet projects in proportion, so she has time for her children's interests. She teaches Christian doctrine to a class of children once a week in her home, and for the past two years has been a Cub Scout Den mother.

"I LOVE TO sew," she admits. "It gives me an opportunity to sit down."

One of her specialities is Italian pastries, made from a recipe handed down in her family.

"I suppose it isn't traditional anymore," she says. "Each of us has changed it a little."

Reasoning that it would encourage the children to practice, Isabel takes piano lessons along with the three oldest youngsters.

"She is a gracious hostess, a truly sincere person and a credit to her home and community," said Mrs. Fred W. Truxell, 2106 Flicker Lane, who nominated Mrs. Toledano as a candidate for Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

"I feel so humble," was Isabel's response.

Good Luck To You In The Nov. 21-22 National Ceremony in Chicago. We Hope You Will Be Selected National Suburban Homemaker of the Year

Keeps Busy with Mission Work, Children's Interests

Life is full of choices, but sometimes a person gets to fulfill more than one dearest desire.

This is true for Mrs. Antonio Toledano, 2104 Hawk Lane, Rolling Meadows.

"If I hadn't chosen the married state, I would have been a missionary," she confesses.

It was long after her marriage that a small incident started her on the mission work that now engrosses her.

Tony Toledano, Mexican-born artist with Foote, Cone and Belding, came home from work despondent. Isabel learned his depression stemmed from seeing little Spanish American children waiting for the school bus on the cold morning, rubbing their bare hands to warm them.

"Don't you have some mittens and scarves of the children's that we could give them," he asked his wife.

"I CAN'T keep them in mittens," she replied.

Their own five, Michael, 13; Anthony, 12; Marlene, 10; James, 6, and Kathy, 4, are prone to lose mittens.

But the matter preyed on her mind and heart, and the next day she started a campaign among her friends and neighbors to collect a supply of warm clothing for these children.

The Toledano home has become a collection spot for clothing, food and books for missions, and Isabel is chairman of missionary work aiding Spanish-speaking people of the northwest area for St. Colette Catholic Woman's Club, as well as recording secretary. Each summer for a six-week period she helps the missionary nuns in Buffalo Grove teach the children of migrant workers.

It was at the summer school that she met Sister Therese Mary, and the two have pooled their resources to increase the volume of their missionary work.

IT WAS happenstance that she met Father Vadakaen, a Carmelite father and native of India, who was in this country seeking support of his medical clinic in India. Isabel Toledano invited him to her home, and soon she was so interested in his project that she started a collection of medical supplies and books for him to take back with him. She continues the project, and gathers works of non-fiction, literature, reference and texts for his non-denominational library.

At holiday time, this devoted woman seeks donations of food to prepare baskets for needy families.

Isabel Toledano attended Mundelein College in Chicago. She expects all of her children to go to college, and "God willing," she, too, hopes to return to the classroom and earn her degree some day.

Isabel keeps her pet projects in proportion, so she has time for her children's interests. She teaches Christian doctrine to a class of children once a week in her home, and for the past two years has been a Cub Scout Den mother.

"I LOVE TO sew," she admits. "It gives me an opportunity to sit down."

One of her specialities is Italian pastries, made from a recipe handed down in her family.

"I suppose it isn't traditional anymore," she says. "Each of us has changed it a little."

Reasoning that it would encourage the children to practice, Isabel takes piano lessons along with the three oldest youngsters.

"She is a gracious hostess, a truly sincere person and a credit to her home and community," said Mrs. Fred W. Truxell, 2106 Flicker Lane, who nominated Mrs. Toledano as a candidate for Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

"I feel so humble," was Isabel's response.

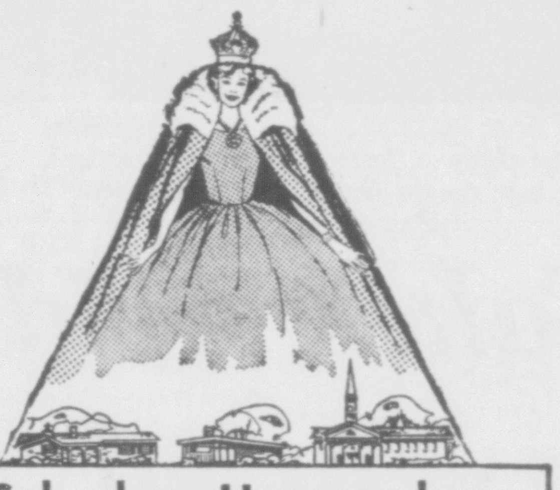
Congratulations, Suburban Homemaker!



©1962 Suburban Press Foundation, Inc.

You have been chosen the most outstanding Suburban Homemaker of the Year within the communities served by Paddock Publications.

We applaud you for your efforts to maintain an attractive, pleasant home for your family; and for your interest in the life of your community.

Too many of us fail to take the extra time, or refuse to make that extra effort to help our communities maintain their leadership in the Northwest Suburban area.

All of us want a better community in which to live, a satisfying life, good friends and security. Without the leadership of all too few of us, these things would never materialize.

We hope the example you have set will be a shining star to the rest of us, a goal toward which we can constantly reach. We applaud your efforts and know you will continue to work for your family, your church and your community.

Congratulations from the Sixty Merchants who hope you'll be pleased with these Sixty Prizes.

Good Luck To You In The Nov. 21-22 National Ceremony in Chicago. We Hope You Will Be Selected National Suburban Homemaker of the Year

Uses Executive Talent To Run School, New Home

Her executive ability has kept Mrs. Dan Wallner, 929 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights, in the suburban limelight.

Beth Ann is currently devoting her energy to the Clearbrook School for Retarded Children as temporary director and public relations chairman.

She wants to see the school better organized before construction of the new building starts. Beth Ann has worked for the Clearbrook School since the days when she lived in Rolling Meadows and the school was held in the educational wing of the Community Church of Rolling Meadows.

"I WORKED there between babies," she recounted.

The Wallner children are Laurel, 9; Todd, 7; Ward, 5; Dana, 3; and Mark, 2.

Beth Ann also is ways and means chairman on the executive board of the Seventh District Junior Woman's Clubs. She learned long ago to strip her activities to the essentials and concentrates on the things she does best and keeps her interests in proportion.

For three years this vital young woman was chairman of the cerebral palsy drive in Rolling Meadows. She was president of the Women's Guild of Trinity Lutheran Church and sang in the choir as well as taught Sunday School. She was a leader in the Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club.

THEN THE Wallners needed a bigger house, and she wanted Lutheran School education for her children. So they moved to Arlington Heights, and Beth Ann transferred her activities along with the family.

Furnishings of the new home are not yet completed. Although Beth Ann claims no fame for her sewing, she made some slipcovers for worn furniture. Finding some attractive curtain material among remnants, with not enough of one color to cover the windows of a room, she designed multi-colored draw curtains in keeping with the color scheme of each bedroom.

Her ingenuity came into play again in entertaining. The large living room is thickly carpeted, but without furniture. One of the best parties ever, the guests claimed, was the time the Wallners invited them to come and bring their own cushion. All sat on the floor.

THE LIVING room was used another time as the setting for a wedding when a young cousin was married. Beth says her new house is delightful to entertain in. One of her secrets of its well-kept appearance is a game room, behind the family room, where there are shleves

"The toys may not be on the shelves," she laughs, "but if company comes, I can quickly shut the door."

Beth Ann Wallner combines beauty with brains. She looks equally well in her everyday uniform of stretch pants and a blouse or dressed for a woman's club meeting. Another of her secrets is to buy clothes that are easy to take care of, and for the children, garb that can be handed down.

MRS. WALLNER was nominated for Suburban Homemaker of the Year by her former neighbor and still good friend, Mrs. Edward Bansfield of Rolling Meadows.

"She's Rolling Meadows' loss," Jean Bansfield sighed, "but Arlington Heights' gain."

MRS. DAN WALLNER of Arlington Heights, nominated by a former neighbor, wonders, "Now how do we make these trousers fit?" Two of her five children are confident mother's ingenuity will, as usual, solve the problem.

Mother of 7 Has Time to Entertain

A mother of seven children who can have her chores finished and be a relaxed hostess at an evening coffee by 8 p.m. is somewhat unusual.

Such a person is Mrs. Stanley J. Sohm Jr., 421 S. Reuter Drive, Arlington Heights, according to Mrs. Robert Luehrs, 528 S. Yale Ave.

"I HAVE ONLY known her five months, as we are newcomers, but I have never known a more warm hearted, generous, whole woman," says Mrs. Luehrs, nominating Mrs. Sohm for the title of Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

The Sohms are relative newcomers to the neighborhood themselves, but not to the area. They moved to Arlington Heights a year and a half ago from Rolling Meadows.

THEY LAVISH love and affection on their large family, ranging in age from 3 to 13. Mrs. Sohm is a Cub Scout Den mother, and regularly on the first Saturday of each month she takes the boys to church, an example of her strongly religious attitude.

Besides Cub Scouts, this busy mother finds time to be active in Westgate PTA, and is on the telephone committee to get out the vote on the school bond issue.

Takes Avid Interest In Varied Activities

"It's awful nice to see those storm windows put up," Charles L. Kimball, 600 GoWanda Trail, Mount Prospect, remarked as he nominated his mate, Patricia, as Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

"Oh, that's my job," Pat laughed off the chore so dreaded by most men.

Pat Kimball has qualifications other than putting up storm windows that entitle her to be a candidate for the homemaker honor.

She is an energetic young woman who takes avid interest in politics, culture, church and sports as well as her home.

Pat is a doer. Mount Prospect community chairman for Ravinia Festival ticket sales, she has popularized the summer Chicago Symphony concerts among her friends and acquaintances. Her stock broker husband, too, enjoys the music under the stars.

As campaign chairman in last spring's park board election, she brought her candidates in successfully with a catchy slogan and hard work.

A Republican precinct captain, she is also secretary of a GOP club. She teaches Sunday School, is PTA room mother, serves on the board of the American Cancer Society in Mount Prospect, is a working member of the Infant Welfare League, has been area chairman of a combined appeal campaign and works at the Northwest Suburban YMCA.

Pat is not afraid to speak up.

Opposed to increasing liquor licenses in the village, and to certain policies regarding the issuance of licenses, she took an active role in the citizenry making its voice heard.

HOUSEKEEPING is not a fetish in the Kimball home, but Charley says the appearance is "terrific." Pat made all the draperies, decorated all the rooms and helped her husband build bookcases.

David, 8, Suzy, 3, and a seven-week-old puppy complete the Kimball household. Pat took swimming lessons with the youngsters this summer, and she likes to ice skate. She has assigned each child specific jobs to be done.

"Her greatest asset is her love of life," Charley notes, "and this has gained love and respect from her family and others."

Solves Disagreements With Family Conference

Assigning chores to the children is a fine character builder, but occasionally a small discussion arises as to whose turn it is to do the dishes or dust.

Eleanore Wildron, 2105 Bluebird Lane, Rolling Meadows, has a pat solution.

"We have a family conference."

Eleanore was nominated for the honor of Suburban Homemaker of the Year by her husband, Tom, a city alderman serving his second term.

Serene Eleanore never raises her voice to the children, Tom avers. Neither does she permit discussion of discipline during meals, not always easy with four youngsters. Patricia is 10, Nanci 9, Salli 6, and Tommy 3.

A good manager of the family income, Mrs. Waldron has found that sewing for the house, herself and her daughters helps stretch the budget. To achieve a professional result, she has taken high school courses in tailoring.

ELEANORE HAS a secret for maintaining her own well-groomed appearance She follows a "figure control diet" at home, limiting herself to 1,000 calories a day for a week periodically.

"It takes willpower," she admits.

The Waldrons have taken an active role in city affairs since moving to Rolling Meadows. Eleanore was a devoted worker during her husband's pre-election campaigns. She was secretary of the fire equipment drive that raised funds for the first fire equipment for the city. She was in charge of the polio vaccination for school children. One year she was chairman of the Heart Fund campaign.

Church work has been important to Eleanore. She was an officer of St. Colette Catholic Woman's Club and chairman of the club's first Christmas bazaar. For the past five years she has taught a catechism class in her home after school.

ANOTHER interest has been Northwest Community Hospital, where she has been on the board of directors of the Women's Auxiliary and chairman of two committees.

The Waldron girls have been encouraged to join Girl Scouts, and mother promptly was inducted as chairman of committee mothers of Troop 754, program chairman for a northwest Girl Scout rally and assistant counselor at day camp.

Son Says Orpha Hodge Never Thinks of Self

"Our nominating committee has met and proudly announces our unanimous choice for Suburban Homemaker of the Year," writes William Hodge, 45 Gilbert Road, Palatine.

"Our candidate, Orpha Hodge, my wife of 16 years and the mother of the other four members of our slightly prejudiced nominating committee, is the hub around which our happy, healthy family rotates."

The youngsters are Jeffrey, 13, student council president at his school; John, 10; Alexis, 6, and Alison, 2.

ORPHA AND Bill met at the University of Wisconsin, where he was learning to be a management consultant and she was an art major.

"I'll get back to painting when I'm Grandma Moses' age," Orpha laughs.

She still finds some time for art work and has painted pictures for friends.

A tender and sympathetic woman, Orpha gives of herself unselfishly to church, friends and community as well as family.

As Jeff commented, "She seems to live only for us, and never thinks of herself."

NEIGHBORHOOD families attest to her generosity in time of need.

"Her management of our resources of time and income would do justice to any corporation," her husband claims.

Her family considers meal times delightful, especially when there's apple pie for dessert.

Orphy enjoys sewing for herself, her daughters and her home.

Hodge is proud of his wife's lovely appearance. She keeps trim with regular exercise, golf, bowling, swimming and family camping.

"CAMPING IS FUN. My husband does most of the cooking," she said gaily.

Orpha is past president and board member of the Palatine Junior Woman's Club, a member of PTA, campaigned for the March of Dimes and the Northwest Community Hospital, belonged to the Citizens for Eisenhower, and is currently doing volunteer work each Friday for one of the gubernatorial candidates. The Hodges share their interest in politics.

"SHE CREATES and maintains a good family equilibrium," Hodge says, "thoughtfully sharing her time, love and affection."

Her family considers Orpha Hodge "our homemaker of the year and always." (SS

Gets New Lease on Life Doing Extras

MRS. JAMES MORGAN of Elk Grove slices a coffeecake she baked for family night in her home. She was nominated by her husband.

A husband's nomination of his wife as Suburban Homemaker of the Year is surely a mark of high esteem.

James Morgan, 282 Walnut Lane, Elk Grove Village, wrote that his wife, Betty, "is the center of our family and really binds us together."

"I don't know how he can think I'm a good homemaker," she said in disbelief when informed of the nomination. "I feel quite inadequate."

This petite brunette beauty is the mother of two boys, and it's quickly apparent that she rates high with her sons, Tim, 11, and Greg, 6, as well as with her husband.

A careful housekeeper, Betty just as meticulously maintains health records. She loves to try new recipes. Son Tim prefers his favorite foods, but "I just eat the new things anyway." Betty, coming from a family of 13, learned early how to cope with an income "not large."

MORGAN HAS recently become a methods analyst for U. S. Gypsum Co., but for the previous four years he traveled a great deal, leaving Betty in charge of the family and household for two weeks at a time. She kept the family relationship close through love and affection.

Friday night is family night. "We enjoy the company and pleasure of feeling close," Morgan says.

Betty recently had a difficult challenge to meet in the preparation of meals. Tim was allergic to milk and wheat, and both had to be eliminated from his diet.

"I discovered there are all kinds of flour," she said. "Potato flour is the best substitute. It makes a delicious chocolate cake."

SHE HAS A night out bowling with girl friends.

"Her average score leaves a lot to be desired," her husband comments, "but her enthusiasm is spontaneous."

Betty's real outlet is through church work. On Sundays she plays the organ at the Prince of Peace Methodist church, as the boys attend Sunday School and church. She is chairman of an evening circle and has charge of advertising and publications for the Women's Society of Christian Service.

Each week she attends small group meetings where she strengthens and shares her spiritual experiences with others. She sends out monthly reminders to members of the church's official board and types reports for the church treasurer.

"I FIND I'm more help to my family than I was," Betty remarked. "Doing extra things gives you a new lease on life. A housewife can get too bogged down just housekeeping."

Civic Affairs Keep Her Busy

This is a very exciting year for Mary Bayer, 488 Creekwood Drive, Palatine.

Her husband, Richard, has been elected state president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Mary has been nominated for Suburban Homemaker of the Year by the Palatine Jaycee Annes.

The Bayers often take their three children, Keith, 10, Donna, 7, and Jimmy, 4, along as they tour the state for Jaycee meetings.

"IT'S EDUCATIONAL for them," says Mary.

Mary has enjoyed attending major conventions in Las Vegas, St. Louis, Louisville and Peoria with her husband. As an example, her friends in the Jaycee Annes cite the day she was phoned at 5 p. m. to attend a big meeting in Chicago that evening. By 6 o'clock she was ready to go, looking very attractive.

Mary is interested in civic and community affairs. She is co-chairman for this fall's fun fair at the school where she belongs to PTA. She is secretary of the park board. She belongs to the PEO, United Fund, UNICEF and Barrington Woods Property Owners Association.

SHE HAS HAD to operate her home on a strict but variable budget. Her husband is a field representative for Mutual of New York. Simple but tasty foods and home sewn clothing and Christmas toys are among her solutions to the family finances. The whole family pitches in with the gardening which produces quantities of vegetables for Mary to can.

"Mary is the type of person who just loves doing things for other people without even wanting a 'thank you' from them," her friends claim.

Serene Eleanore never raises her voice to the children, Tom avers. Neither does she permit discussion of discipline during meals, not always easy with four youngsters. Patricia is 10, Nanci 9, Salli 6, and Tommy 3.

A good manager of the family income, Mrs. Waldron has found that sewing for the house, herself and her daughters helps stretch the budget. To achieve a professional result, she has taken high school courses in tailoring.

ELEANORE HAS a secret for maintaining her own well-groomed appearance She follows a "figure control diet" at home, limiting herself to 1,000 calories a day for a week periodically.

"It takes willpower," she admits.

The Waldrons have taken an active role in city affairs since moving to Rolling Meadows. Eleanore was a devoted worker during her husband's pre-election campaigns. She was secretary of the fire equipment drive that raised funds for the first fire equipment for the city. She was in charge of the polio vaccination for school children. One year she was chairman of the Heart Fund campaign.

Church work has been important to Eleanore. She was an officer of St. Colette Catholic Woman's Club and chairman of the club's first Christmas bazaar. For the past five years she has taught a catechism class in her home after school.

ANOTHER interest has been Northwest Community Hospital, where she has been on the board of directors of the Women's Auxiliary and chairman of two committees.

The Waldron girls have been encouraged to join Girl Scouts, and mother promptly was inducted as chairman of committee mothers of Troop 754, program chairman for a northwest Girl Scout rally and assistant counselor at day camp.

Son Says Orpha Hodge Never Thinks of Self

"Our nominating committee has met and proudly announces our unanimous choice for Suburban Homemaker of the Year," writes William Hodge, 45 Gilbert Road, Palatine.

"Our candidate, Orpha Hodge, my wife of 16 years and the mother of the other four members of our slightly prejudiced nominating committee, is the hub around which our happy, healthy family rotates."

The youngsters are Jeffrey, 13, student council president at his school; John, 10; Alexis, 6, and Alison, 2.

ORPHA AND Bill met at the University of Wisconsin, where he was learning to be a management consultant and she was an art major.

"I'll get back to painting when I'm Grandma Moses' age," Orpha laughs.

She still finds some time for art work and has painted pictures for friends.

A tender and sympathetic woman, Orpha gives of herself unselfishly to church, friends and community as well as family.

As Jeff commented, "She seems to live only for us, and never thinks of herself."

NEIGHBORHOOD families attest to her generosity in time of need.

"Her management of our resources of time and income would do justice to any corporation," her husband claims.

Her family considers meal times delightful, especially when there's apple pie for dessert.

Orphy enjoys sewing for herself, her daughters and her home.

Hodge is proud of his wife's lovely appearance. She keeps trim with regular exercise, golf, bowling, swimming and family camping.

"CAMPING IS FUN. My husband does most of the cooking," she said gaily.

Orpha is past president and board member of the Palatine Junior Woman's Club, a member of PTA, campaigned for the March of Dimes and the Northwest Community Hospital, belonged to the Citizens for Eisenhower, and is currently doing volunteer work each Friday for one of the gubernatorial candidates. The Hodges share their interest in politics.

"SHE CREATES and maintains a good family equilibrium," Hodge says, "thoughtfully sharing her time, love and affection."

Her family considers Orpha Hodge "our homemaker of the year and always." (SS

Gets New Lease on Life Doing Extras

MRS. JAMES MORGAN of Elk Grove slices a coffeecake she baked for family night in her home. She was nominated by her husband.

A husband's nomination of his wife as Suburban Homemaker of the Year is surely a mark of high esteem.

James Morgan, 282 Walnut Lane, Elk Grove Village, wrote that his wife, Betty, "is the center of our family and really binds us together."

"I don't know how he can think I'm a good homemaker," she said in disbelief when informed of the nomination. "I feel quite inadequate."

This petite brunette beauty is the mother of two boys, and it's quickly apparent that she rates high with her sons, Tim, 11, and Greg, 6, as well as with her husband.

A careful housekeeper, Betty just as meticulously maintains health records. She loves to try new recipes. Son Tim prefers his favorite foods, but "I just eat the new things anyway." Betty, coming from a family of 13, learned early how to cope with an income "not large."

MORGAN HAS recently become a methods analyst for U. S. Gypsum Co., but for the previous four years he traveled a great deal, leaving Betty in charge of the family and household for two weeks at a time. She kept the family relationship close through love and affection.

Friday night is family night. "We enjoy the company and pleasure of feeling close," Morgan says.

Betty recently had a difficult challenge to meet in the preparation of meals. Tim was allergic to milk and wheat, and both had to be eliminated from his diet.

"I discovered there are all kinds of flour," she said. "Potato flour is the best substitute. It makes a delicious chocolate cake."

SHE HAS A night out bowling with girl friends.

"Her average score leaves a lot to be desired," her husband comments, "but her enthusiasm is spontaneous."

Betty's real outlet is through church work. On Sundays she plays the organ at the Prince of Peace Methodist church, as the boys attend Sunday School and church. She is chairman of an evening circle and has charge of advertising and publications for the Women's Society of Christian Service.

Each week she attends small group meetings where she strengthens and shares her spiritual experiences with others. She sends out monthly reminders to members of the church's official board and types reports for the church treasurer.

"I FIND I'm more help to my family than I was," Betty remarked. "Doing extra things gives you a new lease on life. A housewife can get too bogged down just housekeeping."

Civic Affairs Keep Her Busy

This is a very exciting year for Mary Bayer, 488 Creekwood Drive, Palatine.

Her husband, Richard, has been elected state president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Mary has been nominated for Suburban Homemaker of the Year by the Palatine Jaycee Annes.

The Bayers often take their three children, Keith, 10, Donna, 7, and Jimmy, 4, along as they tour the state for Jaycee meetings.

"IT'S EDUCATIONAL for them," says Mary.

Mary has enjoyed attending major conventions in Las Vegas, St. Louis, Louisville and Peoria with her husband. As an example, her friends in the Jaycee Annes cite the day she was phoned at 5 p. m. to attend a big meeting in Chicago that evening. By 6 o'clock she was ready to go, looking very attractive.

Mary is interested in civic and community affairs. She is co-chairman for this fall's fun fair at the school where she belongs to PTA. She is secretary of the park board. She belongs to the PEO, United Fund, UNICEF and Barrington Woods Property Owners Association.

SHE HAS HAD to operate her home on a strict but variable budget. Her husband is a field representative for Mutual of New York. Simple but tasty foods and home sewn clothing and Christmas toys are among her solutions to the family finances. The whole family pitches in with the gardening which produces quantities of vegetables for Mary to can.

"Mary is the type of person who just loves doing things for other people without even wanting a 'thank you' from them," her friends claim.

Ruth Oster Finds New Spirit Serving God and Country

Ruth Thoma Oster, 937 N. Chestnut, Arlington Heights, was first runner-up in Illinois for the DAR most outstanding junior member contest of 1963.

She was also nominated by the Eli Skinner Chapter for the honor of Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

"There is no phase of homemaking Ruth doesn't homemaking Ruth doesn't thoroughly enjoy," the chapter members say of their regent.

Ruth admits she uses housework as therapy.

"That's when I have moments of meditation, time to memorize routines."

She needs such moments in her busy schedule. As regent of the local DAR chapter, she travels the state giving speeches and programs.

"They're mostly in the afternoon, while the children are in school," she says.

SHE IS 1964 delegate to Continental Congress in Washington.

Concerned over the nation's problems and international affairs, Ruth Oster organized a national defense study group in the chapter. As state chairman of the Junior American Citizens Committee, she has organized and directs two clubs in her home.

Her church claims her attention as a teacher, pianist, adult Bible leader and actress.

An open Bible is on the breakfast table, for the family starts each day with scripture and prayer.

RUTH OSTER is active in the Women's Republican Club, Community Concert, Village Theatre.

She majored in art education at Edinboro Teachers College in Pennsylvania, and has taught school both in the East and in Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows since moving to this area. She continues to use her art training, being a charter member of the Countryside Art Center, and as arts consultant and citizenship specialist in the local Camp Fire Girls.

She belongs to the Mothers' Club of the Delores Eiler Tot and Teen Entertainers, since 9-year-old Gregg is a member.

Versatile is Ruth, who studied at a college of music and now gives piano lessons to ten children besides her own two, Gregg and Lizbee, 5.

SHE NEITHER drinks nor smokes. Her indulgences are golf and bowling (she has trophies won at both. She takes her 11-year-old springer spaniel for mile hikes at dawn.

Ruth attributes her ability to accomplish so much to a wonderful family. Her husband, John, dubs her a "road runner," but she spends evenings with him while he enjoys television. But Ruth's hands are busy as she sits. She is either knitting or sewing. Costumes for a Presbyterian Players production is her project of the moment.

"I used to play bridge," Ruth recalls. "Then I decided that was only satisfying my own desires. So I became dedicated to my church and country, and I find I have a new spirit. We must keep our perspective."

Rears Family of 10

Praises Mother For Patience, Love

Did you think PTA stands for Parent Teacher Association?

Not in the Paul Kindler family of Arlington Heights. For Paul and Christine Kindler it means the Parents of Ten Association.

MRS. KINDLER has been nominated for the honor of Suburban Homemaker of the Year by her daughter, Patricia, 23, oldest of the brood that lives in the big house at 407 N. Dunton. The others are Mary Ann, 21; Carol, 20 and married as is her sister Susan, 18; Wayne, 12; Connie, 10; Ricky, 9; Rusty, 4; Terri, 7, and Jeffrey, 10 months.

"It was Christmas Eve, 1962," recalls Pat, "and Mom was in labor but in her self-sacrificing way, refused to disrupt the arrangements until the children had opened their presents before she went to the hospital."

Christine's children claim she has "the patience, love and attitude of a saint." Her love and understanding are broad enough to enfold more than just her own children. She always has ready refreshments, entertainment and a few kind words for all their friends. And when these young people grow up, they like to drop by at the Kindlers just to see what's new."

BOYS FROM the Nike Base came into the Kindler news stand in downtown Arlington Heights, and soon they, too, were enfolded in the family. When the first snow flies, it is boys from the base who hurry to shovel the Kindler walk.

"She cooks for an army," says Pat. "She's constantly trying out new recipes. She can sew a dress in a day or rejuvenate old furniture. She can work hard all day and later socialize gracefully with the beauty of regal elegance. She doesn't look much older than I am."

A member of St. James Church, Mrs. Kindler is a strong Catholic woman, helping in the church where needed, belonging to the Women's Guild and instilling her faith in her children.

CHRISTINE Kindler is never too busy to watch scholastic progress of her children.

"Many a night she has spent with them, drilling them in their school work," her daughter wrote.

The family ranks high in mutual love and respect with Mom always at hand with advice and cheer to change troubled attitudes.

"Put her in any situation and she will calmly find a solution," Pat says.

Convinced that her mother is doing more for the community by raising her 10 children, mentally and physically in excellent condition, than by joining clubs, Pat remarked, "She is dealing with lives, the lives of her children and their descendants. How she raises us, so we will raise our children."

Artistic Homemaker Braids Rugs, Sews Own Clothes

Carpet salesmen need not call at 208 N. Drury Lane, Arlington Heights.

The floors are covered with rugs braided by the lady of the house, Mrs. John Shields, in keeping with the Early American decor. She enlists the aid of her husband, who laces the strips together while she braids.

"Rug braiders are a peculiar breed," she laughed, suggesting that others interested in the craft might like to get a rug club started.

Braiding rugs is only one of the unusual talents of Mrs. Shields, nominated for Suburban Homemaker of the Year by her neighbor across the street, Dorothy Calvert. After studying art at Pittsburgh Art Institute, she became a fashion illustrator and has a yen to return to commercial art. Meanwhile, she satisfies her creative urge by decorating her home, dabbling in ceramics and jewelry and painting in oils and watercolors.

ANOTHER CREATIVE talent is sewing, and Iva Mae makes about 90 per cent of the clothing for herself and her daughters — at least she did until 16-year-old Melani became an expert seamstress on her own.

Melani, active in the First Methodist Church youth group, also helps out in the church office on Saturdays.

Mark, 13, is president of the junior high Methodist Youth Fellowship. Completing the family is Melissa, 9.

WHEN THE family was transferred here two years ago, Mrs. Shields became a Brownie leader, and since Melissa has gone on to Girl Scouts, mother has moved up too.

The church is important to the entire family. Iva Mae is active in the Women's Society for Christian Service and teaches Sunday School. With her husband, she attends weekly discussion sessions.

"I don't think there is anything this tremendous person cannot do," Mrs. Calvert says.

SHE SEWS curtains and draperies, knits, crochets and embroiders, her baking is "out of this world," and she keeps her house "neat as a pin," says her neighbor.

Yet in this busy household no one ever raises a voice.

"When you are in her home you can see and feel the love and respect and affection," says Mrs. Calvert.

It is good management of time that allows Iva Mae to do in one day "more than most of us do in a week," according to her friend.

WARM AND generous, Mrs. Shields is the kind of person you talk with and feel perfectly at ease. Charming and witty, she makes friends quickly and easily.

"She is an ideal homemaker," Mrs. Calvert sums up. (SS

Dollar Stretching Is Her Special Talent

As Barbara Firszt of Rolling Meadows congratulated LaVerne Sladek on being nominated for Suburban Homemaker of the Year at a church meeting the other morning, she didn't know she had also been nominated.

Her husband, Tony, a sales corrdinator for Bell and Gossett, submitted her name. He considers his wife "a real asset to the community, the church and her friends."

Only 19 when they were married, Barb was not much of a cook, Tony recalls.

"BUT THAT didn't last long because my wife would not quit until she met and mastered the challenge," he said.

Daughter Susie, now 7, was born just after the Firszts moved to Rolling Meadows. They also have Steven, 11, an honor student and currently candidate for president of his school's student council, and Vicki, 9, also an honor student.

In the five years since the oldest started school, Barb has been a room mother four times. She taught Sunday School at Community Church for five years.

THEIR FAMILY room and garage were added by the Firszts with Barb expertly working the power saw or swinging a hammer when needed.

Stretching a dollar is one of Barb's special tricks. It may be her financial savvy that prompts organizations to put her in charge of money. Currently treasurer of the Women's Association of her church, she was a very busy woman prior to the group's Nov. 2 bazaar. That was the night Tony wrote the nominating letter.

Some years ago Barb bought a used sewing machine to make drapes for the house and clothes for the children. She loves to sew and knit and looked forward to having Susie in school so she would have more time for these things.

"AND DO YOU know, all last school year I had just 30 days without company," she said with mock horror.

An alert and aggressive young woman, she solved the problem by taking a part-time job at the school cafeteria.

"Of course," she laughs, "the children eat up most of the profits."

Barb stretches her mind with reading and her muscles with bowling.

She has a grandmother in Florida, and Tony avers that in all the time he's known her, Barb has found time to faithfully write Grandmother Emmy once every week. (SS

Pat Phillipps Combines Capability with Concern

A woman who sews, bakes, makes draperies, upholsters, knits, gardens, cans food and gives a haircut to a neighbor's toddler who's afraid of the barbershop — tosses it all off with a verbal shrug — "Recreation."

Spiritual and moral strength are the keys to Pat Phillipps personality, according to Mrs. David Bone of Winston Park, who for three "wonderful" years lived next door to the Harry Phillipps of 644 N. Salem Avenue, Arlington Heights.

In a letter nominating Pat for Suburban Homemaker of the Year, Jan Bone says Pat combines capability with interest, sincerity and a genuine concern for others.

"Who else would scrub my kitchen floor while I was at the dentist — and my babysitter casually mentioned that my Pennsylvania cousin was arriving as a surprise to me? Who's the unofficial swimming pool transporter, ice skating organizer, Halloween trick-or-treat companion and library book selector for the whole neighborhood?"

BECAUSE THE Phillipps have only one child, 8-year-old Marjorie, Pat has spread her generosity and good-hearted helpfulness throughout the neighborhood. She sends in food when there is illness or comes and takes a basket of ironing home.

Her own house is immaculate. "Every drawer in order, every closet corner clean," reports Mrs. Bone.

Pat does all this and handles a full-time job. As secretary to the principal at Westgage School, Pat demonstrates efficiency and business skills.

She has served on Ridge PTA executive board for two years and collected for the United Fund, Heart Fund and March of Dimes.

WHILE MARJORIE was in Blue Birds, Pat was co-leader and is now an active sponsor of a new Camp Fire group.

Pat was director of the vacation Bible school held by First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, where she also put in four years as kindergarten department superintendent and taught in the nursery department. This fall she helped with the Sunday School teacher training program.

Marjorie has known love and understanding. There are family prayers together with mother and father every night. Discipline is firm but kindly, and Pat is training her daughter to assume responsibility.

RECENTLY A piano was added to the home, and as Marjorie takes lessons, her mother sits in and reviews her own childhood piano training, the better to coach her daughter's practicing.

Attracive, poised, alert, Pat reflects to her friends her theories that duty and self-discipline reinforce an inward strength.

"She is confidently at peace with herself and with the world," says Mrs. Bone, "and from her security, she reaches out with help and understanding to all those privileged to know her." (SS

Rears Family of 10

Praises Mother For Patience, Love

Did you think PTA stands for Parent Teacher Association?

Not in the Paul Kindler family of Arlington Heights. For Paul and Christine Kindler it means the Parents of Ten Association.

MRS. KINDLER has been nominated for the honor of Suburban Homemaker of the Year by her daughter, Patricia, 23, oldest of the brood that lives in the big house at 407 N. Dunton. The others are Mary Ann, 21; Carol, 20 and married as is her sister Susan, 18; Wayne, 12; Connie, 10; Ricky, 9; Rusty, 4; Terri, 7, and Jeffrey, 10 months.

"It was Christmas Eve, 1962," recalls Pat, "and Mom was in labor but in her self-sacrificing way, refused to disrupt the arrangements until the children had opened their presents before she went to the hospital."

Christine's children claim she has "the patience, love and attitude of a saint." Her love and understanding are broad enough to enfold more than just her own children. She always has ready refreshments, entertainment and a few kind words for all their friends. And when these young people grow up, they like to drop by at the Kindlers just to see what's new."

BOYS FROM the Nike Base came into the Kindler news stand in downtown Arlington Heights, and soon they, too, were enfolded in the family. When the first snow flies, it is boys from the base who hurry to shovel the Kindler walk.

"She cooks for an army," says Pat. "She's constantly trying out new recipes. She can sew a dress in a day or rejuvenate old furniture. She can work hard all day and later socialize gracefully with the beauty of regal elegance. She doesn't look much older than I am."

A member of St. James Church, Mrs. Kindler is a strong Catholic woman, helping in the church where needed, belonging to the Women's Guild and instilling her faith in her children.

CHRISTINE Kindler is never too busy to watch scholastic progress of her children.

"Many a night she has spent with them, drilling them in their school work," her daughter wrote.

The family ranks high in mutual love and respect with Mom always at hand with advice and cheer to change troubled attitudes.

"Put her in any situation and she will calmly find a solution," Pat says.

Convinced that her mother is doing more for the community by raising her 10 children, mentally and physically in excellent condition, than by joining clubs, Pat remarked, "She is dealing with lives, the lives of her children and their descendants. How she raises us, so we will raise our children."

Judges Who Are Experts To Pick Top Homemaker

Five individuals, all experts in their own fields of endeavor, will select the 1963 Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

All from different backgrounds, they will be of one mind when they decide which woman of the many nominated best fits the qualifications of suburban homemaker.

The national judges will begin their review of the local winners from across the nation in a closed suite of the Drake Hotel in Chicago Nov. 20.

Each candidate will be interviewed by the one man and four women making up the judges' panel.

The one male member of the panel is Judge Clayton W. Rose of Columbus, Ohio, immediate past president of the National Council of Juvenile Judges. He is serving his second year as a contest judge.

A GRADUATE of Ohio State University College of Law, Judge Rose has been a judge of the Court of Domestic Relations and Juvenile Court in Franklin County, Ohio, since 1936.

This long experience has qualified him to appreciate the importance in young lives of responsible homemakers.

"The strength of our family life is the foundation of our social structure, and the problems and responsibilities of the homemaker in building that strength are many. It was a most rewarding experience to serve as a judge for the 1962 National Suburban Homemaker of the Year Award and to learn about the many suburban homemakers who are meeting those problems and responsibilities in positive ways," the judge commented in an interview.

THURS., NOV. 14, 1963

Judge Rose and his wife, Phyllis, have two grown sons and two grown daughters and five grandchildren.

AN EXPERT in family living is another of the national judges. Dr. Freda S. Kehm, director of the Association for Family Living, has an impressive record in many areas of sociology.

Beginning in undergraduate days with membership in Phi Beta Kappa, Dr. Kehm has been a delegate to three White House Conferences and mental health chairman for the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.

She writes a feature on marriage and the family for a Chicago newspaper, has a daily radio program, "Call Dr. Kehm," and is author of numerous articles and pamphlets for textbook publishers and other educational outlets.

DR. KEHM

DR. STIEBLING

DR. STARR

She has even managed to be listed in "Who's Who Among Men of Science."

HER PH.D. IN sociology was earned at Northwestern University.

The third member of the judging panel, Dr. Hazel K. Stiebeling, was formerly an administrator for the Agricultural Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Her long-time interest in research for better human nutrition has won her many tributes, including seven honorary degrees. In 1959 she won the nation's highest civilian government employe honor, the President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service.

She was cited for her "lasting contribution to the science of human nutrition and to the well-being of the people of the free world."

THE FOURTH judge is Dr. Helen M. Starr, director of health, physical education and recreation for the Minneapolis public schools.

In the Twin Cities area, she is equally well known as director of the Aqua Follies Water Ballet for 23 years.

Besides holding down these two demanding positions, Dr. Starr is collaborating with James Rogers Fox, M.D., in the preparation of teaching aids in the areas of health, physical fitness and physical education.

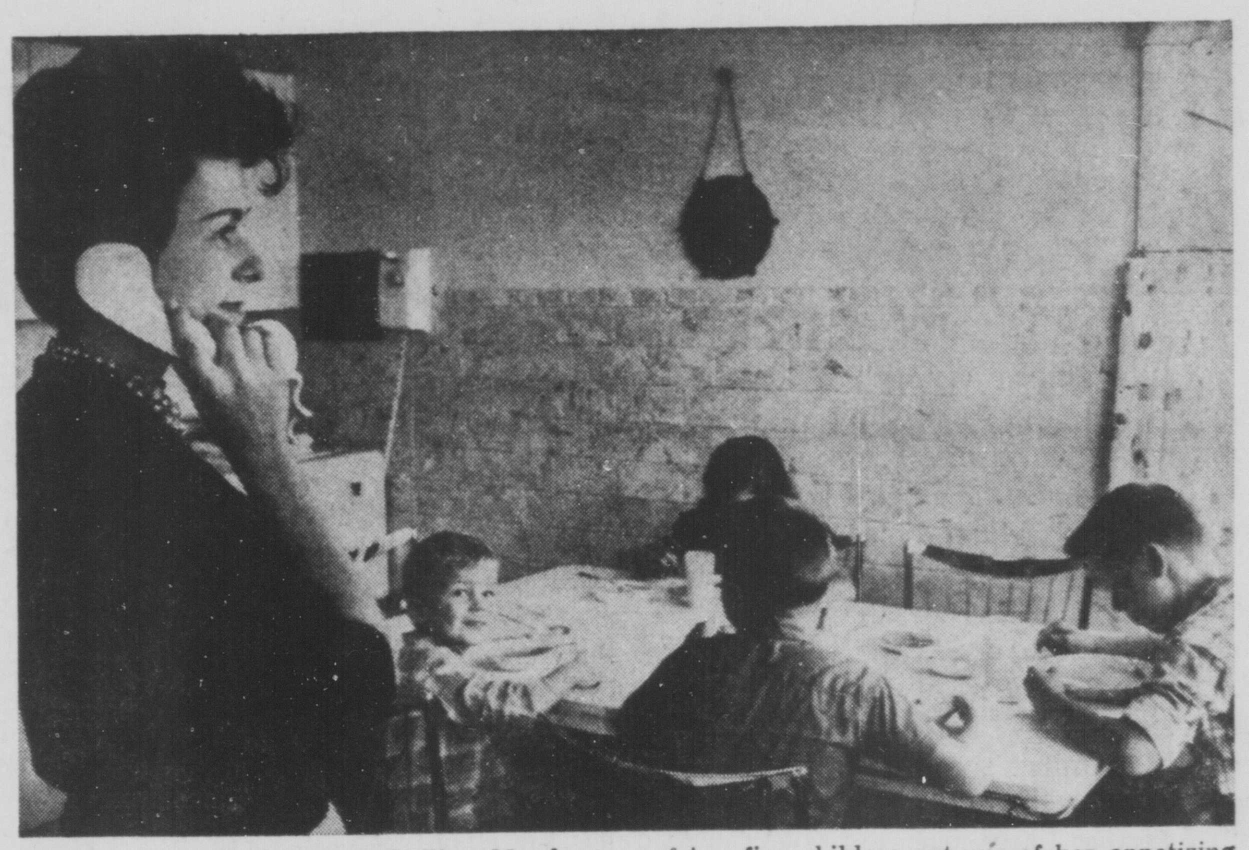
Mrs. John A. Campbell of Indianapolis, fifth of the national judges, has a long and active record in the League of Women Voters (LWV). She is presently first vice president of the LWV.

MRS. CAMPBELL first joined the league in 1945. She served from 1954 to 1959 as Ohio state president and later as state president in Indiana. Her husband is a university professor.

In 1955 she served as a member of the Indiana White House Conference Committee, a gubernatorial appointment.

JUDGE ROSE

MRS. CAMPBELL



MRS. RICHARD GLASS of Rolling Meadows chats with a friend by telephone while four of her five children eat one of her appetizing meals. The entire family nominated her.

Planning Helps Her Get Things Done

How does today's busy homemaker cram so much activity into only 24 hours a day?

The answer is efficient scheduling—and doing two things at once.

PAT GLASS, 4201 Owl Drive, Rolling Meadows, has found that a king-size telephone cord lets her continue with her cooking, ironing and other chores while she chats with friends or answers other calls that can be nuisance interruptions.

Mrs. Glass is the choice of the Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club for Suburban Homemaker of the Year, because of her "outstanding service to community, church and home."

Pat has been active in the Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club for five years, holding various committee appointments before advancing to the vice presidency. She has lectured on Turkey for the CARE program, assisted with charity drives, made dolls for the USS Hope.

JUNIORS WHO live on the same block with Pat can vouch that she is an organized and efficient manager of her five-room house and five children.

She does her mending piece by piece as she irons so it won't accumulate and is saving stamps for a new sewing machine.

Pat pre-plans all menus, shops with an eye to value and nutrition and is constantly alert for new ways to prepare and serve appetizing, well-balanced meals. Her entry in the recent Septemberfest baking contest won first prize.

IT'S A FAMILY tradition to have cup cakes decorated with pumpkin faces on Halloween, and the children look forward to Thursday nights, family night at the Glass home.

Husband Richard, a salesman, has only praise for his wife's culinary abilities.

"More Brownies are made in this house than in Bugiel's Bakery and probably go to as many varied places," he wrote in a letter nominating his wife.

PAT ACCOMPLISHES her "thorough, meticulous" housekeeping through an early start daily, definite chores for each child and a well-planned day.

Twins Larry and Barry are 11. There is a special bond between twins, but there can be competition, too, a problem solved by the Glasses by arranging for one to attend Central School and the other Salk. Dickie is almost nine, and Billy is three. Cathy will be seven at Christmas time.

Pat encourages her active family to channel energy into Little League, Scouting and swimming lessons. Her friends find "she is extremely concerned with the entire development of each child as an individual and makes it a point to be home to greet each as he comes from school and to spend time with each child each evening." She is active in PTA and has worked with retarded children at Clearbrook School.

The Glasses believe in regular attendance at church and support church activities.

THERE IS A pleasant glow about Pat, noted by her friends and her husband.

Her friends say, "It comes from the deep-rooted moral code by which she lives and her abiding faith in the goodness of her fellow man. No Pollyanna, she is nonetheless an unqualified optimist who busies herself doing the world's work instead of fretting about its not being done."

Her husband writes, "She has succeeded in making our home the only place I hurry to reach. In her, through her and by her, I receive the strength I need to maintain my role as head of this family."

Pastor Says Wife Is Ideal in Her Role

Being a minister's wife is not an easy role to fulfill, and the first to admit it is a minister.

Judith Weidlich, 216 S. Wheeling Road, Prospect Heights, is ideal in the role, according to her husband, Rev. Albert W. Weidlich, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, who nominated her for Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

The role, he says, demands "patience, optimism, one foot on earth and the other in heaven, and diplomacy."

In their church, Mrs. Weidlich is a member of the Churchwomen, the choir and a circle and helps in the nursery. Her community endeavors include PTA, helping to serve milk at School, Prospect Heights Book Review Club and encouraging the pastor as a volunteer fireman.

People stop daily at the parsonage door. They always find Judith neatly dressed and the house in order.

SPEAKING OF her ability to manage on a pastor's income, Rev. Weidlich remarked, "I didn't know hamburger could be fixed in so many ways. She has a recipe for a corn pudding that's out of this world."

Her shopping is careful. Clothing is bought with an eye to hand-me-downs.

A graduate of Augustana College, Mrs. Weidlich taught school before her children were born, and hopes, when family cares ease, to renew her teaching certificate.

The youngsters are Ruth Ann, 8; Beth, 6; Jonathan, 4, and Mary, 10 months.

"SHE IS A whiz at helping us to talk out our problems and then coming up with practical suggestions," her husband says.

"Her personal pride and wholesome outlook, her warmth and affection encourage each of us to show the same for each other. We love her as a natural response to her love. Our home is really a refuge."

While she competently fills the exacting role of being a pastor's wife, Judith Weidlich is something more, an inspiration to those who know her. While a junior in college, polio left her with crippled legs and feet, but she has thrown away her crutches.

Coach's Wife Welcomes Newcomers, Learns Braille

"So many people are more deserving than I; some women do so many things," demurred Mrs. Bill Beckman, 543 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights, notified that she had been nominated for Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

Naming her for the honor were Mrs. Florence Combs, one of the 1962 Suburban Homemakers, and Mrs. Bruno Waara.

"MARG AND her husband welcomed our families to Arlington Heights 13 years ago," they recall.

She is still welcoming new teachers and their families as an active member of the Faculty Wives of Forest View High School.

Marg is a native of the village. She has watched it develop from a small town to its present size as a progressive suburban community.

HER HUSBAND is athletic director at Forest View, and her friends find she has "survived the rigors of being a football coach's wife for 15 years." Marg has always attended the games, usually taking a carload of children with her, and she has gotten to know many of the young athletes personally. She and her husband have followed their post-high school careers, and the young people frequently come back to visit this couple.

The Beckmans have two teenagers, Jeff and Janet, and 6-year-old Jim, who lost his eyesight just as he was to enter first grade.

"The amazing adjustment of this little boy is a credit to Marg," her friends say.

MARG, MADE aware of the need for people to transcribe books for blind children, is studying Braille.

"We find ourselves dialing her number every now and then," say the other faculty wives.

"How to take care of plants, for gardening is one of her favorite hobbies. What's a good dessert for bridge—Marg's recipe file is a delight. How to refinish an old table—she has completed a number of these projects in her home. How to pick up a dropped stitch—she knits sweaters and assists a friend who has a local knitting shop. And about that sewing—she can help on any sewing problem. Or when we just need a lively conversation—she can discuss politics, religion or sports."

A LIFELONG member of the First Presbyterian Church, both she and her husband have filled assignments in the church school and organizations.

Marg's life centers around her busy home that is open to teenage friends of the family, neighborhood small fry, coach's bull sessions and a host of friends.

"She has been an inspiration to many of us," say Mrs. Combs and Mrs. Waara.

Betty Winsell a Homemaker Finalist

Mrs. Robert Winsell, 3403 Pheasant Drive, Rolling Meadows, faces life with a straightforward attitude and a happy disposition.

Her friends reason her ability to cope with obstacles encountered along the way stems from her inner peace and devotion to her beliefs.

Three women who hold her in deep affection nominated her for Suburban Homemaker of the Year. They are Dorothy Frye, Bette Kocian, Dorothy Anderson.

The judging panel, too, found Betty Winsell an outstanding young woman, and Betty cherishes the silver dish, suitably engraved to mark her as one of the finalists, which she received at last night's award ceremony.

BETTY CAN stand firm and unwavering when it is a matter of moral principle, but she can concede democratically to the majority when it is strictly a matter of choice. She can encourage with compliments or offer constructive ctiticism. She has a happy, bubbly personality and a keen sense of humor.

She is eager to learn and then just as eager to pass along her new knowledge.

A case in point is the Bethel Bible Series course she just completed after two and a half years of study. Betty and Bob started the course together, but toward the end Bob had to drop out. A new job kept him from completing the eight-plus-hour weekly homework assignments. Now Betty qualifies as an instructor in this new approach to the study of the Bible, cover to cover, and last week her class met for the first time. The course includes a study of the authors, the countries and the times of the Bible.

To help quench her thirst for knowledge, Betty has taken courses in French, sewing, first aid and specialized fields of Girl Scouting.

SHE BECAME a Brownie leader so Cathy, now 12, would have a troop to enter, and has remained a leader as the troop has grwn in number to 24 and in age to the Cadet level.

She tells a hilarious story of taking the troop to Hickory Hill camp this fall, promising the parents she would have the girls back in time for their oral polio doses that Sunday. Five cars came up to bring the campers home. Betty piled the girls into the car,s and stayed behind with the luggage, waiting for the sixth scheduled car to arrive. As dusk approached, she phoned home, to learn the driver missed the camp, and Bob Winsell made the quick round trip.

Her friends consider this kind of family cooperation the secret ingredient that allows Betty to live such a rich and full life.

Son, Gregg, 10, is a Scout, and three-year-old Troy, Betty says is "charming."

BETTY IS intent on doing any job well. She dropped out of the Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club when Troy was born. Recently appointed to the High School District 214 citizens lay committee to promote a new building, Betty was eager to serve, but the serious illness of her father brought about her resignation, rather than not be able to do her share.

Sewing is her favorite homemaking skill, and she turns out professional - appearing clothing.

"I'm not a fabulous cook," she claims, "but I try to introduce new recipes into our menus and do a lot of holiday baking."

Betty has a glowing appearance, neat and trim, neatly groomed. She looks equally well in slacks on a campout or in a dress that has the mark of an original at the country club. That "original," her friends know, she probably whipped up herself.

HER FRIENDS find Betty a source of inspiration and pleasure, and she is constantly making new friends, although she is a retiring person. Last summer Betty was in the hospital. As she convalesced, she spent her time reading to patients who were too sick to read for themselves. She brightened the day for many and found real satisfaction in performing such services for others. (SS

MRS. ROBERT WINSELL qualifies as a skilled seamstress, a talent that comes in handy for the mother of a pre-teen daughter. (SS

Her Sewing Skill Aids Family Income

Skill with a needle has given Leona Daugird of Morton Grove an opportunity to increase the family income.

She made draperies, curtains and slip covers for her home, clothing for herself and her children. This sewing led to employment with a cleaning firm, handling alterations. And best of all, the job doesn't take her away from home.

Sewing is becoming a family tradition. Leona's mother was a seamstress, and Mrs. Daugird is passing the art along to her 10-year-old daughter, Kathy, who is learning to make doll clothes.

MRS. DAUGIRD was nominated as Suburban Homemaker of the Year by her friend, Mrs. Nicholas Skoufes, 3125 Busse Rd., Arlington Heights.

A woman of many talents, Leona helped her electrician husband, Joseph, remodel and decorate their home at 5804 Washington St., Morton Grove. She is considered an excellent cook.

Still she finds time for other activities. She caters part-time, and babysits. She is active in her church. She is a leader of Kathy's Girl Scout troop, and with 12-year-old Alan a Boy Scout, she also helps that organization, too.

A PTA member for years, Leona is currently ways and means chairman of her local unit. A hootenanny last Sunday was her clever choice of a money making project.

This pleasant, smiling woman wears well with her friends.

"She has a humorous side as well as a serious one," says Mrs. Skoufes. "A nice woman to know." (SS

Jean Bates Runs Business at Home

MRS. HAROLD BATES of Streamwood types records for her home-operated courtesy service while son Craig, 2, watches from a lap-side seat. A fellow resident nominated Mrs. Bates.

The aura of a successful career girl surrounds Jean Bates, aptly described as "lovely and lively" by Mrs. John Hartnett of Streamwood, who nominated the attractive Mrs. Bates as Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

With three small children of their own, Jean and her salesman husband, Harold, share their home at 20 Crestwood with a 16-year-old nephew, Michael.

"It gives us an excuse to go to the Larkin High School football games," Jean quipped.

But they really take part in Michael's activities to give him love and security.

THE BATES are involved with three schools, since Cliff, 6, is in first grade at parochial school, and Jane, who will be 5 in December, goes to public school kindergarten.

Craig, 2, likes to sit on mother's lap while she types reports for her business, operation of Hi Neighbor Courtesy Service, founded by Jean and her next door neighbor to welcome newcomers to Streamwood, Hanover Park and Weathersfield.

Trim and well-groomed, Jean manages to look both smart and entirely feminine. Member of a garden club, she claims gardening keeps her slim.

NOT EASILY discouraged, Jean finds each problem a new challenge, like living within the family income. Her old-fashioned vegetable soup is a family favorite. The off-white draperies she made for the living room have brought compliments from friends.

Jean belongs to the PTA, and for the past two years, she has been chairman of a successful major fund raising project for her church. She sews for her church bazaar with originality and ingenuity.

"I'M NOT original at all," she claims, but she created a mosaic tile picture of a little girl with two balloons of which she is justly proud.

Says Mrs. Hartnett, "Jean has her hand extended in warm welcome to all newcomers, to make their first impressions of our community pleasant." (S

Eating habits children learn in their homes often lead to weight problems later in life

PARENTS WHO ARE really interested in the present and future health and happiness of their children cannot ignore the importance of cultivating sensible eating habits in the young. Allowing a child to overeat or to not eat a well balanced diet, with the hope that the child will ultimately outgrow these poor habits, is a good example of how some parents encourage the development of lifetime behavior patterns that cannot help but lead to frustration and unhappiness. The fat child too often grows into a fat adult, or the undernourished girl, the one who is not encouraged to eat a balanced diet, often becomes an adult woman who will experience difficulties in pregnancy because her body is not as well developed as it might have been.

Children acquire most of their lifetime eating habits, their food tastes and preferences, at the family table. The example set by the parents in the home is a powerful influence in determining how the children will eat through the rest of their lives. For instance, the mother who nibbles at a piece of toast and a cup of coffee for her breakfast certainly does not set a good example for her teen-age daughter.

LEARN THE SIMPLE FOOD RULES

Mealtime should be a pleasant occasion for all members of the family. Consuming food should not be mysterious, complicated, or a medical treatment. Learning and following some very simple rules can provide a daily food pattern that is nutritionally adequate and enjoyable.

Regardless of other purposes eating may serve, the basic reason for consuming food is to provide the body with the nutrients required for proper growth, maintenance, and energy. Teaching children to eat meals and snacks that are well balanced in both quantity and quality of foods is a parental responsibility which, properly performed, can contribute much to the longevity and happiness of the child. We should never forget that it is easier to teach by a good example than by preaching alone.

Nutritionists have tried to simplify food selection as much as possible. They have analyzed the nutrients our bodies need, and they have suggested food patterns to provide these nutrients. A variety of foods is recommended because the nutritionists are not yet certain about our needs for certain nutrients. Trying to rely on pills for essential food nutrients is not only a less pleasant way to feed one's self but also may possibly eliminate some of the nutrients present in a variety of foods.

FOLLOW THE DAILY FOOD GUIDE

Parents should set a good example for their children by following the daily food guide established by nutritionists. This involves selecting foods from four main groups:

Milk and Dairy Foods: Children and teen-agers should have at least three glasses of milk each day (or its equivalent in such dairy foods as cheese and ice cream). Adults should have at least two glasses of milk. Two 8-ounce glasses of milk provide these portions of the recommended daily allowances of food nutrients for an adult man: protein (of very high quality, ready for immediate use) 25 percent; calcium (which adults need to keep bones strong even after growth is completed, as well as for other vital processes) 71 percent; vitamin A 15 percent; riboflavin 46 percent; thiamine 10-12 percent; calories (which become undesirable only when we consume too many!) 10-13 percent. The percentages for an adult woman are slightly higher because of the lower nutrient needs of the woman, but two glasses of milk still provide only 14-18 percent of the daily calorie needs for an adult woman. To obtain the protein, minerals, and vitamins in milk through other foods usually would require a much higher cost in calories. This is why the calories in milk are often called "armored calories" as opposed to foods which provide fewer or no other nutrients except calories.

Meat, Fish, Poultry, Eggs: Two or more servings each day from this group of foods provide additional high quality protein, iron, thiamine, riboflavin, and niacin. Weight reducers should select the lean cuts of meat to keep calories down.

Vegetables and Fruits: Four or more servings, selected from the tremendous variety of these foods available today, help assure adequate consumption of vitamins and minerals. Selections should include a citrus fruit or vegetable rich in vitamin C and a dark-green or deep-yellow vegetable rich in vitamin A. Children do not have to be forced to eat any particular fruits or vegetables. Try many different kinds to find those they like best so that they get started in the habit of eating these valuable foods each day.

Breads and Cereals: Four or more servings each day from this food group provide protein, iron, B-vitamins, and calories. Weight watchers should select carefully in this group to keep the calories in balance with needs.

Selecting foods from the four groups and determining the amount of food required to maintain desirable weight are lifetime eating habits that should be taught very early. Children should also be taught, again by parental example, that daily exercise is an important element in building and maintaining good health. The time has come to expand the slogan "Families that pray together stay together" to read: "Families that walk together to pray together stay together." Surely, families that learn to eat wisely together also have greater opportunities to live longer and happier lives.

Betty Winsell a Homemaker Finalist

Mrs. Robert Winsell, 3403 Pheasant Drive, Rolling Meadows, faces life with a straightforward attitude and a happy disposition.

Her friends reason her ability to cope with obstacles encountered along the way stems from her inner peace and devotion to her beliefs.

Three women who hold her in deep affection nominated her for Suburban Homemaker of the Year. They are Dorothy Frye, Bette Kocian, Dorothy Anderson.

The judging panel, too, found Betty Winsell an outstanding young woman, and Betty cherishes the silver dish, suitably engraved to mark her as one of the finalists, which she received at last night's award ceremony.

BETTY CAN stand firm and unwavering when it is a matter of moral principle, but she can concede democratically to the majority when it is strictly a matter of choice. She can encourage with compliments or offer constructive ctiticism. She has a happy, bubbly personality and a keen sense of humor.

She is eager to learn and then just as eager to pass along her new knowledge.

A case in point is the Bethel Bible Series course she just completed after two and a half years of study. Betty and Bob started the course together, but toward the end Bob had to drop out. A new job kept him from completing the eight-plus-hour weekly homework assignments. Now Betty qualifies as an instructor in this new approach to the study of the Bible, cover to cover, and last week her class met for the first time. The course includes a study of the authors, the countries and the times of the Bible.

To help quench her thirst for knowledge, Betty has taken courses in French, sewing, first aid and specialized fields of Girl Scouting.

SHE BECAME a Brownie leader so Cathy, now 12, would have a troop to enter, and has remained a leader as the troop has grwn in number to 24 and in age to the Cadet level.

She tells a hilarious story of taking the troop to Hickory Hill camp this fall, promising the parents she would have the girls back in time for their oral polio doses that Sunday. Five cars came up to bring the campers home. Betty piled the girls into the car,s and stayed behind with the luggage, waiting for the sixth scheduled car to arrive. As dusk approached, she phoned home, to learn the driver missed the camp, and Bob Winsell made the quick round trip.

Her friends consider this kind of family cooperation the secret ingredient that allows Betty to live such a rich and full life.

Son, Gregg, 10, is a Scout, and three-year-old Troy, Betty says is "charming."

BETTY IS intent on doing any job well. She dropped out of the Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club when Troy was born. Recently appointed to the High School District 214 citizens lay committee to promote a new building, Betty was eager to serve, but the serious illness of her father brought about her resignation, rather than not be able to do her share.

Sewing is her favorite homemaking skill, and she turns out professional - appearing clothing.

"I'm not a fabulous cook," she claims, "but I try to introduce new recipes into our menus and do a lot of holiday baking."

Betty has a glowing appearance, neat and trim, neatly groomed. She looks equally well in slacks on a campout or in a dress that has the mark of an original at the country club. That "original," her friends know, she probably whipped up herself.

HER FRIENDS find Betty a source of inspiration and pleasure, and she is constantly making new friends, although she is a retiring person. Last summer Betty was in the hospital. As she convalesced, she spent her time reading to patients who were too sick to read for themselves. She brightened the day for many and found real satisfaction in performing such services for others. (SS

MRS. ROBERT WINSELL qualifies as a skilled seamstress, a talent that comes in handy for the mother of a pre-teen daughter. (SS

Her Sewing Skill Aids Family Income

Skill with a needle has given Leona Daugird of Morton Grove an opportunity to increase the family income.

She made draperies, curtains and slip covers for her home, clothing for herself and her children. This sewing led to employment with a cleaning firm, handling alterations. And best of all, the job doesn't take her away from home.

Sewing is becoming a family tradition. Leona's mother was a seamstress, and Mrs. Daugird is passing the art along to her 10-year-old daughter, Kathy, who is learning to make doll clothes.

MRS. DAUGIRD was nominated as Suburban Homemaker of the Year by her friend, Mrs. Nicholas Skoufes, 3125 Busse Rd., Arlington Heights.

A woman of many talents, Leona helped her electrician husband, Joseph, remodel and decorate their home at 5804 Washington St., Morton Grove. She is considered an excellent cook.

Still she finds time for other activities. She caters part-time, and babysits. She is active in her church. She is a leader of Kathy's Girl Scout troop, and with 12-year-old Alan a Boy Scout, she also helps that organization, too.

A PTA member for years, Leona is currently ways and means chairman of her local unit. A hootenanny last Sunday was her clever choice of a money making project.

This pleasant, smiling woman wears well with her friends.

"She has a humorous side as well as a serious one," says Mrs. Skoufes. "A nice woman to know." (SS

Jean Bates Runs Business at Home

MRS. HAROLD BATES of Streamwood types records for her home-operated courtesy service while son Craig, 2, watches from a lap-side seat. A fellow resident nominated Mrs. Bates.

The aura of a successful career girl surrounds Jean Bates, aptly described as "lovely and lively" by Mrs. John Hartnett of Streamwood, who nominated the attractive Mrs. Bates as Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

With three small children of their own, Jean and her salesman husband, Harold, share their home at 20 Crestwood with a 16-year-old nephew, Michael.

"It gives us an excuse to go to the Larkin High School football games," Jean quipped.

But they really take part in Michael's activities to give him love and security.

THE BATES are involved with three schools, since Cliff, 6, is in first grade at parochial school, and Jane, who will be 5 in December, goes to public school kindergarten.

Craig, 2, likes to sit on mother's lap while she types reports for her business, operation of Hi Neighbor Courtesy Service, founded by Jean and her next door neighbor to welcome newcomers to Streamwood, Hanover Park and Weathersfield.

Trim and well-groomed, Jean manages to look both smart and entirely feminine. Member of a garden club, she claims gardening keeps her slim.

NOT EASILY discouraged, Jean finds each problem a new challenge, like living within the family income. Her old-fashioned vegetable soup is a family favorite. The off-white draperies she made for the living room have brought compliments from friends.

Jean belongs to the PTA, and for the past two years, she has been chairman of a successful major fund raising project for her church. She sews for her church bazaar with originality and ingenuity.

"I'M NOT original at all," she claims, but she created a mosaic tile picture of a little girl with two balloons of which she is justly proud.

Shows Concern For Neighbors

In every neighborhood there is one woman who takes a personal interest in newcomers.

On the 500 block of South Rammer in Arlington Heights, that person is Nancy Welnhofer, who lives in the house at 515 with her husband, Robert, and son, Billy, 9. Without fanfare, Nancy is where she is needed in the neighborhood.

"TWO YEARS AGO my husband and I moved to Arlington Heights with our three small orphaned grandchildren, and at the time I could not drive a car," wrote Mrs. Michael Martino, who nominated Mrs. Welnhofer as Suburban Homemaker of the Year. "She helped me with the many things that a house needs when it is new. She still drives me to the store. In 500 words I could not tell you what a wonderful person she really is."

"Oh, I don't think I deserve this," Nancy said when informed of the tribute paid by Mrs. Martino. "She does."

Mrs. Martino is sure Nancy deserves recognition.

"She's as pretty as she is nice," she said, "and that's essential for a woman. I could not have found a more capable, reliable, mature, honest and efficient person who is never too busy to give a hand to others."

NANCY HAS A beautiful rose garden. When she had a birthday luncheon the other day for Mrs. Martino, the gift had a rose corsage on top.

"Who else but Nancy would think of a wonderful thing like that?" wondered Mrs. Martino.

Nancy is a Cub Scout mother. The den of seven boys includes Billy and Mrs. Martino's grandson. On Halloween Nancy had the boys for a wiener roast, topped off with homemade spice cup cakes, and then took them trick-or-treating.

She bowls, plays softball and bridge.

A GERMAN shepherd dog completes the family.

Active in St. Mark Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect, Nancy assists in the nursery, belongs to a monthly Bible study group and bakes cookies once a month for the Bethesda Old Peoples Home, one of the activities of her church circle.

"She can put up a good jar of jelly, bake a cake, sew a suit or dress or make curtains, wash walls, dig a ditch and at the same time be a real lady," Mrs. Martino says of her gracious neighbor. (SS

A Working Widow

Solves Problems Before They Erupt

"Upon being widowed two years ago, my aunt, Mildred Sonnleitner, was left with the responsibility of two teenagers, a home requiring much maintenance, an aging mother and innumerable problems," writes Barbara Kozoyed, 442 S. May, Bensenville. "Not once have I seen her falter."

She named Mrs. Sonnleitner as her candidate for Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

JOANNE, 20, and Carl, 18, are working to pay their college expenses, while Mrs. Sonnleitner has taken a temporary job with a seed company.

Mrs. Kozoyed notes that her aunt doesn't wait for emergencies to arise. She ferrets out problems and deals with them decisively before they erupt.

"For strength and courage of her convictions, she far outshines ordinary folk. She seldom speaks about religion; she lives it."

MRS. SONNLEITNER has a simple formula for managing money. Each expenditure is classified as a "need" or a "want." If it's a necessity, she finds a way to accomplish it. If a want, careful planning and saving are called into operation.

Sewing, cooking, gardening are all part of routine housekeeping for Mrs. Sonnleitner, and she does a good deal of maintenance on the house.

"One day I arrived to find her firmly entrenched on a ladder, sanding the eaves," her niece says with amazement.

Carl is less effusive than his cousin, but no less genuine in admiration for his mother.

"She's pretty nice," he said.

The applications will be accepted until Jan. 1, 1964. After that date, applications should not be submitted until completion of the seventh semester.

Early applications will receive prompt consideration, and those who are eligible will be assured of their place in the university provided they submit required advance deposit and test scores.

"THIS ASSURANCE will free the student's mind during his senior year, since he will know that he is admissible to the university," Dean Sanford said. "With the pressure of increasing enrollments, these provisions for early applications for students in the highest quarter of their class assume added significance."

Previously the university did not accept any applications before students had finished seven semesters of high school work.

Dean Sanford said the new plan applied to residents of Illinois in the top quarter. Out-of-state residents must rank in the highest 15 per cent of the high school class to submit applications at this time.

Application forms are available at all high schools and from the offices of superintendents of schools and county superintendents of schools. (CC

Shows Concern For Neighbors

In every neighborhood there is one woman who takes a personal interest in newcomers.

On the 500 block of South Rammer in Arlington Heights, that person is Nancy Welnhofer, who lives in the house at 515 with her husband, Robert, and son, Billy, 9. Without fanfare, Nancy is where she is needed in the neighborhood.

"TWO YEARS AGO my husband and I moved to Arlington Heights with our three small orphaned grandchildren, and at the time I could not drive a car," wrote Mrs. Michael Martino, who nominated Mrs. Welnhofer as Suburban Homemaker of the Year. "She helped me with the many things that a house needs when it is new. She still drives me to the store. In 500 words I could not tell you what a wonderful person she really is."

"Oh, I don't think I deserve this," Nancy said when informed of the tribute paid by Mrs. Martino. "She does."

Mrs. Martino is sure Nancy deserves recognition.

"She's as pretty as she is nice," she said, "and that's essential for a woman. I could not have found a more capable, reliable, mature, honest and efficient person who is never too busy to give a hand to others."

NANCY HAS A beautiful rose garden. When she had a birthday luncheon the other day for Mrs. Martino, the gift had a rose corsage on top.

"Who else but Nancy would think of a wonderful thing like that?" wondered Mrs. Martino.

Nancy is a Cub Scout mother. The den of seven boys includes Billy and Mrs. Martino's grandson. On Halloween Nancy had the boys for a wiener roast, topped off with homemade spice cup cakes, and then took them trick-or-treating.

She bowls, plays softball and bridge.

A GERMAN shepherd dog completes the family.

Active in St. Mark Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect, Nancy assists in the nursery, belongs to a monthly Bible study group and bakes cookies once a month for the Bethesda Old Peoples Home, one of the activities of her church circle.

"She can put up a good jar of jelly, bake a cake, sew a suit or dress or make curtains, wash walls, dig a ditch and at the same time be a real lady," Mrs. Martino says of her gracious neighbor. (SS

A Working Widow

Solves Problems Before They Erupt

"Upon being widowed two years ago, my aunt, Mildred Sonnleitner, was left with the responsibility of two teenagers, a home requiring much maintenance, an aging mother and innumerable problems," writes Barbara Kozoyed, 442 S. May, Bensenville. "Not once have I seen her falter."

She named Mrs. Sonnleitner as her candidate for Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

JOANNE, 20, and Carl, 18, are working to pay their college expenses, while Mrs. Sonnleitner has taken a temporary job with a seed company.

Mrs. Kozoyed notes that her aunt doesn't wait for emergencies to arise. She ferrets out problems and deals with them decisively before they erupt.

"For strength and courage of her convictions, she far outshines ordinary folk. She seldom speaks about religion; she lives it."

MRS. SONNLEITNER has a simple formula for managing money. Each expenditure is classified as a "need" or a "want." If it's a necessity, she finds a way to accomplish it. If a want, careful planning and saving are called into operation.

Sewing, cooking, gardening are all part of routine housekeeping for Mrs. Sonnleitner, and she does a good deal of maintenance on the house.

"One day I arrived to find her firmly entrenched on a ladder, sanding the eaves," her niece says with amazement.

Carl is less effusive than his cousin, but no less genuine in admiration for his mother.

"She's pretty nice," he said.

Active in Church, School, Politics

Church, school and politics give Carol Gaddis a well-balanced program of outlets for her seemingly boundless energy.

The wife of Richard Gaddis, 520 Spring Hill Drive, Roselle, was nominated for Suburban Homemaker of the Year by her friend, Mrs. Otis G. Watkins, who became acquainted with Carol through PTA. Carol is first vice president.

She is the kind of mother who can be counted on to chaperone field trips, assist the teachers or head a committee.

DAVID, 8, is in Cub Scouts, so Carol is a den mother, and Donna, 7, belongs to a brand new Brownie troop, so she is an assistant leader. Debbie, 3, isn't big enough yet for such activities. She is content to practice with Donna's baton, while waiting for Santa to bring her one of her own. And there are Dottie, a dog, and Dandy, a cat, to complete the household.

Carol is secretary of the Christian Science Sunday School the children attend, and she serves on various committees.

Both Carol and Dick take an active interest in politics, and Dick was a delegate to the Young Republicans convention.

"I just sit on the sidelines," Carol demurred.

BUT SHE HAS helped canvass to get out the vote and regularly works at the polls on election day.

Full of vitality, it is Carol who organizes neighborhood parties, sometimes, as recently when neighbors were suddenly transferred, within a matter of hours. And it is Carol who volunteers to tend a neighbor's children when an emergency arises. Friends, adults or children are always welcome in the Gaddis home.

"This home has love," is Mrs. Watkins' appraisal. (SS

Farm Wife Has To Be Partner

Suburbia is absorbing the farms, so a Bartlett farmer feels that his wife, who meets the qualifications, is eligible for nomination as a Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

"A farmer's wife has to be a pillar of spiritual and moral strength," says Erwin Hahn, 27W100 Schick Rd., of his wife, Hildegarde.

"She has had to work hand in hand with God in helping me through the planting and harvesting of our crops, or when we had a young calf born, or a litter of pigs."

"In farming a wife is a partner," Hildegarde agrees.

SHE GIVES HIM encouragement when there is a crop failure on their 563 acres, or when an animal is lost. She keeps the books, managing so expertly that there are family vacations each year. She never knows how many there will be at the table, yet serves nourishing and delicious meals.

Lessons learned through the Home Economics Extension Program are put to use.

THE HAHNS have known disappointment in the loss of their two little girls through premature birth. They adopted a baby girl, Peggy, now 8, and later a 4-year-old boy, Nicky, now 6. She is teaching the children to be independent, in line with her philosophy that "you can't go through life always leaning on someone else."

Hildegarde Hahn has been active in the Cancer Crusade, the DuPage County Health Improvement Association and in summer is a swimming aide during the Red Cross learn-to-swim programs.

HER CHURCH work includes singing in the St. Isidore choir.

"She never ceases to amaze me in what she can do," Hahn says in tribute to his wife.

Full of vitality, it is Carol who organizes neighborhood parties, sometimes, as recently when neighbors were suddenly transferred, within a matter of hours. And it is Carol who volunteers to tend a neighbor's children when an emergency arises. Friends, adults or children are always welcome in the Gaddis home.

"This home has love," is Mrs. Watkins' appraisal. (SS

Farm Wife Has To Be Partner

Suburbia is absorbing the farms, so a Bartlett farmer feels that his wife, who meets the qualifications, is eligible for nomination as a Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

"A farmer's wife has to be a pillar of spiritual and moral strength," says Erwin Hahn, 27W100 Schick Rd., of his wife, Hildegarde.

"She has had to work hand in hand with God in helping me through the planting and harvesting of our crops, or when we had a young calf born, or a litter of pigs."

"In farming a wife is a partner," Hildegarde agrees.

SHE GIVES HIM encouragement when there is a crop failure on their 563 acres, or when an animal is lost. She keeps the books, managing so expertly that there are family vacations each year. She never knows how many there will be at the table, yet serves nourishing and delicious meals.

Lessons learned through the Home Economics Extension Program are put to use.

THE HAHNS have known disappointment in the loss of their two little girls through premature birth. They adopted a baby girl, Peggy, now 8, and later a 4-year-old boy, Nicky, now 6. She is teaching the children to be independent, in line with her philosophy that "you can't go through life always leaning on someone else."

Hildegarde Hahn has been active in the Cancer Crusade, the DuPage County Health Improvement Association and in summer is a swimming aide during the Red Cross learn-to-swim programs.

HER CHURCH work includes singing in the St. Isidore choir.

"She never ceases to amaze me in what she can do," Hahn says in tribute to his wife.

Helps Family Live Free of Tension

Two sisters who married brothers and live next door, have a mutual admiration for each other.

Jean Helsper of Plum Grove Road, Roselle, beat her sister Betty to the mailbox, and entered her as a candidate for Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

"I'm an authority on her qualifications," Jean claims.

Betty, she says, is "an absolute whiz at her job, homemaking."

SHE SETS A good example for her three children, Norma, 11; Daniel, 9, and Marjorie, 5.

"They are nice children to have around," says Jean, "and reflect their mother's attitudes in every way."

Betty believes in working with her children. She has led a Girl Scout troop for three years and is a voting delegate to the Northwest Council. A PTA room mother, she isn't sure whether Danny was pleased or embarrassel when she appeared with refreshments for the room Halloween party, dressed as Charlie Chaplin. But she knows the other kids enjoyed her costume.

BETTY IS AN old-fashioned homemaker, a "hands and knees" housekeeper, but is not adverse to learning and using new skills and methods. She is serving her second term as secretary-treasurer of Hanover-Schaumburg Home Bureau. This job means lots of paper work, but she arranges tours, gives lessons and serves as hostess, too.

Betty makes time work well for her. The family is a busy one, but with her guidance, her sister says, they manage to live without pressure or tension. Perhaps her management ability stems from her years of secretarial work when she learned the importance of organization.

HER HUSBAND, Melvin, is a carpenter by trade, but Betty claims he is very talented in all the home building lines, and there is often a project afoot to improve their home.

"I sort of help along," Betty admits.

Jean says her sister is a "good neighbor, does not indulge in in-law trouble and is kind and helpful to all. In her "spare" time, she sews for my children, byabsits for my sister-in-law or helps our mother.

"NO JOB SEEMS too big for her."

Jean found it difficult to write the letter of nomination and do her sister full justice.

"This was the 16th try," she laughed.

1963 Homemaker Finalist

Organizes Her Household of 12

Organization is the secret of a well-run household of 12.

"I'm not really an organizer, but I'm forced into it," quipped Mrs. Marius Ktsanes, 325 Central Ave., Roselle, a finalist in the 1963 Suburban Homemaker of the Year quest. At last night's local award ceremony she received a silver bowl, noting her achievement.

Joanne Ktsanes was nominated for the honor by her friend and neighbor, Bernadette Stoesser, one of the 1962 Suburban Homemakers of the Year.

They have been neighbors for five years, since the Ktsanes family moved from Park Ridge to the home set on three acres of ground, where there would be room for the children to run and play.

TWO MORE children have been born since that time, and now there are six, Kathleen, 12; George, 11; Jim, 8; Andy, 7; Tom, 4, and Nell, 20 months.

When they lived in Park Ridge, they became interested in the Christian Family Movement, and an Indian boy made his home with them. One morning three years ago the phone rang, and the same sponsoring organization asked them to take two Cuban refugee boys for a couple of days. Now, three years later, the boys still call the Ktsanes house home, and have been joined here by their sister, 12-year-old Maria.

Alberto is studying architectural engineering at the University of Illinois, and Jose is a pre-med student at St. Procopius College in Lisle.

ALTHOUGH THEY come from a wealthy family in Cuba, who sent the children to the United States rather than have them taught the precepts of communism, there is no financial aid to the Ktsanes family or for their education.

Catholic Charities paid high school tuition for the two boys, and in three months they acquired enough English to graduate and to get factory jobs.

"We call them plastic engineers," quipped Mrs. Ktsanes.

The money was banked toward college educations. Summer jobs have helped keep them in school.

"The surplus will run out one of these days," noted Mrs. Ktsanes, "but we'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Taking things as they come is part of her philosophy. Small problems meet with a "this, too, shall pass" philosophy.

THERE WERE problems with the Cuban youngsters in the home. The difference in temperament brought about clashes. The children, each speaking a language unknown to the other, soon began to communicate, and with understanding the problems diminished.

Each child has chores, but Joanne does all her own housework. Baking is her joy. The round loaf of bread isn't a new idea at all — she bakes three batches of home made bread, 27 loaves, a week. By using round coffee cans, she bakes nine upright loaves a time in her oven.

The garden produces vegetables and tomatoes for summer eating and canning and freezing. The fruit trees that surround the house also help fill the larder.

The house is neat and in good repair. The walls bulged last summer, when Marius' father, who was ill, was staying with them. Last week he left for New Orleans, and with the Cuban boys at college, the walls have sprung back in place.

MARIUS IS A partner in Lighting Unlimited, an electrical fixture shop in Barrington. He opened the store the day after the Cuban boys arrived.

During this period of getting the new venture going, Joanne has been called on to make some extra economies, such as reupholstering the living room furniture.

"After all, you can't have the insides showing," she shrugged off her accomplishment.

Joanne is a registered nurse, a graduate of St. Anthony's Hospital. She devotes one day a month to working at the Mark Lund School for Retarded Children, and some day hopes to resume her nursing work, specializing in retarded children.

DISCIPLINE IS a necessity in this big family, but Joanne tempers it with love, humor and faith. She has a delightful sense of humor.

"They dub our home 'international house,' because we speak Greek, Spanish and English," she said, admitting that she is Irish to add another distinctive nationality to the mixture.

"While she is too busy to kaffee klatsch or gossip, she is always ready with a sympathetic word, a helping hand, mature wisdom in solving a problem," Mrs. Stoesser reports. "Joanne is widely respected in her community, and people remark about how hard she works, her humor and wisdom, her deep religious faith and charity."

Joanne always finds time to hold a sick baby, help with homework, give attention where it is most needed. (SS

MRS. MARIUS KTSANES of Roselle, one of the five finalists in the 1963 Suburban Homemaker contest, takes a few moments from a home repair job to chat with two of her 12-member household. She was nominated by a last year's winner.

Keeps Busy with Club Work, Family Activities

Genevieve DiGristina has a prize recipe for French pastry cake which won her the top award in the Addison Community Day bake contest.

She also has a prize recipe for successful homemaking. She is the nominee of the Addison Woman's Club for Suburban Homemaker of the Year. The clubwomen were challenged to tell of their candidate in only 500 words.

Mrs. DiGristina of 128 N. Grant Drive in the suburb, is treasurer of the club and is working currently on a Hawaiian party. She is also a member of the PTA and was chairman of a section for the Danny Thomas Saint Jude Research Hospital benefit.

BUT KEEPING up with the diverse activities of other members of her family demands excellent management on her part.

Her husband, Philip, works for the Chicago park district, and as a part time policeman in Addison. For two years he was president of the Addison Police Benevolent Association and chairman of the board of directors. He is a VFW member and belongs to the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Genevieve has been called upon to participate in Jaycee projects.

THIS YEAR she was hostess for the Addison Community Day Parade, the largest community parade in DuPage County. Her duties included meeting and entertaining such celebrities as Connie Boswell, Johnny Desmond, Margaret Whiting, Miss Illinois and Sig Sackowitz. She rode on the Woman's Club float. She entered the bake contest, was thrilled when Francois Pope awarded her first prize for her cake entry.

Genevieve DiGristina is a fun-loving person. She has encouraged her two sons to have varied interests.

TONY, 12, is a Little Leaguer and Boy Scout with trophies to prove his baseball prowess. He was a door-to-door collector this fall for the Saint Jude Research Hospital benefit. He has his own encyclopedia. He is given an allowance for doing specific jobs about the home.

Louis, 20, is helping to pay his tuition at Loyola University, where he is a pre-law student and belongs to Tau Delta Phi fraternity, with a part-time job each afternoon and Saturdays. He enjoys archery, weight-lifting, skiing and his dog.

MRS. DiGRISTINA, an energetic person, has recently taken a job cashiering at a local supermarket.

"Most fantastic of all," the clubwomen agree, "is that she considers herself just an average person." (SS

Letters to the Editor

Replies to Criticisms on Choice of School Treasurer

Mr. H. Robert Powell of Prospect Heights presented some awfully harsh criticism in a letter to Paddock Publications' Fence Post of Nov. 7. Feeling some clarification of the facts would be in the best interests of Wheeling Township's residents and taxpayers, I will attempt to counter Mr. Powell's ridicule of action taken Oct. 23 by the Wheeling Township Board of School Trustees.

It should be pointed out that Mr. Powell was an unsuccessful write-in candidate in 1962 for a school trustee post. He went on later to gain a position on the District 23 (Prospect Heights) Board of Education. Further, he has been recognized as a participating, loyal Democrat in township politics. He therefore is presumably in a position to know more about schools and government than he lets on in his Fence Post letter.

MR. POWELL implies that members of the boards of education of the school districts served by the office of township school treasurer were invited to an Oct. 23 meeting of the board of school trustees to participate in the appointment of an interim school treasurer. (The appointment was necessitated by the resignation of Rolland A. Franzen effective Nov. 15.) The board invited all school district representatives to the meeting in order to learn of their feelings and opinions of the functions of the treasurer's office. I have long advocated that this office needs a thorough reassessment, and that the school officials are in a good position to contribute ideas because they work directly with the treasurer. I did not, and I believe Mr. Powell realizes this, invite him to the meeting to appoint a treasurer. I am sorry if he felt this was his role. It is the legal obligation of the board of school trustees to fill vacancies in the treasurer's office, and I would not presume to shirk this obligation and turn it over to Mr. Powell.

Mr. Powell also implies that the board of trustees, of which I am one member, fulfilled its obligation of appointment without giving it sufficient consideration. I think some of Mr. Powell's social and political friends who are actively interested in township schools can clarify this point for him better than I can.

The facts are that the board of school trustees publicly—through Paddock Publications' news columns and at a meeting of school officials Oct. 14, pleaded for recommendations for treasurer. We received 16 suggestions. We interviewed 15 candidates. In short, we did everything possible to let the public know our plight and solicited the public's aid.

BECAUSE THE Nov. 15 deadline (Mr. Franzen's official resignation date) loomed closer and closer, we determined to conclude screening candidates so that we might be able to make the appointment and enable the new treasurer to spend valuable time in bringing about an orderly transition for the office. I am sorry we did not choose Mr. Powell's candidate, if that is his concern. I believe the selection of a man holding a degree in accounting and another in law was a sound choice. It is a disappointment to me that Mr. Powell does not agree.

It is not clear to me what Mr. Powell means about the treasurer being "selected beforehand." If he means each of the trustees gave this subject thorough and exhaustive thought in advance of Oct. 23, he is correct.

I SHOULD like to clarify also Mr. Powell's contention that it is necessary for the township school treasurer to spend 24 hours a day in the township. Through interviewing the former treasurer, school officials and treasurer candidates, the board of trustees learned it is not essential that the treasurer be employed in the township as long as he is available by telephone and accessible at night.

The primary duty of the school treasurer is to sign payroll checks. I think Mr. Powell will find this will be satisfactorily accomplished.

I might also say that an arbitrary ruling that the treasurer work in the township would have severely limited the board's selection. Of 16 treasurer candidates, only six remain in the township during the day. It is the new treasurer's intent to have a local office which will be staffed during the day by a full time bookkeeper.

IF MR. POWELL is suggesting the new treasurer is not qualified, I would prefer he did so publicly. I will not damn the new treasurer because he supported my cause anymore than I would ask Mr. Powell to damn an articulate member of High School District 214 Board of Education who supported Mr. Powell's candidacy in 1962 and who shares activity with him in the Wheeling Township Democratic Volunteers Organization.

I suppose I should point out here that my opponent for the school trustee office was Gust Stavros, brother of the township's Democratic committeeman. I would guess my very election was not pleasing to Mr. Powell.

The board of school trustees and the new treasurer are committed to the proposition, as I have explained several times in Paddock Publications in the last few months, that economics can be made in the treasurer's office. What's more, we feel the duties of the treasurer can be classified and simplified, and that the entire office can be streamlined to better serve the school districts and the taxpayers.

I WOULD be surprised to learn that Mr. Powell is unaware of these possibilities. I think, in fact, he shares my views exactly on these matters.

Finally, Mr. Powell apparently attempted to paint me and the new treasurer as anti-economy and pro-great costs. He should know my personal and governmental beliefs make a sham of that picture. Mr. Powell's smudging of the colors will not change my approach toward fiscal responsibility and government economy.

I suppose public office holders must expect to be criticized — sometimes justifiably so, sometimes not. I am no exception. So I try to take Mr. Powell's words in stride. I hope that I am able to benefit from his commentary.

South Barrington Officials Tells Fears of Howie Plans

The Village of South Barrington wishes to take this opportunity to thank the thousands of people in the surrounding communities who have become associated with us in the struggle to maintain orderly development of this area. The profit-minded minority would ignore reasonable county zoning, inundate our schools with students and overwhelm the rest of the citizens with tremendous tax increases.

The recent letter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stoltz to this paper loftily refers to the American Way of Life which allows people to make money. Mr. and Mrs. Stoltz and others indeed do have the right to make money from the sale of their land. But rights carry with them responsibilities. One such responsibility is to utilize one's property in a manner consistent with the rights of the rest of the community. Zoning laws are designed to provide reasonable protection to community rights.

Some people feel that rezoning of their land to 60-foot lots will automatically make it more valuable to them. The fact is, however, that unimproved residential parcels of one acre or more are currently being purchased in southeast Barrington Township for more money per acre than quarter-acre developers are paying for vacant land adjacent to nearby developments.

Some of the outstanding citizens of our village and of the area are farmers. They want to continue farming but can do so only if orderly development is maintained. The tax impact of high density developments force farmers to sell their land, often for less than its present value.

There are at least eight villages in the Palatine-Barrington area which, like South Barrington, do very well without their own postoffices, stores, gas stations, fire departments, sewers and municipal water. This area enjoys quality well water without the benefit of additives. We are a part of a most efficient fire protection district and enjoy very low fire insurance rates. Stores and gas stations are only a few minutes away and our mail is delivered daily. The people of the area do not need or want these services which are a characteristic of concentrated population. This village will continue to fulfill its obligation of maintaining the kind of community desired by most of the citizens of the area.

As to the $12,000, that seems like a lot of money to all of us. It is for court costs and legal fees that have been incurred over a two-year period as a result of the Hoffman Estates attempts to annex north of the toll road. Photostatic copies of the itemized bills from prominent Chicago law firms have been shown to all interested parties and no one has been pressured into helping to defray the legal expenses. On the contrary, many people who have wanted to join in this struggle have been unable to do anything until now since South Barrington was doing all that was possible and meaningful. Since the outcome is of the greatest importance to these people, many of them have welcomed the opportunity to do their part in their own behalf.

Mr. and Mrs. Stoltz refer to Howie in the Hills subdivision homes as having an average value of $33,000. However, the 134 applications for building permits on one-quarter acre lots submitted to Hoffman Estates by Howie in the Hills show values of only $20,000 to $22,000. Thus it appears that Mr. and Mrs. Stoltz may have been misled by the subdivider.

The Stoltzes overlook the fact that an individual parcel of land does not exist as an isolated island but must be considered in relation to the entire area. One parcel may affect the entire school district. The Village of Hoffman Estates is seeking to intrude north of the tollway to control about 500 acres in the southeast corner of Barrington Township, over a third of which is the Stoltz land. If developed in accordance with one-quarter acre zoning, this would produce nearly 2,000 homes and could add over 4,000 children to our school system. This is more than the total enrollment of 3,600 students now in our elementary and high school districts, which extend from the toll road on the south all the way to Wauconda on the north.

In their admitted desire to make their property "more valuable," Mr. and Mrs. Stoltz ignore the danger of doubling our school population. Even if $30,000 homes were built on the 500 acres, two school children per home would cost the rest of the taxpayers of the district over $1,500,000 per year to attempt to maintain present educational standards.

South Barrington has been dedicated since its inception to the orderly development of this area. In so doing, it is representing the best interests of the people of the Palatine-Barrington area. To this end we will persevere and we welcome the ever increasing evidence of support from like-minded people.

I thought the article was excellent, but I did want to point out to you that the (Milwaukee) Braves are dedicated to rebuilding a championship team and the new owners are certainly not living under the guise of past stars.

Thinks Paper Too Bulky and Cumbersome

Whenever you get your newspaper down to a size that is readable I will again subscribe to it. The complaint is made in every group—"too big"—"can't find what you want," etc.

It is too bad that a local newspaper becomes so cumbersome that we have to wade through page after page of trivia to try to keep informed of our local issues.

You may be trying to compete with the Sunday New York Times, but so far you haven't quite caught up with them. It won't be long though—poundwise.

At least they number their pages and have an index.

Commends Paper For Information On Bond Issue

Your newspaper is to be commended for the extensive coverage given the recent bond issue in Elk Grove School District 59. I am sure the articles in your newspaper helped inform many of our citizens who have no connection with the schools.

I have been connected with communities where the newspaper gave very little coverage in regard to the school system because it was not exciting or controversial.

Wants Meaning In Halloween Trick or Treat

My children go out on Halloween night, just like thousands of others, dressed as ghosts, witches, etc. They have a ball collecting a bag full of goodies from generous neighbors, come home and examine their loot with glee — decide which of the wrapped candies they will contribute to church for distribution to children less fortunate than themselves, and save the rest, enjoying every morsel until they have had their fill. That they don't get sick is due to the eagle eye of mother, checking to see that they don't overdo their gorging!

Surely, our youngsters need something more than this tradition of ringing doorbells for a hand-out? This night of frolicking is not limited to the younger children. There are too many junior high and high school kids out for laughs, with nothing better to do. Many people feel almost intimidated into giving them treats for fear of the mischief they may play on them if they didn't give them anything.

I would like to commend youngsters who spent Halloween night "Trick or Treating for Unicef"! According to publicity in this newspaper and some of the city papers, various church and civic groups sponsored this method of collecting funds for a very deserving cause: The United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

Having resided in New York before I came to the Middle West, I was well aware of the wonderful work done by this branch of the U.N. When I found little enthusiasm amongst my new neighbors for the United Nations cause, I excused their apathy for Unicef as ignorance and let it go at that. While there may have been some youngsters collecting for Unicef in Mount Prospect, none came to my house.

It is about time that some meaning was put into this night of goblins and ghosts, and to what better purpose could this seeking of treats be put than providing funds for Unicef! We do not give our youngsters enough opportunity to serve others. "Trick or Treat for Unicef" is a worthy cause; it could be just as much fun, but guaranteed to bring a feeling of satisfaction in a job well done!

After sitting back for five years and becoming more aware of this appalling situation every year, I decided I better start the ball rolling! I would like to hear from any of your readers living in the Fairview, Busse, Gregory School area of Mount Prospect (or beyond!), who feel as I do on this subject. Just a card with name, address and telephone will do!

So you don't like supporting the U.N. — well, why not help Northwest Community and Holy Family Hospitals — or cancer or something?

Objects to Limiting Bank's Addition to 1-Story Height

Last May 8, 1963, the officials of the Village of Arlington Heights and the Arlington Heights National Bank entered into a mutually agreeable contract. Each party was to equally benefit; the village was able to save $50,000 by running a six-foot storm sewer down the railroad parks, and over the private property of the bank, purchased some five years previously.

This action predisposes any possibility for the Arlington Heights National Bank to expand and build a new, completely modern, banking building on its then, newly-acquired property. The village officials countered and said they would vacate Davis Street, between Dunton and Campbell Streets, so that the bank could expand their building by an addition, and drive-in window facilities, provided the A.H.N. Bank dedicate and pay for the new Commuter Street on their property; provide and pave a parking lot for public use only, for a covenant period of 21 years, and landscape same.

The A.H.N. Bank completed their part of the agreement, but find that the village officials now want to read new conditions into their contract by restricting the bank's building program to a one-story building on any easterly addition. It seems the village officials are unduly concerned that the bank's addition will partially block from view the Arlington Federal Savings & Loan Building from the direction of the railroad depot.

By referring to Section 21-124 of the Arlington Heights Building Code, one can readily see that the village trustees have an obligation to protect and safeguard the real estate value of all property owners, by insisting that all proposed structures represent sound functional planning, and esthetically, be in good taste. This is commendable, preventing "jerry builders" from erecting shacks in our neighborhood, thereby reducing the real estate property value of our homes, and inevitably lowering the real estate taxes which, however tempting that idea is, would be detrimental to all our governmental agencies, school systems, etc.

Many months of study went into the planning of the bank's proposed addition, and the biggest objection to all drive-in facilities was solved by providing ample back-log parking space, to the drive-in windows, on the bank's own property, and not in one of the streets.

The Arlington Federal Savings & Loan has argued that the partial loss of exposure they will have will be detrimental to their real estate property value and subsequently lessen the rate of their fast growth. I submit the ordinance falls short of protecting one business group's monetary margin of profits to the detriment of a second group, be it drug store against drug store, bakery against bakery, or bank against bank.

In my opinion, if the A.H.N.B. is given its democratic and legal right to build its proposed addition, the increased business activity in the A.H.N.B. will also bring in new savers to the A.F.S.&L. thus offsetting any financial loss they may sustain by the public not being able to see their building from the direction of the depot.

The address of the A.F.S.&L. as listed in the telephone directory is 25 E. Campbell St. The A.F.S.&L. have a right to assume that Campbell Street will remain open, as it is, and they will continue to have a 100 per cent exposure from Campbell and Evergreen Streets, and as far away as Evergreen Avenue and Northwest Hwy. They have no right to assume that a street, contiguous with only one building in the block, the A.H.N.B. building, will remain open, or have restrictions placed on its use for their individual financial benefit.

Now, if the proposed building addition to the bank will be detrimental to the downtown business community, then the village officials have their obligation to deny the bank a building permit. On the other hand, if the proposed addition will be an asset to the village by bringing more business to the downtown area, consequently more sales tax, making banking more convenient for the public, and increasing real estate property values of the entire downtown area, then I submit the village officials should cooperate with the bank 100 per cent. Anything short of full cooperation with the A.H.N. Bank would appear that the rights of one party were being circumvented to the monetary advantage of the other.

Ronald H. Stahl, A.I.A.

Some Children Disappointed On Halloween

Imagine our surprise to learn there was a Halloween party for children in Rolling Meadows shopping center after all.

The disappointed 10-year-old in our family had appeared, along with others, at the designated time. They were definitely told by officials there would be no party.

Today we read that park officials in charge of the program were tempted to call the party off because of drizzle, but when a number of parents brought youngsters the affair started, about an hour late.

It turned out to be a private party for 60 children instead of the several hundred it was meant to include.

Guild Players Report Good Crowds at Play

On behalf of The Guild Players, I would like to thank Paddock Publications editors for their courtesy and for the space allotted our publicity releases.

The record attendance at our recent production "Ligh Up The Sky," at Parkside school, Roselle, must be attributed in great part to the fine coverage your paper extended us.

The crews, cast and director of a community theatre group put in many weeks of concentrated work toward a presentation. Their efforts are well rewarded when they can play to a full house.

Portions of Letter Omitted By Mistake

Thank you for printing my letter of Oct. 24, dealing with the proposed "Teenage Code of Ethics." This letter apparently has aroused a storm of controversy which, I believe, is due in part to an unfortunate error on the part of the newspaper staff in omitting certain portions of the original letter. One of these omissions had the effect of negating my original thesis, that parents should retain their authority to make decisions for children.

Therefore, I would like to request that my original letter be printed in its entirety with the omissions re-instated. Text follows:

A PTA meeting was held at Miner Junior High School on the evening of Oct. 22. This meeting consisted of the regular business items plus what were called "buzz sessions." Small groups of people, moderated by a faculty member, discussed teenage behavior and drafted a set of "questions" involving the regulation thereof.

It is the plan of the PTA and the school to formulate a "Code of Ethics for Teenagers," after first submitting these questions in the form of a questionnaire to the entire student body. Typical questions proposed are:

"Should parents participate in the planning of house parties for teenagers?"

"Should these parties be supervised by adults?"

"Should boys be permitted to visit girls in their homes after school?"

IN MY opinion, to submit questions like these to the children for a vote would be an indication to them in the clearest imaginable terms that their parents and educators have completely abdicated their rights and duties regarding the rearing and training of their children. Moreover, it would create a feeling of insecurity in the children to have thrust on them the responsibility for making decisions which, rightfully, their parents should make.

In addition, the great mass of questions formulated during these PTA "buzz sessions" dealt with standards of dress, dancing problems, dating problems, social activities, social behavior, use of cosmetics, et cetera. Only the briefest mention was made of scholastic standards and intellectual training. In short, we seem to be fostering the notion that junior high school, and schools beyond, are one great social club. Is this the work of responsible adults?

The only possible end result of such misguided efforts is the complete dissolution of parental authority and the subsequent production of a generation of young adults dismally lacking in organization and self discipline.

I, for one, am wholeheartedly against this movement to force the making of adult decisions on children, and I emphatically urge parents to reclaim their prerogatives in the important business of child-rearing.

(End of Text)

I WOULD like to add three statements to this letter.

I am not opposed to the adoption of a teenage code of ethics, rather, I believe it would be extremely helpful in solving parents problems with regard to their children's frequently unwise enthusiasms.

I approve of discussion between parents and children on this issue before the adoption of a code of ethics and all due respect should be given the child's opinion. However, this discussion should be conducted at home and it should be clearly understood that the final authority in case of disagreement rests with the parents.

Finally, I did not write this letter in the spirit of demagoguery or to create factious disputation, but to remind parents that children are still children and require a large measure of parental guidance.

The Village of South Barrington wishes to take this opportunity to thank the thousands of people in the surrounding communities who have become associated with us in the struggle to maintain orderly development of this area. The profit-minded minority would ignore reasonable county zoning, inundate our schools with students and overwhelm the rest of the citizens with tremendous tax increases.

The recent letter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stoltz to this paper loftily refers to the American Way of Life which allows people to make money. Mr. and Mrs. Stoltz and others indeed do have the right to make money from the sale of their land. But rights carry with them responsibilities. One such responsibility is to utilize one's property in a manner consistent with the rights of the rest of the community. Zoning laws are designed to provide reasonable protection to community rights.

Some people feel that rezoning of their land to 60-foot lots will automatically make it more valuable to them. The fact is, however, that unimproved residential parcels of one acre or more are currently being purchased in southeast Barrington Township for more money per acre than quarter-acre developers are paying for vacant land adjacent to nearby developments.

Some of the outstanding citizens of our village and of the area are farmers. They want to continue farming but can do so only if orderly development is maintained. The tax impact of high density developments force farmers to sell their land, often for less than its present value.

There are at least eight villages in the Palatine-Barrington area which, like South Barrington, do very well without their own postoffices, stores, gas stations, fire departments, sewers and municipal water. This area enjoys quality well water without the benefit of additives. We are a part of a most efficient fire protection district and enjoy very low fire insurance rates. Stores and gas stations are only a few minutes away and our mail is delivered daily. The people of the area do not need or want these services which are a characteristic of concentrated population. This village will continue to fulfill its obligation of maintaining the kind of community desired by most of the citizens of the area.

As to the $12,000, that seems like a lot of money to all of us. It is for court costs and legal fees that have been incurred over a two-year period as a result of the Hoffman Estates attempts to annex north of the toll road. Photostatic copies of the itemized bills from prominent Chicago law firms have been shown to all interested parties and no one has been pressured into helping to defray the legal expenses. On the contrary, many people who have wanted to join in this struggle have been unable to do anything until now since South Barrington was doing all that was possible and meaningful. Since the outcome is of the greatest importance to these people, many of them have welcomed the opportunity to do their part in their own behalf.

Mr. and Mrs. Stoltz refer to Howie in the Hills subdivision homes as having an average value of $33,000. However, the 134 applications for building permits on one-quarter acre lots submitted to Hoffman Estates by Howie in the Hills show values of only $20,000 to $22,000. Thus it appears that Mr. and Mrs. Stoltz may have been misled by the subdivider.

The Stoltzes overlook the fact that an individual parcel of land does not exist as an isolated island but must be considered in relation to the entire area. One parcel may affect the entire school district. The Village of Hoffman Estates is seeking to intrude north of the tollway to control about 500 acres in the southeast corner of Barrington Township, over a third of which is the Stoltz land. If developed in accordance with one-quarter acre zoning, this would produce nearly 2,000 homes and could add over 4,000 children to our school system. This is more than the total enrollment of 3,600 students now in our elementary and high school districts, which extend from the toll road on the south all the way to Wauconda on the north.

In their admitted desire to make their property "more valuable," Mr. and Mrs. Stoltz ignore the danger of doubling our school population. Even if $30,000 homes were built on the 500 acres, two school children per home would cost the rest of the taxpayers of the district over $1,500,000 per year to attempt to maintain present educational standards.

South Barrington has been dedicated since its inception to the orderly development of this area. In so doing, it is representing the best interests of the people of the Palatine-Barrington area. To this end we will persevere and we welcome the ever increasing evidence of support from like-minded people.

Cites Youth of Braves' Players

My friend Bob Dwyer called my attention to your (Bruce Ladd's) article of Oct. 17 entitled, "The Giant Is Slain."

I thought the article was excellent, but I did want to point out to you that the (Milwaukee) Braves are dedicated to rebuilding a championship team and the new owners are certainly not living under the guise of past stars.

Our winter roster of 40 players has an average age of 25 including incomparable Warren Spahn and 5 other players who are over age 30.

Tells Success Of Paper Drive

In representing Senior Girl Scout Troops 406 and 504, I want to thank you for the success you made of our paper drive. This you did by giving us excellent publicity in your paper. Without this help, our drive would not have had the strong response it did have. Our success was dependent on you, as you can see.

For this reason, we want to take time out to give you our sincerest thanks.

Thinks Paper Too Bulky and Cumbersome

Whenever you get your newspaper down to a size that is readable I will again subscribe to it. The complaint is made in every group—"too big"—"can't find what you want," etc.

It is too bad that a local newspaper becomes so cumbersome that we have to wade through page after page of trivia to try to keep informed of our local issues.

You may be trying to compete with the Sunday New York Times, but so far you haven't quite caught up with them. It won't be long though—poundwise.

At least they number their pages and have an index.

I would like to thank your publication for your past news coverage on the various activities in which our grade school band took part.

Commends Paper For Information On Bond Issue

Your newspaper is to be commended for the extensive coverage given the recent bond issue in Elk Grove School District 59. I am sure the articles in your newspaper helped inform many of our citizens who have no connection with the schools.

I have been connected with communities where the newspaper gave very little coverage in regard to the school system because it was not exciting or controversial.

We are proud of the educational system that is being developed in Elk Grove School District 59 and know that in the near future our system will be an outstanding one.

Wants Meaning In Halloween Trick or Treat

My children go out on Halloween night, just like thousands of others, dressed as ghosts, witches, etc. They have a ball collecting a bag full of goodies from generous neighbors, come home and examine their loot with glee — decide which of the wrapped candies they will contribute to church for distribution to children less fortunate than themselves, and save the rest, enjoying every morsel until they have had their fill. That they don't get sick is due to the eagle eye of mother, checking to see that they don't overdo their gorging!

Surely, our youngsters need something more than this tradition of ringing doorbells for a hand-out? This night of frolicking is not limited to the younger children. There are too many junior high and high school kids out for laughs, with nothing better to do. Many people feel almost intimidated into giving them treats for fear of the mischief they may play on them if they didn't give them anything.

I would like to commend youngsters who spent Halloween night "Trick or Treating for Unicef"! According to publicity in this newspaper and some of the city papers, various church and civic groups sponsored this method of collecting funds for a very deserving cause: The United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

Having resided in New York before I came to the Middle West, I was well aware of the wonderful work done by this branch of the U.N. When I found little enthusiasm amongst my new neighbors for the United Nations cause, I excused their apathy for Unicef as ignorance and let it go at that. While there may have been some youngsters collecting for Unicef in Mount Prospect, none came to my house.

It is about time that some meaning was put into this night of goblins and ghosts, and to what better purpose could this seeking of treats be put than providing funds for Unicef! We do not give our youngsters enough opportunity to serve others. "Trick or Treat for Unicef" is a worthy cause; it could be just as much fun, but guaranteed to bring a feeling of satisfaction in a job well done!

After sitting back for five years and becoming more aware of this appalling situation every year, I decided I better start the ball rolling! I would like to hear from any of your readers living in the Fairview, Busse, Gregory School area of Mount Prospect (or beyond!), who feel as I do on this subject. Just a card with name, address and telephone will do!

So you don't like supporting the U.N. — well, why not help Northwest Community and Holy Family Hospitals — or cancer or something?

Guild Players Report Good Crowds at Play

On behalf of The Guild Players, I would like to thank Paddock Publications editors for their courtesy and for the space allotted our publicity releases.

The record attendance at our recent production "Ligh Up The Sky," at Parkside school, Roselle, must be attributed in great part to the fine coverage your paper extended us.

The crews, cast and director of a community theatre group put in many weeks of concentrated work toward a presentation. Their efforts are well rewarded when they can play to a full house.

Objects to Limiting Bank's Addition to 1-Story Height

Last May 8, 1963, the officials of the Village of Arlington Heights and the Arlington Heights National Bank entered into a mutually agreeable contract. Each party was to equally benefit; the village was able to save $50,000 by running a six-foot storm sewer down the railroad parks, and over the private property of the bank, purchased some five years previously.

This action predisposes any possibility for the Arlington Heights National Bank to expand and build a new, completely modern, banking building on its then, newly-acquired property. The village officials countered and said they would vacate Davis Street, between Dunton and Campbell Streets, so that the bank could expand their building by an addition, and drive-in window facilities, provided the A.H.N. Bank dedicate and pay for the new Commuter Street on their property; provide and pave a parking lot for public use only, for a covenant period of 21 years, and landscape same.

The A.H.N. Bank completed their part of the agreement, but find that the village officials now want to read new conditions into their contract by restricting the bank's building program to a one-story building on any easterly addition. It seems the village officials are unduly concerned that the bank's addition will partially block from view the Arlington Federal Savings & Loan Building from the direction of the railroad depot.

By referring to Section 21-124 of the Arlington Heights Building Code, one can readily see that the village trustees have an obligation to protect and safeguard the real estate value of all property owners, by insisting that all proposed structures represent sound functional planning, and esthetically, be in good taste. This is commendable, preventing "jerry builders" from erecting shacks in our neighborhood, thereby reducing the real estate property value of our homes, and inevitably lowering the real estate taxes which, however tempting that idea is, would be detrimental to all our governmental agencies, school systems, etc.

Many months of study went into the planning of the bank's proposed addition, and the biggest objection to all drive-in facilities was solved by providing ample back-log parking space, to the drive-in windows, on the bank's own property, and not in one of the streets.

The Arlington Federal Savings & Loan has argued that the partial loss of exposure they will have will be detrimental to their real estate property value and subsequently lessen the rate of their fast growth. I submit the ordinance falls short of protecting one business group's monetary margin of profits to the detriment of a second group, be it drug store against drug store, bakery against bakery, or bank against bank.

In my opinion, if the A.H.N.B. is given its democratic and legal right to build its proposed addition, the increased business activity in the A.H.N.B. will also bring in new savers to the A.F.S.&L. thus offsetting any financial loss they may sustain by the public not being able to see their building from the direction of the depot.

The address of the A.F.S.&L. as listed in the telephone directory is 25 E. Campbell St. The A.F.S.&L. have a right to assume that Campbell Street will remain open, as it is, and they will continue to have a 100 per cent exposure from Campbell and Evergreen Streets, and as far away as Evergreen Avenue and Northwest Hwy. They have no right to assume that a street, contiguous with only one building in the block, the A.H.N.B. building, will remain open, or have restrictions placed on its use for their individual financial benefit.

Now, if the proposed building addition to the bank will be detrimental to the downtown business community, then the village officials have their obligation to deny the bank a building permit. On the other hand, if the proposed addition will be an asset to the village by bringing more business to the downtown area, consequently more sales tax, making banking more convenient for the public, and increasing real estate property values of the entire downtown area, then I submit the village officials should cooperate with the bank 100 per cent. Anything short of full cooperation with the A.H.N. Bank would appear that the rights of one party were being circumvented to the monetary advantage of the other.

Portions of Letter Omitted By Mistake

Thank you for printing my letter of Oct. 24, dealing with the proposed "Teenage Code of Ethics." This letter apparently has aroused a storm of controversy which, I believe, is due in part to an unfortunate error on the part of the newspaper staff in omitting certain portions of the original letter. One of these omissions had the effect of negating my original thesis, that parents should retain their authority to make decisions for children.

Therefore, I would like to request that my original letter be printed in its entirety with the omissions re-instated. Text follows:

A PTA meeting was held at Miner Junior High School on the evening of Oct. 22. This meeting consisted of the regular business items plus what were called "buzz sessions." Small groups of people, moderated by a faculty member, discussed teenage behavior and drafted a set of "questions" involving the regulation thereof.

It is the plan of the PTA and the school to formulate a "Code of Ethics for Teenagers," after first submitting these questions in the form of a questionnaire to the entire student body. Typical questions proposed are:

"Should parents participate in the planning of house parties for teenagers?"

"Should these parties be supervised by adults?"

"Should boys be permitted to visit girls in their homes after school?"

IN MY opinion, to submit questions like these to the children for a vote would be an indication to them in the clearest imaginable terms that their parents and educators have completely abdicated their rights and duties regarding the rearing and training of their children. Moreover, it would create a feeling of insecurity in the children to have thrust on them the responsibility for making decisions which, rightfully, their parents should make.

In addition, the great mass of questions formulated during these PTA "buzz sessions" dealt with standards of dress, dancing problems, dating problems, social activities, social behavior, use of cosmetics, et cetera. Only the briefest mention was made of scholastic standards and intellectual training. In short, we seem to be fostering the notion that junior high school, and schools beyond, are one great social club. Is this the work of responsible adults?

The only possible end result of such misguided efforts is the complete dissolution of parental authority and the subsequent production of a generation of young adults dismally lacking in organization and self discipline.

I, for one, am wholeheartedly against this movement to force the making of adult decisions on children, and I emphatically urge parents to reclaim their prerogatives in the important business of childrearing.

(End of Text)

I WOULD like to add three statements to this letter.

I am not opposed to the adoption of a teenage code of ethics, rather, I believe it would be extremely helpful in solving parents problems with regard to their children's frequently unwise enthusiasms.

I approve of discussion between parents and children on this issue before the adoption of a code of ethics and all due respect should be given the child's opinion. However, this discussion should be conducted at home and it should be clearly understood that the final authority in case of disagreement rests with the parents.

Finally, I did not write this letter in the spirit of demagoguery or to create factious disputation, but to remind parents that children are still children and require a large measure of parental guidance.

Some Children Disappointed On Halloween

Imagine our surprise to learn there was a Halloween party for children in Rolling Meadows shopping center after all.

The disappointed 10-year-old in our family had appeared, along with others, at the designated time. They were definitely told by officials there would be no party.

Today we read that park officials in charge of the program were tempted to call the party off because of drizzle, but when a number of parents brought youngsters the affair started, about an hour late.

It turned out to be a private party for 60 children instead of the several hundred it was meant to include.

"Our Aim: To Fear God, Tell the Truth, and Make Money": H. C. Paddock, 1898-1935

The Way We See It

Suburbs Meeting School Challenge

The proclamation which set aside Nov. 10-16 as National Education Week is part of an annual attempt to call Americans' attention to the role of our schools in the strengthening of a democratic nation. We have no argument with such a purpose, but no proclamation is necessary in the northwest suburbs, where few weeks go by without the necessity of education and educational facilities being shouted at the residents.

Even the shouts may be unnecessary, for certainly no resident of our area is ignorant of the tremendous suburban growth and the consequent demand for classrooms, teachers, and tax money. What year is without a bond issue?

Keeping up with this growth has been a task for the educators and a burden on the taxpayers. The educators have accepted and capably handled the task because they are professionally trained to do so. The taxpayers have assumed the burden because they are also parents. In the area of education, perhaps no region of the United States can duplicate the northwest suburbs' support of public schools. And no region has been as demanding.

Besides keeping up with the growth of numbers, our schools have, in the same period, been faced with changing needs of students who will live in a world much different than that of their parents and grandparents. An examination of any area school district will show that the administrators and teachers have been doing much more than just adding chairs and classrooms.

Schools are tackling problems connected with slow learners, the gifted student, the unmotivated student, students with speech handicaps, the dropout. In addition, curriculum changes have brought about stronger foreign language programs, more modern social science courses, better methods of teaching mathematics, reading, and science.

While teaching staffs reached unpredictable sizes, the districts, realizing that the classroom teacher is still the heart of any good school, have sought only the best instructors and have refused to accept quantity for quality.

The northwest suburbs' challenge in education has been — and still is — an exciting example of teamwork between professionals and laymen, laymen who give up considerable time for work on school boards, citizen committees, and PTA projects. Few residents who have taken the time to examine their local schools can doubt that such support is warranted.

While it is doubtful that few northwest suburban children will inherit fortunes, they are presently inheriting an education which represents considerable effort and investment on the part of the parents and neighbors. As long as it is warranted, this effort and investment will continue, with or without a national proclamation.

End Remap Nonsense

Paddock Publications has long championed for equitable reapportionment of the Illinois House of Representatives. Now, in what may be the waning hours of hope, we again urge members of the state's special 10-man Reapportionment Commission to honor logic and agree to a remap plan fair to the voter, regardless of party affiliation.

The commission seems hopelessly deadlocked. Republican members, relying on arithmetic and the Illinois Constitution, propose that the City of Chicago lose two House districts in favor of the suburbs. Democrats object, apparently motivated by partisan interest and political rivalry.

Since 1950, Cook County suburbs have gained more than 700,000 residents. Chicago has lost 75,000 people, dropping from 41.5 per cent of the state's total population to 35.2 per cent. The sum of these facts is that Chicago deserves 20.68 House seats and the suburbs 9.26; in round figures, that's 21 seats for the city and 9 for suburbia.

The dramatic shift of population from city to suburbs and the specific language of the Constitution clearly justify the 21 and 9 apportionment. The commission should end partisan bickering and respond to its public obligation — providing genuine representation for all the people of Illinois.

Honoring Homemakers

The suburban homemaker is singled out this week for recognition in a special 14-page section of Paddock Publications newspapers. We take pride in announcing the winner of our search for 1963 Suburban Homemaker of the Year and in paying tribute to the 40 outstanding women nominated for this annual honor.

Our local winner will now compete with finalists from suburban communities across the country for the top honor of being named as 1963 National Suburban Homemaker of the Year. During the National Conference on Suburban Homemaking to be held in Chicago next week, the national winner will be paid tribute in an impressive award ceremony and given a $5,000 cash award.

We believe readers will experience a sense of pride and inspiration in the stories of these 40 homemakers. Of special merit is the sincere interest and generous support extended by area businessmen in behalf of this public service program to recognize the homemaker's role and importance.

Our local search is part of a nationwide community effort to honor American family living. The heart of family living has shifted to suburban communities, and we regard this search as an opportunity for all of us to identify the increasingly vital role of the suburban homemaker in shaping our present and future. It is fitting that all phases of community life join in honoring the homemakers of our northwest suburbs.

Keeping Up with Him!

Guard Your Credit Card

by LEE SECHLER
News Editor

Have you ever had some major credit cards stolen, and then watched what happened after the companies involved were notified.

I was in this questionable position recently when three credit cards, along with a sum of money, were taken from my wife's purse while she attended a party.

Since that time — a little over three weeks ago — I have formed the opinion that the Shell Oil Company — or at least the Chicago office — has very little interest in protecting the cards which the company issues.

I say this, because I supplied the Chicago office with the name and telephone number of a woman who tried to use my stolen card — who by the way was one of the women at the party when the cards were taken — and was told to send the information in a letter to the Tulsa, Okla., office for their files.

SECHLER

It would seem to me that the Chicago office would investigate the information, and hopefully catch the user of a stolen card before that person ran up a bigger bill.

I took more than a passing interest in the matter, because, as I've stated before, the cards and money were removed during the party.

THEY HAD to be taken by one of those present. It also cast a shadow of gloom over what had been a gay shower for one of the women who now has a few-days-old baby.

I talked to the husband of the woman using my gasoline credit card. To say he sounded shocked would be the most gross understatement made.

Perhaps for more than one reason. One of the other cards taken from my wife's purse was issued by Sears Roebuck and Co., and used the very next day and at other times by a party or parties unknown.

THE HUSBAND informed me that his wife was on probation now—from an earlier set of happenings with Sears—and would go to jail if anything happened.

I hope for his sake, and that of their small baby, that the story she gives about having the Shell card is true; but it is a story—or explanation if you care—which I can not accept in light of all that happened.

There are a number of circumstances and phone conversations with people she has had dealings with which fit together in a jigsaw puzzle of events, and in my mind, give her story a false ring.

I DON'T think most people would pick up a credit card—as she says—from the ground after leaving the party and not say anything to the people in the car, because the find didn't seem important, and then charge gas with it. Besides, she said, she didn't know who it belonged to.

A gas station owner, who wasn't at the party—or even heard of it—and didn't know me from nothing, was able to locate me.

There's more, but that should give you a good idea of what has been happening for a number of weeks.

WHAT'S THE answer? Well, I can offer you some—

—Don't go to parties (but who wants to give this up and miss all the fun)?

—Lock your credit cards in the bank vault (but then how would you use them)?

—Don't have credit cards in the first place (and save your money).

—Force companies to adopt better practices when cards are reported stolen (but this is impossible because they will, with a stern face, say they do everything possible).

—Report your card stolen, as is the practice, and then hope the party who has the card can run up a big, big, big, big, bill before the company decides to act.

On the Sucker List

Be Wary of Pitchmen

by BRUCE LADD
Associate Editor

If you want to lose friends and alienate the neighborhood, welcome the next salesman who comes to your door with a referral sales pitch.

The guy may be selling house siding, water softeners, garbage disposals, movie equipment, photographs of your children or any household appliance.

Giving a salesman a list of friends and neighbors whom he can add to his "sucker" list as prospects for a fraudulent promotion is the surest way to become unpopular. Even if the scheme is not fraudulent, your friends will be reminded of your lack of consideration for them each month when they make a payment on the item they really didn't need.

LADD

ACCORDING TO the many stories consumers are [illegible] Illinois Atty. General William G. Clark's Bureau of Consumer Fraud, you are led to believe that you are the first person in the area who is being contacted for the salesman's service or product.

The guy will tell you that you'll receive a certain sum of money for each person who subsequently signs a contract with him to purchase his appliance. (Vacuum cleaners are popular now.)

Many salesmen expect you to accept their word as a "gentleman's agreement" between you. Others will use separate "commission agreements," but few will ever pay the commission you have earned by involving your friends in the scheme.

NATURALLY, TO take advantage of the commissions (which you are told will substantially reduce the cost to you or even "pay for yours") you must sign a contract to buy the item involved. Frequently the contract is for a service or a product you have never considered buying. Most consumers end up paying the entire sum of the contract.

Remember, if the salesman promises you something which he does not put in writing, he is not bound to hold to his promise. Make sure that all the attractions he mentions which induce you to sign the contract are in writing.

If you have any doubts about the value of what he is selling, ask him to call back later. In the meantime, you'll have time to check your budget to see if it allows for full payment, and you'll have a chance to inquire into the cost of similiar repairs or products — with local, established business firms.

AND ALWAYS remember that nobody knocks at your door to offer you something for nothing. There's always a hooker, whether it's visible to the naked eye or not.

The editor of a southern Illinois daily newspaper wrote this week to amplify his position against members of state boards and commissions taking excessive "expense" and "overnight" sums from the state treasury.

"When I took my commission job five years ago," the editor said, "it was with the determination not to accept any expense money at all. My first commission meeting, however, convinced me that my relations with the rest of the group would require that I at least sign the expense claims, as the rest did. I should still have all the checks I got from the state for these expenses."

THE EDITOR is saying that a strange form of commission "etiquette" required him to sign blank expense vouchers. If he balked, his effectiveness on the commission would be impaired.

This is quite an indictment of government. How widespread is this subtle form of theft?

Sex Is Issue Over Custody of Poodle

MADISON, WIS., (UPI)—A suit involving the custody of a small white poodle dog will be heard in Small Claims Court in about two weeks.

Mrs. Dorothy Colby is seeking to regain the dog from Mrs. Phoebe Brumm, both of Madison.

In her complaint, Mrs. Colby said that Mrs. Brumm refused to return the dog, which she had previously owned, because she did not want it mated with a beagle that the plaintiff owns.

The complaint alleges that the two women made an oral agreement a year ago that Mrs. Colby would take the pregnant poodle until it had its litter and would care for the dog and litter. Then she could keep the poodle in exchange for her services.

The dog left the Colby premises on Sept. 29 and the complaint alleges it was found at the defendant's home.

Women Demonstrate Power

WELDON, IOWA, (UPI)—Never underestimate the power of a woman—or a town full of women.

Mayor Evelyn Simmerman and her five female council members all won re-election here Nov. 5.

That's impressive enough. But even more astounding is the fact that none of them were on the ballot. They won over a slate of men strictly by write-in votes.

Half-Time Band Reform

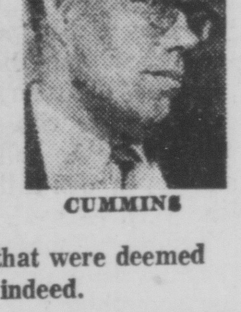
by BOB CUMMINS
Staff Writer

The half-time band performance at football games is a fossilized institution badly in need of reform.

Southern Illinois University took a step in the right direction when its band director decided there was no good reason for a military motif. It is difficult enough to play a saxophone in a snowstorm without being dressed like an admiral in the Kentucky navy.

So the Southern Illinois band director dressed his musicians in plaid waistcoats. That was one step.

Now the Harvard University band has taken another step. It has called upon Beethoven, Grieg, Wagner and Shostakovich to inspire its football team. At a recent game with Columbia, the Harvard band played portions of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, Grieg's Piano Concerto, the operas Lohengrin and Tannhauser and a Shostakovich symphony.



CUMMINS

Harvard won the game, 37-9.

In fact, the Crimson are having one of their better seasons. I understand they have lost only once and have defeated teams that were deemed to be stronger. The power of music is great indeed.

Harvard's success will undoubtedly induce other teams to take up the new idea in music. And it's bound to have repercussions.

I can just see the Sunday morning papers of the future.

"ROSE BOWL, Jan. 1 — Moussorgsky trounced Ravel, 21-14, in the granddaddy of all bowl games today.

"Illinois players literally ran wild as their school band played excerpts from Boris Goudunov in the fourth quarter of football's greatest classic.

"The Russian composer's operatic masterpiece resulted in two Illini touchdowns and a come-from-behind victory.

"Southern California had taken an early lead as the Trojan band gave a moving rendition of Daphnis et Chloe.

"The visitors from the Midwest bounced right back to tie the score in the second quarter as their musicians gave a well-conceived performance of Pictures at an Exhibition.

"Soon after the second-half kickoff, the Trojan band struck up Bolero and their gridiron warriors responded by marching 86 yards in 11 plays to take a 14-7 lead.

"Illinois musicians attempted to counter with the Khovanschhina Overture but tempos were slow and the attack of the brass section so ragged that the team's drive quickly bogged down and Southern Cal took over.

"Then came the turning point of the game. The Trojan band started playing Ravel's La Valse. Southern Cal seemed to stop playing football. They started waltzing instead.

"Illinois quickly recovered a fumble and, inspired by Boris Goudunov, turned the game into a rout.

"In the locker room after the final gun, Trojan coach Henry "Butch" Crossbuck brushed a misty eye and said, "They played their hearts out but our band just didn't have the horses. You can't beat Boris Goudonov with La Valse."

"Our Aim: To Fear God, Tell the Truth, and Make Money": H. C. Paddock, 1898-1935

The Way We See It

Suburbs Meeting School Challenge

The proclamation which set aside Nov. 10-16 as National Education Week is part of an annual attempt to call Americans' attention to the role of our schools in the strengthening of a democratic nation. We have no argument with such a purpose, but no proclamation is necessary in the northwest suburbs, where few weeks go by without the necessity of education and educational facilities being shouted at the residents.

Even the shouts may be unnecessary, for certainly no resident of our area is ignorant of the tremendous suburban growth and the consequent demand for classrooms, teachers, and tax money. What year is without a bond issue?

Keeping up with this growth has been a task for the educators and a burden on the taxpayers. The educators have accepted and capably handled the task because they are professionally trained to do so. The taxpayers have assumed the burden because they are also parents. In the area of education, perhaps no region of the United States can duplicate the northwest suburbs' support of public schools. And no region has been as demanding.

Besides keeping up with the growth of numbers, our schools have, in the same period, been faced with changing needs of students who will live in a world much different than that of their parents and grandparents. An examination of any area school district will show that the administrators and teachers have been doing much more than just adding chairs and classrooms.

Schools are tackling problems connected with slow learners, the gifted student, the unmotivated student, students with speech handicaps, the dropout. In addition, curriculum changes have brought about stronger foreign language programs, more modern social science courses, better methods of teaching mathematics, reading, and science.

While teaching staffs reached unpredictable sizes, the districts, realizing that the classroom teacher is still the heart of any good school, have sought only the best instructors and have refused to accept quantity for quality.

The northwest suburbs' challenge in education has been — and still is — an exciting example of teamwork between professionals and laymen, laymen who give up considerable time for work on school boards, citizen committees, and PTA projects. Few residents who have taken the time to examine their local schools can doubt that such support is warranted.

While it is doubtful that few northwest suburban children will inherit fortunes, they are presently inheriting an education which represents considerable effort and investment on the part of the parents and neighbors. As long as it is warranted, this effort and investment will continue, with or without a national proclamation.

End Remap Nonsense

Paddock Publications has long championed for equitable reapportionment of the Illinois House of Representatives. Now, in what may be the waning hours of hope, we again urge members of the state's special 10-man Reapportionment Commission to honor logic and agree to a remap plan fair to the voter, regardless of party affiliation.

The commission seems hopelessly deadlocked. Republican members, relying on arithmetic and the Illinois Constitution, propose that the City of Chicago lose two House districts in favor of the suburbs. Democrats object, apparently motivated by partisan interest and political rivalry.

Since 1950, Cook County suburbs have gained more than 700,000 residents. Chicago has lost 75,000 people, dropping from 41.5 per cent of the state's total population to 35.2 per cent. The sum of these facts is that Chicago deserves 20.68 House seats and the suburbs 9.26; in round figures, that's 21 seats for the city and 9 for suburbia.

The dramatic shift of population from city to suburbs and the specific language of the Constitution clearly justify the 21 and 9 apportionment. The commission should end partisan bickering and respond to its public obligation — providing genuine representation for all the people of Illinois.

Honoring Homemakers

The suburban homemaker is singled out this week for recognition in a special 14-page section of Paddock Publications newspapers. We take pride in announcing the winner of our search for 1963 Suburban Homemaker of the Year and in paying tribute to the 40 outstanding women nominated for this annual honor.

Our local winner will now compete with finalists from suburban communities across the country for the top honor of being named as 1963 National Suburban Homemaker of the Year. During the National Conference on Suburban Homemaking to be held in Chicago next week, the national winner will be paid tribute in an impressive award ceremony and given a $5,000 cash award.

We believe readers will experience a sense of pride and inspiration in the stories of these 40 homemakers. Of special merit is the sincere interest and generous support extended by area businessmen in behalf of this public service program to recognize the homemaker's role and importance.

Our local search is part of a nationwide community effort to honor American family living. The heart of family living has shifted to suburban communities, and we regard this search as an opportunity for all of us to identify the increasingly vital role of the suburban homemaker in shaping our present and future. It is fitting that all phases of community life join in honoring the homemakers of our northwest suburbs.

Guard Your Credit Card

by LEE SECHLER
News Editor

Have you ever had some major credit cards stolen, and then watched what happened after the companies involved were notified.

I was in this questionable position recently when three credit cards, along with a sum of money, were taken from my wife's purse while she attended a party.

Since that time — a little over three weeks ago — I have formed the opinion that the Shell Oil Company — or at least the Chicago office — has very little interest in protecting the cards which the company issues.

I say this, because I supplied the Chicago office with the name and telephone number of a woman who tried to use my stolen card — who by the way was one of the women at the party when the cards were taken — and was told to send the information in a letter to the Tulsa, Okla., office for their files.

SECHLER

It would seem to me that the Chicago office would investigate the information, and hopefully catch the user of a stolen card before that person ran up a bigger bill.

I took more than a passing interest in the matter, because, as I've stated before, the cards and money were removed during the party.

THEY HAD to be taken by one of those present. It also cast a shadow of gloom over what had been a gay shower for one of the women who now has a few-days-old baby.

I talked to the husband of the woman using my gasoline credit card. To say he sounded shocked would be the most gross understatement made.

Perhaps for more than one reason. One of the other cards taken from my wife's purse was issued by Sears Roebuck and Co., and used the very next day and at other times by a party or parties unknown.

THE HUSBAND informed me that his wife was on probation now—from an earlier set of happenings with Sears—and would go to jail if anything happened.

I hope for his sake, and that of their small baby, that the story she gives about having the Shell card is true; but it is a story—or explanation if you care—which I can not accept in light of all that happened.

There are a number of circumstances and phone conversations with people she has had dealings with which fit together in a jigsaw puzzle of events, and in my mind, give her story a false ring.

I DON'T think most people would pick up a credit card—as she says—from the ground after leaving the party and not say anything to the people in the car, because the find didn't seem important, and then charge gas with it. Besides, she said, she didn't know who it belonged to.

A gas station owner, who wasn't at the party—or even heard of it—and didn't know me from nothing, was able to locate me.

There's more, but that should give you a good idea of what has been happening for a number of weeks.

WHAT'S THE answer? Well, I can offer you some—

—Don't go to parties (but who wants to give this up and miss all the fun)?

—Lock your credit cards in the bank vault (but then how would you use them)?

—Don't have credit cards in the first place (and save your money).

—Force companies to adopt better practices when cards are reported stolen (but this is impossible because they will, with a stern face, say they do everything possible).

—Report your card stolen, as is the practice, and then hope the party who has the card can run up a big, big, big, big, bill before the company decides to act.

On the Sucker List

Be Wary of Pitchmen

by BRUCE LADD
Associate Editor

If you want to lose friends and alienate the neighborhood, welcome the next salesman who comes to your door with a referral sales pitch.

The guy may be selling house siding, water softeners, garbage disposals, movie equipment, photographs of your children or any household appliance.

Giving a salesman a list of friends and neighbors whom he can add to his "sucker" list as prospects for a fraudulent promotion is the surest way to become unpopular. Even if the scheme is not fraudulent, your friends will be reminded of your lack of consideration for them each month when they make a payment on the item they really didn't need.

LADD

ACCORDING TO the many stories consumers are [illegible] Illinois Atty. General William G. Clark's Bureau of Consumer Fraud, you are led to believe that you are the first person in the area who is being contacted for the salesman's service or product.

The guy will tell you that you'll receive a certain sum of money for each person who subsequently signs a contract with him to purchase his appliance. (Vacuum cleaners are popular now.)

Many salesmen expect you to accept their word as a "gentleman's agreement" between you. Others will use separate "commission agreements," but few will ever pay the commission you have earned by involving your friends in the scheme.

NATURALLY, TO take advantage of the commissions (which you are told will substantially reduce the cost to you or even "pay for yours") you must sign a contract to buy the item involved. Frequently the contract is for a service or a product you have never considered buying. Most consumers end up paying the entire sum of the contract.

Remember, if the salesman promises you something which he does not put in writing, he is not bound to hold to his promise. Make sure that all the attractions he mentions which induce you to sign the contract are in writing.

If you have any doubts about the value of what he is selling, ask him to call back later. In the meantime, you'll have time to check your budget to see if it allows for full payment, and you'll have a chance to inquire into the cost of similiar repairs or products — with local, established business firms.

AND ALWAYS remember that nobody knocks at your door to offer you something for nothing. There's always a hooker, whether it's visible to the naked eye or not.

The editor of a southern Illinois daily newspaper wrote this week to amplify his position against members of state boards and commissions taking excessive "expense" and "overnight" sums from the state treasury.

"When I took my commission job five years ago," the editor said, "it was with the determination not to accept any expense money at all. My first commission meeting, however, convinced me that my relations with the rest of the group would require that I at least sign the expense claims, as the rest did. I should still have all the checks I got from the state for these expenses."

THE EDITOR is saying that a strange form of commission "etiquette" required him to sign blank expense vouchers. If he balked, his effectiveness on the commission would be impaired.

This is quite an indictment of government. How widespread is this subtle form of theft?

Sex Is Issue Over Custody of Poodle

MADISON, WIS., (UPI)—A suit involving the custody of a small white poodle dog will be heard in Small Claims Court in about two weeks.

Mrs. Dorothy Colby is seeking to regain the dog from Mrs. Phoebe Brumm, both of Madison.

In her complaint, Mrs. Colby said that Mrs. Brumm refused to return the dog, which she had previously owned, because she did not want it mated with a beagle that the plaintiff owns.

The complaint alleges that the two women made an oral agreement a year ago that Mrs. Colby would take the pregnant poodle until it had its litter and would care for the dog and litter. Then she could keep the poodle in exchange for her services.

The dog left the Colby premises on Sept. 29 and the complaint alleges it was found at the defendant's home.

Women Demonstrate Power

WELDON, IOWA, (UPI)—Never underestimate the power of a woman—or a town full of women.

Mayor Evelyn Simmerman and her five female council members all won re-election here Nov. 5.

That's impressive enough. But even more astounding is the fact that none of them were on the ballot. They won over a slate of men strictly by write-in votes.

Football Fan Demands

Half-Time Band Reform

by BOB CUMMINS
Staff Writer

The half-time band performance at football games is a fossilized institution badly in need of reform.

Southern Illinois University took a step in the right direction when its band director decided there was no good reason for a military motif. It is difficult enough to play a saxophone in a snowstorm without being dressed like an admiral in the Kentucky navy.

So the Southern Illinois band director dressed his musicians in plaid waistcoats. That was one step.

Now the Harvard University band has taken another step. It has called upon Beethoven, Grieg, Wagner and Shostakovich to inspire its football team. At a recent game with Columbia, the Harvard band played portions of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, Grieg's Piano Concerto, the operas Lohengrin and Tannhauser and a Shostakovich symphony.

Harvard won the game, 37-9.

CUMMINS

In fact, the Crimson are having one of their better seasons. I understand they have lost only once and have defeated teams that were deemed to be stronger. The power of music is great indeed.

Harvard's success will undoubtedly induce other teams to take up the new idea in music. And it's bound to have repercussions.

I can just see the Sunday morning papers of the future.

"ROSE BOWL, Jan. 1 — Moussorgsky trounced Ravel, 21-14, in the granddaddy of all bowl games today.

"Illinois players literally ran wild as their school band played excerpts from Boris Goudunov in the fourth quarter of football's greatest classic.

"The Russian composer's operatic masterpiece resulted in two Illini touchdowns and a come-from-behind victory.

"Southern California had taken an early lead as the Trojan band gave a moving rendition of Daphnis et Chloe.

Increased Earnings Reported by NI Gas

Northern Illinois Gas Co. reported earnings of $3.01 a share for the 12 months ended Sept. 30, according to the utility's quarterly report to stockholders Nov. 1. This compares with earnings of $2.72 for the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1962.

Revenues for the 12 months totaled $179 million, up almost nine per cent over revenues of $165 million for the same period a year ago.

Edward D. Sheehan, NI-Gas executive vice presidentdent, told stockholders the utility's gas supply for this winter is 16 per cent more than last winter. "We should again be able to handle the peak demands of all our firm customers without difficulty," he said.

Total capacity avilable for peak demands of all our firm customers without difficulty," he said.

Total capacity available for peak day use this winter is 1,549 million cubic feet. Of this amount, 691 million cubic feet are available from underground storage, which includes 400 million cubic feet from NI-Gas' own underground storage facility at Troy Grove.

ACCORDING to the report, the gas company again this year is making arrangements for a $20 million line of credit with five major Chicago banks. Sheehan said any loans are expected to be repaid in full out of receipts during the first half of 1964.

Sheehan told tockholders that in August NI-Gas personnel occupied the company's new general office building located at the East-West Tollway and Route 59. All power requirements at this building, plus the steam for heating and cooling needs, come from natural gas turbines.

"As planned," Sheehan said, "we are testing and proving out the total gas energy concept at our new general office and at our division headquarters in Glen Ellyn before offering it to prospective customers in 1964."

Hits Brewers for Neglecting Exports

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — American brewers came under attack tonight for "doing practically no business in the export market," by Neil C. Hurley Jr., Aurora, Ill., who is chairman of the U.S. Commerce Department's National Export Expansion Council.

Hurley described the brewing industry as a "whopping big business, but in 1961, U.S. brewers exported just 280,000 cases, while this country imported six million cases."

Hurley, who is also president and chairman of the board of Thor Power Tool Co., Aurora, made the statements at the annual Milwaukee World Trade Club dinner.

He said brewers have avoided foreign markets for various reasons.

"IF OTHER countries protect their beer industry with restrictions through either tariffs, boycotts or distribution boycotts, this brewing industry, accustomed to expanding plants, some day will engage in foreign trade through the acquisition of brewries in other lands," said Hurley.

He said the United States is not undersold or outsold in foreign trade.

"Our balance of payment difficulties are caused because we use a $6 billion commercial surplus in our favor for foreign aid projects, military commitments, capital investments in other lands, and the difference between what our tourists spend and that spent by visitors to our country."

"The United States," he said, "is not undersold or outsold. It lags only in the inititiative of many manufacturers to sell as vigorously in Peru as in Pennsylvania, in Greece as in Georgia or in Italy as in Illinois."

Kettles Meant Health and Comfort in Grandma's Day

by DAVE ROBERTS

Back when I was a young boy and things seemed to have a touch of magic that simply doesn't exist for grown-ups, I often spent a winter in my grandmother's house in the country, living under conditions as old fashioned as a quill pen.

The bath tub was a galvanized washtub into which boiling water was poured from every available container on Saturday evening. The bedrooms were so cold that only a soft featherbed and some heated bricks, wrapped in flannel to keep chilled toes warm, made sleeping tolerable at night.

It seemed in those days that the family rarely had winter colds. At the time, I thought the reason was that no self-respecting germ would try to live in the unheated bedrooms, but looking back on it now, I suspect that the high humidity in the house had something to do with it.

Even with all her quaint devices—her bricks and her flannel and her feather beds—grandma kept a humidifier going all winter. She didn't call it that, nor did she recognize it as such. To her it was just a tea kettle, and from the first cold fall day when the fire was lighted in the wood-burning stove in a corner of the kitchen, the copper kettle was kept filled.

EXCEPT ON gala occasions, such as Saturday nights, this was the only readily available supply of hot water. So it was a house rule that when you emptied the kettle into a washbasin you filled it again from the pump and put it back on the flat top of the stove.

You did this at once, before you forgot. Failing to keep the kettle filled was a sin, in a class with not wiping your shoes on the rag rug outside the back door. Grandmother was a tiny woman and seldom raised her voice, but no small boy ever failed to fill the tea kettle more than once.

Besides being a humidifier, the kettle was the rural equivalent of a hot water tap, as the stove was the substitute for central heating. In the cold weather, the kitchen became an island of warmth in an otherwise frigid house. The stove would glow a dull red in its kitchen corner. The kettle would sing softly on top of it. The steam would drift out of the spout to spiral upward and disappear into the atmosphere.

None of us worried about cold weather humidity then. Humidity was what you wiped off your brow after a day in the hay fields. But looking back on it, I wonder whether Grandm's kitchen didn't provide a more healthful winter environment in that respect than a lot of our present ranch houses and split levels do.

THE RELATIVE humidity in November in a modern house which has no humidifier may be less than half that of Death Valley. I'm told by George Hase, manager of marketing for Mueller Climatrol, that a humidity count of five per ent in some homes is not uncommon. But in an old fashioned kitchen, it must have been considerably closer to the 35 per cent or so that's considered comfortable.

Not that the tea kettle alone was enough to make the difference. There were a lot of other producers of water vapor in Grandma's kitchen.

There was the big copper washtub that often boiled on the cook stove. There were the wet mittens steaming on a clothesline behind the stove. There was the melting snow that one of us had brought in on his shoes, despite all the warnings, when we came back in the house from a trip to fill the woodbox.

But in this warm, comfortably humid atmosphere we were healthy and happy.

MANY NOSE and throat specialists today feel that dry indoor air is one primary reason for winter colds. Lack of humidity also gets blamed for cracks in the woodwork, the creaking of wooden furniture, and the fact that most people feel that the thermostat must be set at 75 or 80 degrees in winter.

When the air is unduly dry, a lot of people feel chilly at 70 degrees. And the more air is heated, the drier it tends to get.

Normal household activities—cooking, showers, washing clothes and the like—add some of the needed moisture to the air. Trouble is, they don't add enough.

To put the rest of the moisture in these days you either need a kitchen full of kettles and tracked-in snow like grandma had, or a power humidifier controlled by a humidistat. The humidifier automatically adds from zero to 44 quarts of water vapor to the air each day, depending on how much is needed. The humidistat resembles the familiar thermostat, but it regulates relative humidity rather than heat.

WITH MORE moisture in the air, people feel comfortable at lower temperatures, it's estimated that properly regulated humidity can cut fuel bills by 10 per cent.

Chances are too that everyone who lives in a properly humidified house will have fewer colds. There are other advantages: Wooden furniture retains its moisture and lasts longer, static electricity no longer causes shocks every time you touch a doorknob and house plants perk up under the impression that spring is here.

Grandma, if she could come back for a visit, would especially appreciate the humidifier's effect on the geraniums.

It's the kind of thing she would have noticed first. (BB

Insulation Makes Any House Cozier

Many older homes with charm are shy on comfort. One reason for this is that insulation was either skimpy or skipped entirely when they were built. Even many new homes are not insulated adequately to provide both comfort and economy, heating and cooling engineers now tell us.

Fortunately, the original error in insulation can be corrected. Most homes, regardless of age, design or exterior facing material, can be insulated to recommended standards.

THIS HAS been made possible by the development of a method of blowing mineral wool insulation into the walls and ceilings of homes.

To insulate walls with "blowing wool," the contractor first removes sections of the siding to expose the sheathing behind it. Holes are then cut in the sheathing in line with the spaces between studs. Then a pneumatic hose is inserted in these holes and insulation is blown in under air pressure to fill every nook and cranny between the studs.

The last step is the careful replacement of the sections of siding to leave no sign of the work that has been done.

To insulate ceilings, the pneumatic hose can usually be brought into the attic or crawl space through a ventilating louver. The mechanic then blows mineral wool into the spaces between the joists, being careful not to cover eaves vents.

ONCE A HOUSE has been insulated to recommended standards, families find they enjoy draft-free winter comfort and cooler temperatures during the summer.

Studies show that families frequently reap a bonus of as much as a 40 per cent reduction in heating costs. At that rate, it doesn't take long for the insulation to pay for itself. (BB

Kettles Meant Health and Comfort in Grandma's Day

by DAVE ROBERTS

Back when I was a young boy and things seemed to have a touch of magic that simply doesn't exist for grown-ups, I often spent a winter in my grandmother's house in the country, living under conditions as old fashioned as a quill pen.

The bath tub was a galvanized washtub into which boiling water was poured from every available container on Saturday evening. The bedrooms were so cold that only a soft featherbed and some heated bricks, wrapped in flannel to keep chilled toes warm, made sleeping tolerable at night.

It seemed in those days that the family rarely had winter colds. At the time, I thought the reason was that no self-respecting germ would try to live in the unheated bedrooms, but looking back on it now, I suspect that the high humidity in the house had something to do with it.

Even with all her quaint devices—her bricks and her flannel and her feather beds—grandma kept a humidifier going all winter. She didn't call it that, nor did she recognize it as such. To her it was just a tea kettle, and from the first cold fall day when the fire was lighted in the wood-burning stove in a corner of the kitchen, the copper kettle was kept filled.

EXCEPT ON gala occasions, such as Saturday nights, this was the only readily available supply of hot water. So it was a house rule that when you emptied the kettle into a washbasin you filled it again from the pump and put it back on the flat top of the stove.

You did this at once, before you forgot. Failing to keep the kettle filled was a sin, in a class with not wiping your shoes on the rag rug outside the back door. Grandmother was a tiny woman and seldom raised her voice, but no small boy ever failed to fill the tea kettle more than once.

Besides being a humidifier, the kettle was the rural equivalent of a hot water tap, as the stove was the substitute for central heating. In the cold weather, the kitchen became an island of warmth in an otherwise frigid house. The stove would glow a dull red in its kitchen corner. The kettle would sing softly on top of it. The steam would drift out of the spout to spiral upward and disappear into the atmosphere.

None of us worried about cold weather humidity then. Humidity was what you wiped off your brow after a day in the hay fields. But looking back on it, I wonder whether Grandm's kitchen didn't provide a more healthful winter environment in that respect than a lot of our present ranch houses and split levels do.

THE RELATIVE humidity in November in a modern house which has no humidifier may be less than half that of Death Valley. I'm told by George Hase, manager of marketing for Mueller Climatrol, that a humidity count of five per ent in some homes is not uncommon. But in an old fashioned kitchen, it must have been considerably closer to the 35 per cent or so that's considered comfortable.

Not that the tea kettle alone was enough to make the difference. There were a lot of other producers of water vapor in Grandma's kitchen.

There was the big copper washtub that often boiled on the cook stove. There were the wet mittens steaming on a clothesline behind the stove. There was the melting snow that one of us had brought in on his shoes, despite all the warnings, when we came back in the house from a trip to fill the woodbox.

But in this warm, comfortably humid atmosphere we were healthy and happy.

MANY NOSE and throat specialists today feel that dry indoor air is one primary reason for winter colds. Lack of humidity also gets blamed for cracks in the woodwork, the creaking of wooden furniture, and the fact that most people feel that the thermostat must be set at 75 or 80 degrees in winter.

When the air is unduly dry, a lot of people feel chilly at 70 degrees. And the more air is heated, the drier it tends to get.

Normal household activities—cooking, showers, washing clothes and the like—add some of the needed moisture to the air. Trouble is, they don't add enough.

To put the rest of the moisture in these days you either need a kitchen full of kettles and tracked-in snow like grandma had, or a power humidifier controlled by a humidistat. The humidifier automatically adds from zero to 44 quarts of water vapor to the air each day, depending on how much is needed. The humidistat resembles the familiar thermostat, but it regulates relative humidity rather than heat.

WITH MORE moisture in the air, people feel comfortable at lower temperatures, it's estimated that properly regulated humidity can cut fuel bills by 10 per cent.

Chances are too that everyone who lives in a properly humidified house will have fewer colds. There are other advantages: Wooden furniture retains its moisture and lasts longer, static electricity no longer causes shocks every time you touch a doorknob and house plants perk up under the impression that spring is here.

Grandma, if she could come back for a visit, would especially appreciate the humidifier's effect on the geraniums.

It's the kind of thing she would have noticed first. (BB

Insulation Makes Any House Cozier

Many older homes with charm are shy on comfort. One reason for this is that insulation was either skimpy or skipped entirely when they were built. Even many new homes are not insulated adequately to provide both comfort and economy, heating and cooling engineers now tell us.

Fortunately, the original error in insulation can be corrected. Most homes, regardless of age, design or exterior facing material, can be insulated to recommended standards.

THIS HAS been made possible by the development of a method of blowing mineral wool insulation into the walls and ceilings of homes.

To insulate walls with "blowing wool," the contractor first removes sections of the siding to expose the sheathing behind it. Holes are then cut in the sheathing in line with the spaces between studs. Then a pneumatic hose is inserted in these holes and insulation is blown in under air pressure to fill every nook and cranny between the studs.

The last step is the careful replacement of the sections of siding to leave no sign of the work that has been done.

To insulate ceilings, the pneumatic hose can usually be brought into the attic or crawl space through a ventilating louver. The mechanic then blows mineral wool into the spaces between the joists, being careful not to cover eaves vents.

ONCE A HOUSE has been insulated to recommended standards, families find they enjoy draft-free winter comfort and cooler temperatures during the summer.

Studies show that families frequently reap a bonus of as much as a 40 per cent reduction in heating costs. At that rate, it doesn't take long for the insulation to pay for itself. (BB

Business Leaders Expect Continued Growth in '64

Chicago (UPI) — Business leaders are agreed that the nation's economy will continue to improve next year, but have warned against too much optimism.

"The picture is so pretty it's ominous," said Edward R. Taylor, president of Motorola Consumer Products Inc.

The executives made their predictions at a business conditions symposium at the 45th annual meeting of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

John D. De Butts, president of the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., Chicago, said he expected a 4½ to 5 per cent boost in the nation's economy next year.

"Excluding price increases, this should amount to a real growth rate of nearly 3½ per cent," de Butts said.

CROWDUS BAKER, president of Sears, Roebuck and Co., Chicago, said 1964 "should be another year of growth."

"What is anticipated is continued high level activity —no recession, no boom," he said.

Harry O. Bercher, president of International Harvester Co., Chicago, said truck sales "depend heavily on the level of general business in the United States" and "we think the 1964 prospect is good."

"Bercher said he looked for a 5 to 7 per cent increase in 1964 farm equipment sales and an increase in U.S. sales of construction equipment.

WALTON B. Sommer, president of Keystone Steel & Wire Co., Peoria, said, "The forecast for steel industry operations in 1964 appears to at least equal or exceed the operations for 1963."

Roscoe G. Haynie, president of Wilson & Co., Chicago, said total meat production and consumption promise to reach a record level of more than 30 billion pounds in 1964.

"While this would represent only a moderate increase over the 1963 level, it would be the sixth successive year of expanding industry output," Haynie said.

MOST OF the executives also had words of caution.

De Butts said he had some "specific reservations."

"Corporate earnings rates and unemployment might prove to be exceptions to this favorable outlook,' 'he said.

De Butts said 1964, although "A good year by most standards of comparison," will fall short of full industrial potential.

Bercher said his company hopes 1964 will be its third consecutive year of record sales but if so, "I expect the increase to be a moderate one."

TAYLOR said most economic indicators look favorable, but said this is a time "to be wary, to get inventories in line, to tighten up on over-all operation."

Baker said a tax cut similar to one approved by the House Ways and Means Committee "would virtually assure" further gains for retailers the rest of this year and into 1964 "if enacted to become effective early in 1964."

De Butts said the proposed tax cut "should help dollar profits."

"But rising costs threaten gains," he said. "Therefore with capital expenditures sharply up in the year ahead, earnings as related to investment may show little if any increase." (BB

Ten Tips for Job Seekers

In 1962 private employment agencies placed more than six million people in white collar and executive jobs at total annual salaries exceeding $30 billion.

Today private employment agencies are taking active roles in community life by sponsoring job therapy clinics for youths and senior citizens, and work closely with schools and anti-dropout programs.

This change is largely due to the efforts of the National Employment Association, the only unified spokesman for the agencies. This association of 800 agencies in 250 cities, was formed in 1960 to act as a "watchdog" and arbiter of the ethical code established by the members; to serve as a research center and clearing house for information and education; and to encourages projects in the public interest.

THE NATIONAL Employment Association has developed the following tips for job seekers:

1. A reputable private agency is the most efficient way to bring together a potential employee and employer at the highest possible salary.

2. Many private employment agencies have guidance and advisory counselors who are specialists. There is no charge for their counsel.

3. Do not sign any agreement or contract for employment until you have read it and understood it thoroughly.

4. Never pay an employment agency "in advance." A placement charge is due only after you accept the job. Fee schedules are established by law and vary from state to state.

5. IF A JOB is "fee-paid," it means the company has paid the fee, in which case you pay the agency nothing. Approximately 25 per cent of jobs listed today are fee-paid; trend is upward!

6. If you leave or are fired from the job you take, you will still owe the agency money. This amount varies in circumstances. Avoid misunderstanding by discussing these possibilities in advance.

7. Refunds of overpayment on adjusted accounts should be in cash or in credit, with the option left to you as the applicant.

8. Be sure that all oral agreements are included in your written contract.

9. If an agency gives you little attention, sends you on interviews for jobs in which you have expressed disinterest, or sends you to a company that does not have any openings, don't deal with them. You can also report them to NEA Headquarters, or to your local Better Business Bureau.

10. HONESTY with the employment agency counselor especially regarding past experience and salary earned will reap the greatest dividends for you.

The National Employment Association's new 1963 directory listing of its member agencies and area of specialization may be obtained without cost by writing to headquarters at 260 Southfield Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Mitchell Honored At His Retirement

Wallace E. Mitchell, 111 S. Reuter Drive, Arlington Heights, retired recently from Illinois Bell Telephone after nearly 40 years of service.

A party was held in his honor at the Old Orchard Country Club, where friends gathered to pay tribute to the man who was supervisor of the preparation of telephone bills for all customers in Chicago's north and northwest suburbs.

Mitchell began as a clerk in the Chicago accounting office and was promoted to Chicago revenue supervisor three years later. During a career filled with many assignments in the company's accounting department, he saw tremendous changes from the days when customer bills were made out by hand to the sophisticated electronic data processing machines which now handle much greater amounts of information in a fraction of the time it used to take.

WALLACE E. MITCHELL

BORN IN Tippecanoe County, Ind., Mitchell was cited in 1943 for his outstanding work in Chicago where he was a "minute man" in the U. S. Treasury Department's bond drive campaigns.

Looking back on the day he won the Illinois State Chess Tournament in 1924, Mitchell expects to remain in Arlington Heights and do voluntary work in chess instruction at the YMCA and Hines Hospital. He'll also pursue other favorite pattimes which include golf, bridge, photography and traveling by jet.

He ahd his wife, Lucille, have two sons, Robert and Wallace, who are employed by United Air Lines, and a daughter, Alice, who attends Arlington High School. (BB

Scenarist Joins Furniture Firm As Consultant

George Allan, veteran of Midwest repertory theater and graduate of Chicago's American Academy of Fine Arts, announces his association as field decorator consultant with Walton Furniture Co., Chicago rug and furniture dealer.

While at the academy, Allan was interested primarily in the employment of colors and textures. During his seven years as a theater scenarist, he became convinced that the dramatic color concepts of the theater should be adapted to home decorating.

He now will appear before women's community groups and clubs to give advice on the application of color in the home. He may be reached at 392-2400.

Society Conscious Of Art, Exhibits

THURS., NOV. 14, 1963

Whether or not today's modern society is becoming more art-conscious may be a debatable question, but according to Mrs. Robert Cournoyer, Arlington Heights, exhibition chairman for the Countryside Art Center, more and more business establishments are requesting art exhibits every month.

During November, many art showings by Countryside Art Center members are now in progress throughout the northwest suburban area. Among the exhibits are those by:

Other area exhibits by Countryside Art Center members include: Louise Elam of Arlington Heights, and Christl Hansen of Mount Prospect, at the Villa D'Este in Cary; Norma Simone of Hoffman Estates, at the Weathersfield Medical Center; Ruth Levy and Gloria Becker of Skokie, at the Golf Mill Medical Center; Monica Miller of Barrington, at Dr. R. W. Fabrick's office in Barrington; Margot Morris, of Des Plaines, at Mr. Edward's Restaurant in Elk Grove Village; Lorraine Schiebel of Barrington, at Plum Grove Estates; and Mary McDonald of Arlington Heights, at the Rolling Meadows Medical Center.

IN ADDITION, an exhibit of works of art inspired by scenes in the northwest area is now in progress at Pioneer Park. Many Countryside Art Center members are represented in this "Painting the Town" exhibit.

All of the works being exhibited in the area showings are available for purchase. Information concerning the purchase of any of the works may be obtained by calling Mrs. Cournoyer at CL 9-0946.

Tryouts for Winter Play Are Announced

The Guild Players will hold open tryouts for their winter production, "The Best Man," this Sunday evening, Nov. 17, in St. Peter Lutheran School, the old building, on Schaumburg Road, east of Roselle Road, beginning at 8 p.m.

"The Best Man," is Gore Vidal's play with a presidential convention background. It tells of the fight between two presidential aspirants to gain nomination and endorsement from the ex-president.

Opening in New York City in 1960, it later came to Chicago with the same leads: Melvyn Douglas, and Frank Lovejoy as candidates Russell and Cantwell, and Lee Tracy as the cantankerous ex-president.

FOURTEEN men and six women will be cast along with dozens of extras as reporters, photographers, delegates and conventioneers.

Early tryouts were scheduled in order not to interfere with coming holidays. Rehearsals will begin in January.

Scripts and additional information may be obtained from production manager Pat Vancel at 529-2048. (Bill

Drama Group Will Enact Fairy Tale

Fred Brodersen, cast in the title role of Masque and Staff's forthcoming children's play, "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," is the male member of one of the busiest husband and wife teams in this community theater group.

"Aladdin" is the third starring vehicle for Fred, who has been seen earlier as Peter in "White Sheep of the Family" and as Jim in "The Rainmaker."

In addition, he has worked backstage on many other M & S plays, and, because of his daytime occupation as a commercial photographer, is called on continually to take the publicity photos for the group.

LIZ, FRED'S WIFE, is possibly even more active, having appeared in the group's productions of "Ask Any Girl," "Seven Year Itch," "The Red Shoes," "White Sheep of the Family" and the recent "Picnic."

The Brodersens formerly lived in Kansas City, where they were both active members of that city's Resident Theater.

"Aladdin" is the third annual children's fantasy presented by M & S. And, according to the group's publicity director, Guy Marsh, the show promises to be "a real pre-holiday treat for youngsters in the area."

THE PLAY is scheduled for the weekend of Dec. 7 and 8. Performances will be at 1, 4 and 8 p.m. on Saturday, and at 1 and 3 p.m. on Sunday.

Free bus service will be provided from Clearmont, Ridge and Rupley schools for the Saturday afternoon shows. Buses will be at all these schools at 12:30 and 3:30 p.m. on that date. Holders of patron passes for this season may use these passes for the admission of one adult or two children.

Guild Ends Up 'Hero' Of Dramatic Oatmeal

by JIM PHILLIPS
Drama Critic

This is save-the-misfit-play year.

Des Plaines Theatre Guild was the hero Friday night.

But despite brave bursts of talent here and there, George Batson's "Design For Murder" still remains a lump in the dramatic oatmeal. Billed by the author as a "mystery thriller," it is neither complete mystery nor thriller, except for an electrifying moment in the second act.

The only unusual factor about "Design" is that the butler didn't do it—there just ain't no butler.

Faced with the task of making lines like "For me, it's all or nothing" sound conversationally natural, and grammatically-incorrect phrases like "You do have your eye on the heights, haven't you?" appear unobtrusive were: Velma Ryan, Robert Fennell, Chuck Sule, George Ricketts, Kathryn Clayton, Toni Sawyer, Jane Clark, Julie Beall, Peggy Strand, and Ric Ornberg.

MISSES CLAYTON and Sawyer were competent in their handling of different characterizations of a maid; actresses Clark and Beall did well in roles that were obviously designed to bring lightness into the deeply dramatic dungeon.

But for my money, Miss Ryan sauntered off with the evening's acting trophy for females. Her sometimes bitter, sometimes cruel, sometimes understanding mother was believable, natural. She was at home on stage and made her audience know it.

Chuck Sule was well cast as the villainous chauffeur, although he could have brought a more obvious nastiness into his characterization via line delivery. In general, the male element in "Design" was on the young side. For Robert Fennell, this was an advantage. For George Ricketts, it was unfortunate.

MR. FINNELL'S DPTG debut was one he can be proud of—he knew his lines well enough to phrase passages discreetly. He was relaxed because he evidently answered the "What's the man I'm portraying like?" question.

Mr. Ricketts, on the other hand, just couldn't fight the fact that his detective is a much older man. He possesses a pleasant, deeply-toned speaking voice and the best of stage presence—but for this role he was Tab Hunter trying to be Walter Pidgeon. A more complete make-up job could have solved a portion of the problem. The gray hair was there—but without facial lines?

Mr. Ricketts' first scenes were very impressive, but his final act was dealt a severe blow when he allowed his hand and arm gestures to get out of control; his last scene was nipped when his voice released a strained series of shouts which could and should have been breathless bursts of statement.

JUDGING by his good looks and talent for establishing a hero image rapidly, George could provide DPTG with another capable leading man — young man, that is.

Miss Strang, in her first Guild role (the housekeeper) did as well as she could, despite the author's inadequacy in trying to make the housekeeper's lines reveal personality. So she threw in a bit of her own ideas (or Director Ed Sauer's). Good for her (or him!).

Ed, a man of all talents, should take a bow for leading his crew through the scripted muck and mire of an incredibly-slow first act, unnecessarily long second act, and a third act which comes to such a sudden end that you don't even have a chance to catch your breath, turn to your wife and say, "Well, let's go get some pizza."

DIRECTOR Sauer's know-how was evident in the second act finale, when he put every special effect in the books to work in order to scare the playbill-biting patrons out of their doldrums. He still remains a master at reminding those who aren't speaking lines that they must still react to the lines of others. (Miss Beall's facial gymnastics during many of Miss Clark's remarks were proud examples of the Sauer strategy.)

Drinking in the entire poison potion, "Design For Murder" was only a shade away from becoming a blueprint for "play goes on and on-ism." It is much too long an offering in the first place. Even if it did move fast, it would still be too long.

DPTG, with its attractive settings and equally impressive stage furnishings, can keep the whole bloody mess from becoming a whole bloody miss — but with a playwright like George Batson standing there, compound sentences and double-duty dialogue in hand, even Sauer's stage soldiers have their homicidal hands full.

Naval Reserve Needs Personnel

Naval Air Reserve squadrons at the Naval Air Station in Glenview need veterans with first, second and third class petty officer rank.

Anyone interested in joining a VF (fighter) squadron at the air station may contact Rich Schoepke, CL 5-8890.

A new armed forces pay raise went into effect Oct. 1.

Service in the Reserve gives veterans a chance to make extra money, keep up with the Navy's new equipment and serve their country, Schoepke said.

He added, "Winston Churchill once said: 'A Reservist is indeed twice the Citizen.' "

Society Conscious Of Art, Exhibits

Whether or not today's modern society is becoming more art-conscious may be a debatable question, but according to Mrs. Robert Cournoyer, Arlington Heights, exhibition chairman for the Countryside Art Center, more and more business establishments are requesting art exhibits every month.

During November, many art showings by Countryside Art Center members are now in progress throughout the northwest suburban area. Among the exhibits are those by:

Other area exhibits by Countryside Art Center members include: Louise Elam of Arlington Heights, and Christl Hansen of Mount Prospect, at the Villa D'Este in Cary; Norma Simone of Hoffman Estates, at the Weathersfield Medical Center; Ruth Levy and Gloria Becker of Skokie, at the Golf Mill Medical Center; Monica Miller of Barrington, at Dr. R. W. Fabrick's office in Barrington; Margot Morris, of Des Plaines, at Mr. Edward's Restaurant in Elk Grove Village; Lorraine Schiebel of Barrington, at Plum Grove Estates; and Mary McDonald of Arlington Heights, at the Rolling Meadows Medical Center.

IN ADDITION, an exhibit of works of art inspired by scenes in the northwest area is now in progress at Pioneer Park. Many Countryside Art Center members are represented in this "Painting the Town" exhibit.

All of the works being exhibited in the area showings are available for purchase. Information concerning the purchase of any of the works may be obtained by calling Mrs. Cournoyer at CL 9-0946.

Tryouts for Winter Play Are Announced

The Guild Players will hold open tryouts for their winter production, "The Best Man," this Sunday evening, Nov. 17, in St. Peter Lutheran School, the old building, on Schaumburg Road, east of Roselle Road, beginning at 8 p.m.

"The Best Man," is Gore Vidal's play with a presidential convention background. It tells of the fight between two presidential aspirants to gain nomination and endorsement from the ex-president.

Opening in New York City in 1960, it later came to Chicago with the same leads: Melvyn Douglas, and Frank Lovejoy as candidates Russell and Cantwell, and Lee Tracy as the cantankerous ex-president.

FOURTEEN men and six women will be cast along with dozens of extras as reporters, photographers, delegates and conventioneers.

Early tryouts were scheduled in order not to interfere with coming holidays. Rehearsals will begin in January.

Scripts and additional information may be obtained from production manager Pat Vancel at 529-2048. (Bill

Drama Group Will Enact Fairy Tale

Fred Brodersen, cast in the title role of Masque and Staff's forthcoming children's play, "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," is the male member of one of the busiest husband and wife teams in this community theater group.

"Aladdin" is the third starring vehicle for Fred, who has been seen earlier as Peter in "White Sheep of the Family" and as Jim in "The Rainmaker."

In addition, he has worked backstage on many other M & S plays, and, because of his daytime occupation as a commercial photographer, is called on continually to take the publicity photos for the group.

LIZ, FRED'S WIFE, is possibly even more active, having appeared in the group's productions of "Ask Any Girl," "Seven Year Itch," "The Red Shoes," "White Sheep of the Family" and the recent "Picnic."

The Brodersens formerly lived in Kansas City, where they were both active members of that city's Resident Theater.

"Aladdin" is the third annual children's fantasy presented by M & S. And, according to the group's publicity director, Guy Marsh, the show promises to be "a real pre-holiday treat for youngsters in the area."

THE PLAY is scheduled for the weekend of Dec. 7 and 8. Performances will be at 1, 4 and 8 p.m. on Saturday, and at 1 and 3 p.m. on Sunday.

Hospital Players in Final Stages of Play Production

At this point, the Northwest Community Hospital Players feel "a long way off" since tryouts began for the production of "More Than Meets the Eye" by Fred Carmichael.

Employes, doctors and their wives, stage manager and crew are reaching the final stages of the play being held at Cutting Hall in Palatine High School.

"Many complimentary things can be said for the diligence of all the people involved in this second play production," said Mrs. Helen Bodelson, director of the play. "The determination of the people involved to produce a successful play has been most rewarding."

IN LEAD roles will be Dr. Richard Treanor, Mrs. Robert Alfini and Dr. James Kane.

Playing the part of Brad, an intelligent, "without being obnoxious" teenager, will be Thomas Collins, an orderly at Northwest Community Hospital. Tom will be working at the hospital until he enters medical school next year. He live swith his parents in Mount Prospect.

Edwin Schmidt, chief x-ray technician at the hospital, will be making his second appearance with the players group, having portrayed the part of the sergeant in the last production, "See How They Run." This year Ed will be seen in the role of Carl Henderson, a magazine photographer.

SCHMIDT AND his wife, Dr. Annaliese Bushe, an anesthesiologist, live in Palatine. They have two children.

Mrs. Norman Soderholm, volunteer at the hospital, will portray the part of Miss Jenkins, an advance woman for the United News Service. Last year Donna did an outstanding job behind the scenes in various phases including prompting at rehearsals and make-up.

Donna, her husband and five children live in Arlington Heights. Dr. E. J. Jacobs, obstetrician, will be seen in the part of Lawton Ellerbe. The doctor and his wife, Ann, live in Arlington Heights.

THE PLAY will be presented on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 22, 23 and 24, and the following Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 1.

Tickets may be purchased from any hospital personnel or by calling 392-2300. (Bill

Launch Fiesta At Sahara Inn

A special "Gene Autry Fiesta" night has been initiated (beginning on Wednesday, Nov. 13) in the elegant Sultan's Table dining room at Gene Autry's Sahara Inn, 3939 N. Mannheim Road, Schiller Park.

Erwin Schlicht, general manager, announced plans for the Fiesta, which includes a seven-course dinner plus headline entertainment and complimentary after-dinner drink.

A regular feature each evening from Sunday through Thursday, between 5:30 p.m. and 1 a.m., the Fiesta night dinner will offer a choice of six entrees.

REVOLVING silver trays will be brought to each table so that guests may select from such delicacies as breast of chicken, sirloin steak, tenderloin steak, ham steak, or fish fillets, prepared to their order and served with appetizer, soup, salad and other courses.

Entertainment by such stars as Hildegarde, Betty Johnson and Harry Richman will feature the dinner show, with no cover charge to Fiesta night guests.

Each will also receive a complimentary, after-dinner drink in the Celebrity Lounge, with its sprightly entertainment.

THE FIESTA night special offers a menu prepared by the same chefs who nightly serve the famed Sultan's Table, Schlicht emphasized.

Dinner and entertainment are a nightly event in its crystal chandelier-lit, red and gold surroundings. Two shows are at 8:30 and 11:30 p.m. nightly, with CBS star Ollie Raymand and his orchestra providing music for dancing, as well.

Crewmen Needed for Winston Production

Stage crew members are needed for Winston Little Theatre's premiere production, "Whole Darn Shootin' Match," opening at Cutting Hall, Palatine, Jan. 9 and 10.

President Don Post, 1016 Morris, Palatine, says the play is an excellent one for beginners as the lighting effects are very basic and the setting present-day, which simplifies costuming and makeup, he explained.

Those interested in such jobs as set construction, finance, costuming, makeup and lighting are asked to attend the next meeting Thursday, Nov. 21, at Palatine Recreation Building, 262 E. Chicago. Time is 8:15 p.m.

TOM SWINGLE, 214 W. Johnson, Palatine, will play the lead role of Jay Barker, head of an advertising agency creative department and leader of the off-beat few. He previously appeared in Chicago Heights Drama Group productions.

The role of his efficient Girl Friday will be played by Betty Kandlbinder, 1308 Gloria, Palatine, mother of three who was active in drama when in school.

Other members of the cast are Lee Yelovich, 333 S. Plum Grove Road; Barbara Serko, 1053 E. Kitson; Marilyn McCartney, 1345 Michele; Nancy Haines, 106 N. Kitson; Dorothy Daniels, 567 W. Hellen; Patti Clark, 1045 Fosket; Lois Semler, 1454 Joan Drive; Joe Driscoll, 1044 Fosket; Ted Weiss, 1109 E. Pratt; Don Post, 1016 Morris; Rudy Kandlbinder, 1308 Gloria, and Al Filipini, 1028 E. Hospital Players in Final Stages of Play Production

At this point, the Northwest Community Hospital Players feel "a long way off" since tryouts began for the production of "More Than Meets the Eye" by Fred Carmichael.

Employes, doctors and their wives, stage manager and crew are reaching the final stages of the play being held at Cutting Hall in Palatine High School.

"Many complimentary things can be said for the diligence of all the people involved in this second play production," said Mrs. Helen Bodelson, director of the play. "The determination of the people involved to produce a successful play has been most rewarding."

IN LEAD roles will be Dr. Richard Treanor, Mrs. Robert Alfini and Dr. James Kane.

Playing the part of Brad, an intelligent, "without being obnoxious" teenager, will be Thomas Collins, an orderly at Northwest Community Hospital. Tom will be working at the hospital until he enters medical school next year. He live swith his parents in Mount Prospect.

Edwin Schmidt, chief x-ray technician at the hospital, will be making his second appearance with the players group, having portrayed the part of the sergeant in the last production, "See How They Run." This year Ed will be seen in the role of Carl Henderson, a magazine photographer.

SCHMIDT AND his wife, Dr. Annaliese Bushe, an anesthesiologist, live in Palatine. They have two children.

Mrs. Norman Soderholm, volunteer at the hospital, will portray the part of Miss Jenkins, an advance woman for the United News Service. Last year Donna did an outstanding job behind the scenes in various phases including prompting at rehearsals and make-up.

Donna, her husband and five children live in Arlington Heights. Dr. E. J. Jacobs, obstetrician, will be seen in the part of Lawton Ellerbe. The doctor and his wife, Ann, live in Arlington Heights.

THE PLAY will be presented on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 22, 23 and 24, and the following Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 1.

Tickets may be purchased from any hospital personnel or by calling 392-2300. (Bill

Launch Fiesta At Sahara Inn

A special "Gene Autry Fiesta" night has been initiated (beginning on Wednesday, Nov. 13) in the elegant Sultan's Table dining room at Gene Autry's Sahara Inn, 3939 N. Mannheim Road, Schiller Park.

Erwin Schlicht, general manager, announced plans for the Fiesta, which includes a seven-course dinner plus headline entertainment and complimentary after-dinner drink.

A regular feature each evening from Sunday through Thursday, between 5:30 p.m. and 1 a.m., the Fiesta night dinner will offer a choice of six entrees.

REVOLVING silver trays will be brought to each table so that guests may select from such delicacies as breast of chicken, sirloin steak, tenderloin steak, ham steak, or fish fillets, prepared to their order and served with appetizer, soup, salad and other courses.

Entertainment by such stars as Hildegarde, Betty Johnson and Harry Richman will feature the dinner show, with no cover charge to Fiesta night guests.

Each will also receive a complimentary, after-dinner drink in the Celebrity Lounge, with its sprightly entertainment.

THE FIESTA night special offers a menu prepared by the same chefs who nightly serve the famed Sultan's Table, Schlicht emphasized.

Dinner and entertainment are a nightly event in its crystal chandelier-lit, red and gold surroundings. Two shows are at 8:30 and 11:30 p.m. nightly, with CBS star Ollie Raymand and his orchestra providing music for dancing, as well.

Crewmen Needed for Winston Production

Stage crew members are needed for Winston Little Theatre's premiere production, "Whole Darn Shootin' Match," opening at Cutting Hall, Palatine, Jan. 9 and 10.

President Don Post, 1016 Morris, Palatine, says the play is an excellent one for beginners as the lighting effects are very basic and the setting present-day, which simplifies costuming and makeup, he explained.

Those interested in such jobs as set construction, finance, costuming, makeup and lighting are asked to attend the next meeting Thursday, Nov. 21, at Palatine Recreation Building, 262 E. Chicago. Time is 8:15 p.m.

TOM SWINGLE, 214 W. Johnson, Palatine, will play the lead role of Jay Barker, head of an advertising agency creative department and leader of the off-beat few. He previously appeared in Chicago Heights Drama Group productions.

The role of his efficient Girl Friday will be played by Betty Kandlbinder, 1308 Gloria, Palatine, mother of three who was active in drama when in school.

Other members of the cast are Lee Yelovich, 333 S. Plum Grove Road; Barbara Serko, 1053 E. Kitson; Marilyn McCartney, 1345 Michele; Nancy Haines, 106 N. Kitson; Dorothy Daniels, 567 W. Hellen; Patti Clark, 1045 Fosket; Lois Semler, 1454 Joan Drive; Joe Driscoll, 1044 Fosket; Ted Weiss, 1109 E. Pratt; Don Post, 1016 Morris; Rudy Kandlbinder, 1308 Gloria, and Al Filipini, 1028 E. Morris, all of Palatine, and Leslie Gargan, 908 W. Euclid, Arlington Heights. (Bill

MRS. JAMES IMBRIE of Palatine (right), chairman of the 1964 Christmas Arts Bazaar to be sponsored Nov. 22-24 by the Countryside Art Center, Inc., discusses some of the handcreated Santas and elves to be available at the annual bazaar. With her is Mrs. William Elam of Arlington Heights, a Countryside Gallery artist who will be exhibiting paintings at the bazaar along with other art center members.

Art Bazaar to Start Nov. 22

The Countryside Art Gallery's Christmas arts bazaar opens Friday, Nov. 22, at the gallery, 10 W. Miner St., Arlington Heights.

The bazaar will be open to the public Nov. 22 from 1 to 4 and 7 to 10 p.m., Nov. 23 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Nov. 24 from 1 to 5 p.m. (Bill

Pastor, Wife Celebrate 50 Years

Couple Grew With Parish

by GRACE MOTT

The Rev. John Ernst August Mueller and his wife Sophie have been wed 50 years.

Since that time Rev. Mueller, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, until 1957, has tied the nuptial knot for nearly 500 couples.

Late in 1912 Mount Prospect with 22 houses needed a church — its first. Newly ordained Rev. Mueller came to the church about January 1, 1913, and was installed January 12 in his first pastorate.

With his know-how and warm personality, the congregation of seven voting members was organized and St. Paul Lutheran church was born.

An organist was a necessary part of the church staff. Sophie Busse, sixth child of Cook County Commissioner and Mrs. William Busse stepped forward to offer her services.

ON JANUARY 19, Rev. Mueller preached his first sermon, Sophie played the organ, and a romance between the two began.

The then spacious red brick church building built the same year at Elm and Busse Avenues, was dedicated March 2, 1913.

Just one week after he had preached his first sermon, Sophie encouraged her young suitor to open Mount Prospect's Lutheran school, and offered the parlor of her grandmother Christina Busse's cottage on Main Street for the class room. Seven pupils were enrolled.

The romance between the young preacher and his organist blossomed, and their marriage was the first in the new church.

John's father, Rev. J. E. A. Mueller Sr., then pastor of St. Luke Lutheran church in Chicago performed the ceremony November 5, 1913.

THE COUPLE'S first home was a flat over the former location of the Mount Prospect State Bank on Busse Avenue. Soon they moved to a white house on South Elm, just north of the church, designated as the parsonage, which was their home for 42 years.

The couple's three children were born. George, associated with the Allstate Insurance Co.; Paula, now Mrs. Fred Mosiman; and Jack, who owns the Plumbing Service Corp. of Mount Prospect, were all born in the house.

There are eight grandchildren and no great - grandchildren. Grandfather Mueller has baptized all of these youngsters, and 1,015 other children throughout the area.

After their marriage Mrs. Mueller relinquished her post as organist and became a one woman altar guild.

A committee now handles that work. She has been continuously active in the Ladies Aid the entire 50 years, and for most of that time has been on the fancy work committee for bazaars and important social events in Mount Prospect.

REV. MUELLER'S ministry covered far more than Mount Prospect during his busiest years as a pastor here. For 18 years he was the "visitor" of this section of the Northern Illinois district of the Missouri Synod.

This meant ironing out the wrinkles between pastor and congregation in Lutheran churches from Crystal Lake to Park Ridge. The Synod's conventions found him chairman of one or more committees which functioned during that time.

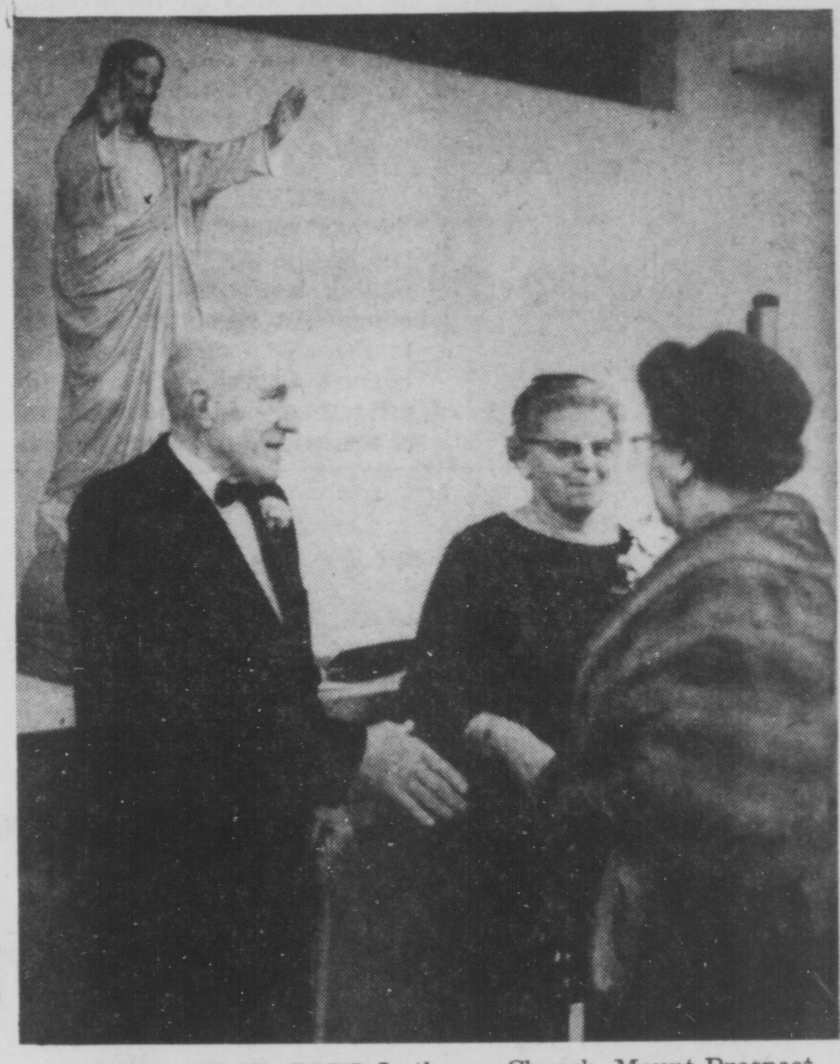
His training for the ministry began with six years at Concordia college in Milwaukee and an additional three was spent at Concordia Seminary in St. Louis.

Climax to the couple's long career as man and wife and ministers to a congregation now numbering over 1800 communicant members, was the new St. Paul Church edifice dedicated in April 1961, located across the street from the original building.

SINCE RAZED, that church property has become a playground area for the Lutheran school children.

Now Rev. Mueller, 76 and Mrs. Mueller 70, live in the snug little house at 110 S. Elm built for them by the congregation in 1955. Rev. Mueller officially retired in 1957.

In his case this is often in theory only, however, as he continues to preach and performs many marriages and baptisms.



MEMBER OF ST. PAUL Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, extends congratulations to Rev. and Mrs. J. E. A. Mueller, at parish reception honoring couple's golden wedding anniversary.

The couple do, however, have considerably more time to devote to each other and their personal interests. For John this means fishing, a sport he loves, and gardening among his vegetables and flowers.

BUT MOST important, and health permitting, he hopes he and Sophie will be able to indulge in his favorite pastime.

A circuit riding preacher as early as 1910, Pastor Mueller covered the Dakotas and saw much of the West. Riding horseback, the young minister made Napoleon, N. D., his headquarters. He called work daring and said life was often dangerous for a boy who had known the comforts of a devout home in Chicago.

Now Rev. Mueller longs to visit two sections of this country he has not seen; New England and New Orleans.

About his health, the genial pastor stated it is "bearable!" Also asked if the word "obey" was in their marriage service, Rev. Mueller firmly replied "yes, and it still is."

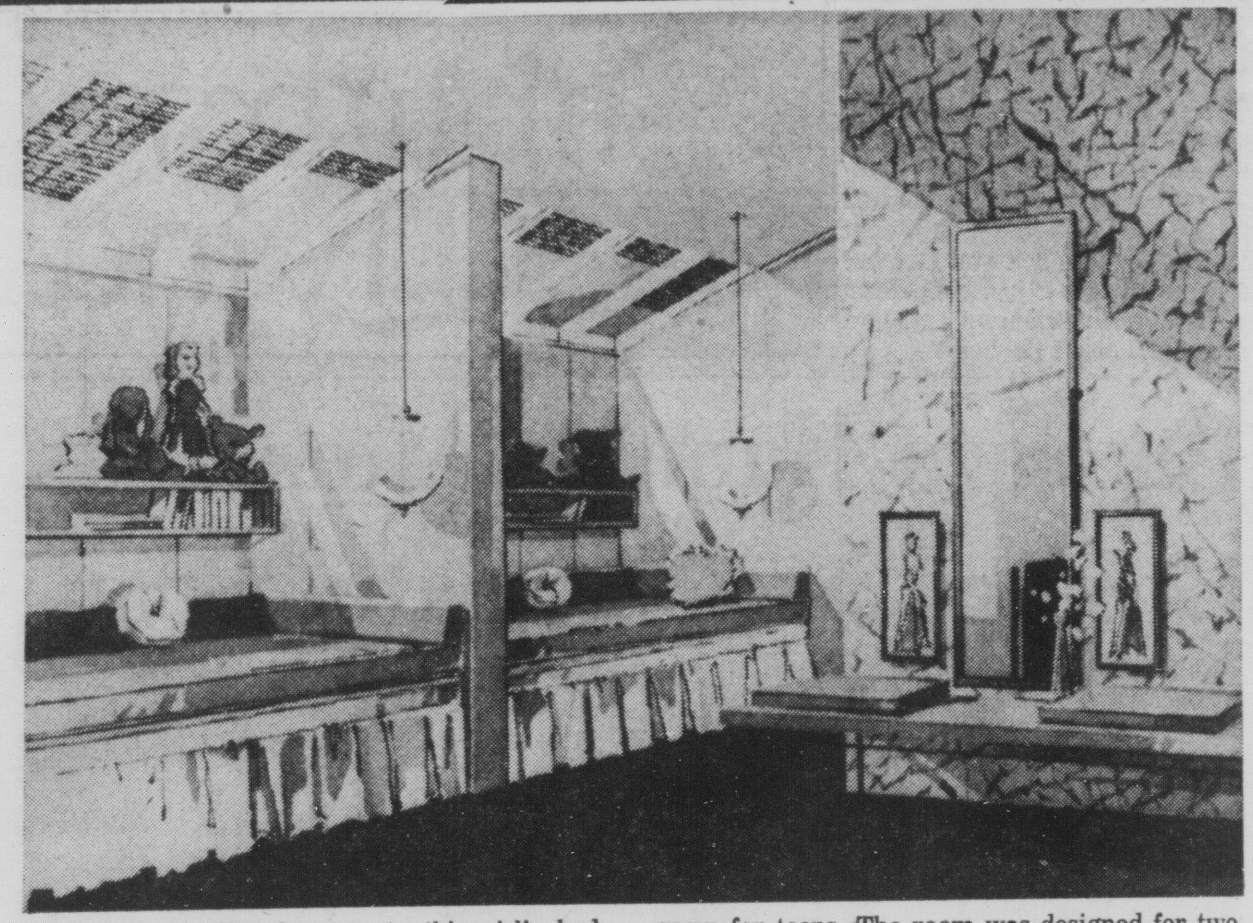
ASKED IF SOPHIE always "obeyed" he also said "yes," but was quick to add theirs has been a smooth and harmonious marriage with its "wrinkles ironed out" in quiet talks between the two.

Another page in the couple's book of life and love together unfolded Sunday, Nov. 3. John Ernest August and Sophie marking their golden wedding anniversary.

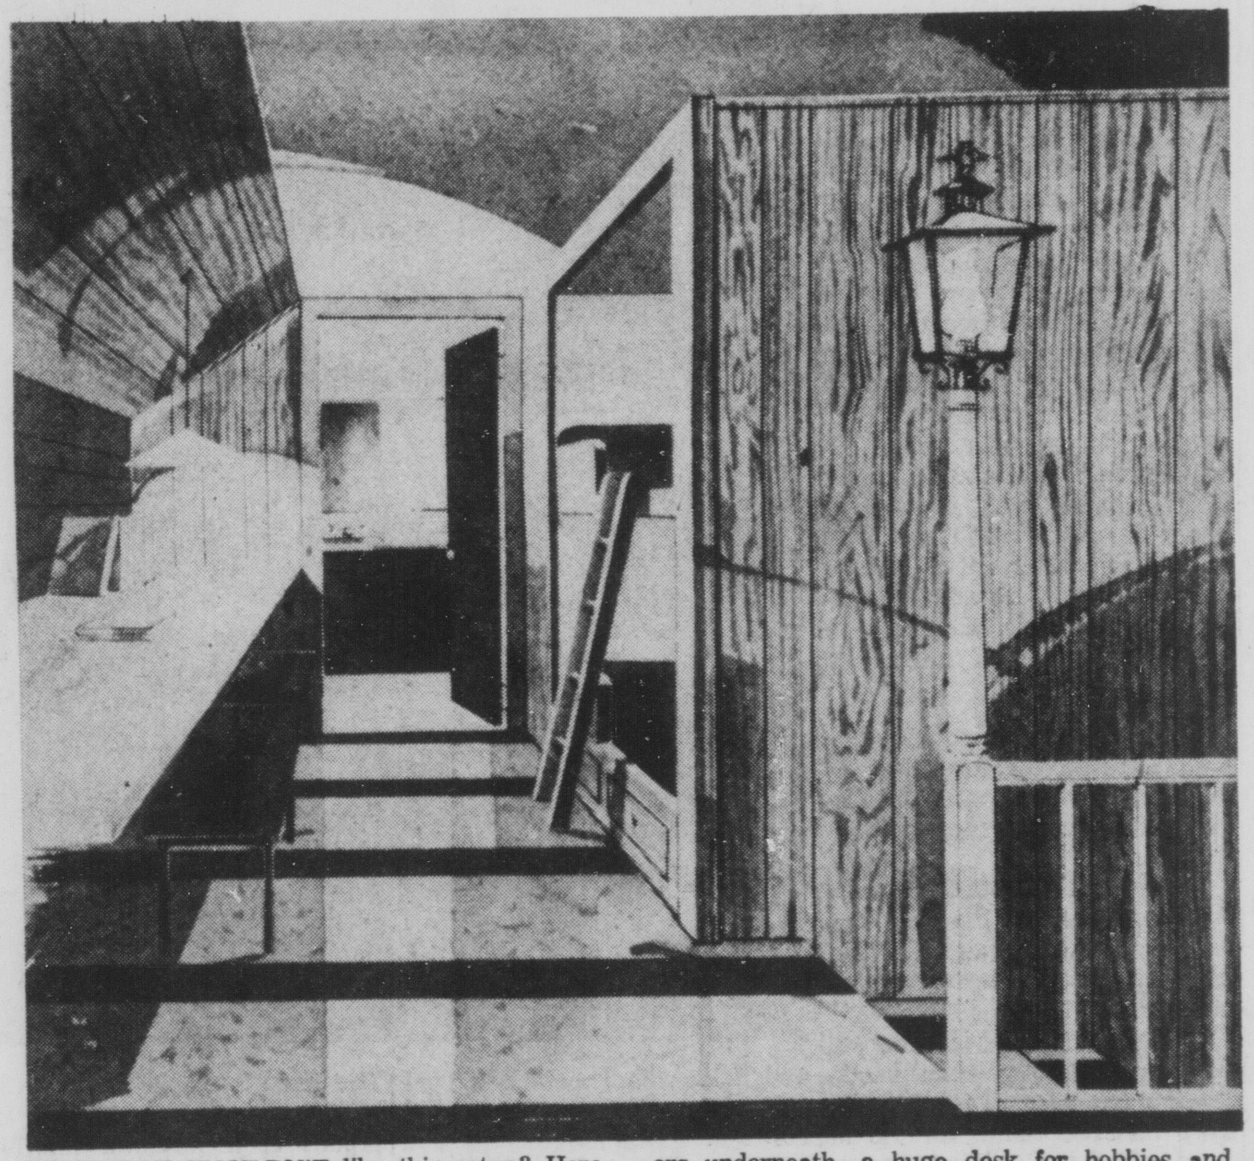
Two of their wedding attendants Mrs. Frank (Helen) Biermann, Sophie's sister, and Edwin Busse, both of whom live in Mount Prospect, were present.

THE MEMORABLE anniversary began with a special church service at 4 p. m. conducted by the Rev. E. A. Zeile.

From then until six p. m. there was an open house in Luther Hall of the church to which the entire congregation was invited, and at 6:30, 400 guests joined Rev. and Mrs. Mueller for dinner in Mueller Hall in St. Paul school.



PRIVACY IS THE keynote to this girl's bedroom. The beds are lined up against one wall and separated by a divider wall. A full-length mirror and gay accessories make this an ideal room for teens. The room was designed for two sisters, but it also fits the bill for the teenager who likes to have girl friends over for the night.



WHAT BOY WOULDN'T like this setup? Here are just a few of the features in this versatile bedroom: built-in bunk beds with storage drawers underneath, a huge desk for hobbies and school work, a masculine decorative treatment and private bath.

With Proper Planning

Children's Bedroom Can Be More Useful, Flexible Area

A children's room should be much more than a bedroom. This is even more true if two school age children share a room.

With proper planning a children's room also can include a study and hobby work section . . . play area . . . and bathroom. Larger homes with plenty of space upstairs have the potential for these "bedroom living centers."

In some cases, of course, two smaller bedrooms can be consolidated into one larger, more flexible area. Ever-popular bunk beds are a good way to conserve space. To make the bathroom more accessible, another door could be added so that the children can enter directly. If space permits, a small bathroom with shower could be included in the remodeling.

ROBERT HUFF, home improvement expert, points out that older houses with a third floor or an irregular-shaped room have real potential for a children's living center.

"By providing a haven for the children," Huff says, "Mom and Dad will be able to enjoy their leisure in the living room of the house. If study areas are provided in the children's room, uninterrupted attention can be given to homework assignments. In addition, the area also can be used to entertain friends away from the rest of the family."

The decorative theme in a children's room is most important, Huff says, and he suggests that the family have a "council" when planning the area. Ideas for equipment, furnishings and color combinations should be discussed thoroughly before construction work is started.

"Don't be afraid to alter the layout of an area. Divider walls, for instance, can be put up quickly, even by a home handyman. Easy-to-handle planks can be put right over new framing."

TAILOR the decorative treatment to the children who will be using the room, the home improvement expert advises. Boys like a rugged, masculine decor. A nautical or Western theme might be appropriate. Woodgrain walls, accented by several appropriate accessories, will help create a particular theme.

Girls will want a more feminine decor, of course, and it is simple to create one with pastels or an interesting pattern, such as the gold lace design available on Marlite planks.

A plastic-finished hardboard is ideal for children's rooms because it is highly-resistant to hard wear and stains. It can be cleaned with a damp or sudsy cloth. This washable paneling never requires painting or refinishing.

By planning an easy-to-clean decor, you're making it easier for the children to maintain their own room!

Two-in-One Appliance Meets Every Cold Storage Problem

Fresh food, frozen food, family food, baby food — there's room for it all in the new electric refrigerator - freezers.

It's a good idea to store all the baby things together in one of the door shelves of the refrigerator section to make them easily accessible. Prepared formula, fruit juices, sterile water, puddings, jars of baby food that have been opened and recapped, vitamins, and medicines that require chilling can all go on one roomy door shelf.

ALL FOODS retain their quality longer in a new electric refrigerator - freezer than in units only a few years old. To make sure of top quality, follow these simple rules:

Keep refrigerator and freezer doors closed as much as possible, since opening them lets warm air in, causing the unit to work harder to maintain the right temperature. To cut down on the number of times doors have to be opened, take out everything you need for mealmaking at one time. Use a tray or assemble the items on a countertop. After a meal, put everything away at once, too, for the same reason.

Meats deserve special attention. Always remove paper bags and butcher wrappings from fresh meat as soon as you bring it home. Store it immediately in the special meat compartment or in a shallow dish covered lightly with waxed paper or foil.

IN HOT weather, it's best to store fresh meat that's to be kept more than a day or two in the freezer section. In this case, it should be tightly wrapped in moisture - vapor - proof material such as plastic bags or freezer foil.

To avoid clutter, store unopened jars of pickles, olives, catsup, and cans or bottles of non-frozen fruit juices in a cupboard until it's time to chill them.

More Women Seen for Work Force

ST. LOUIS, (UPI) — Within 25 years the number of women employed outside the home will increase by 25 per cent, Miss Marguerite Gilmore, regional director of the women's bureau in the department of labor, said Monday.

Miss Gilmore, Chicago, was the main speaker at a "Human Rights and Economics Workshop."

"Women today make up 34 per cent of the work force, one of each three workers," she said. "The average age is 41 and 55 per cent are married."

Miss Gilmore said most single women work to support themselves while married women work to support members of their families and provide educational opportunities for their children.

VFW Ladies To Sew Toys

VFW Ladies Auxiliary to Prospect Post 1337, 601 N. Main St., Mount Prospect, will stuff toys on Friday, Nov. 15 for the children of the state hospital at Dixon.

All supplies are furnished by the auxiliary, and guests are welcome to share in this sewing project.

Each year members and friends devote many hours to sewing, stuffing and decorating toys which are then sent to the hospital as Christmas gifts. (S

Quite Contrary by Mary

Learning the Hard Way

There is a saying that is something about mind changing being a woman's privilege. I'm glad this is true, and I assume it is or why would they keep saying it. But, I don't think men really believe it. If they believe it, I don't think they like it.

I'm trying to condition my small son to the vagaries of the world. Particularly to the woman's world because he just has to put up with me and all of his sisters for quite a few years yet. I always say, you can't start teaching them too young. But, the lad got a little frustrated with it all.

MARY

All I said was it would be nice to go to Aunt Jemima's for brunch when church was out. He and she agreed as how that would be peachy. Once inside the pancake emporium, it was quite apparent we would be in line for a table for quite some time. I have been allergic to queueing up since the war when one hoped to get a stick of butter or a bobby pin.

Calling a council, we decided to change the menu to hamburgers and headed for the hamburger spot. Once inside it was apparent we would be in line for a table for an even longer time. We convened again but by this time the small boy whose gastric juices were becoming confused and whose shirttail was coming out from taking his jacket off and putting it back on, decided he had enough. He vetoed our new idea. Which was to head for a bowling alley. Which not only dispenses bowling but hamburgers as well.

As the 13-year-old and I constitute a majority, we pushed the measure through. However, as long as it was a bowling alley and we both like to bowl, we tore for home to change from our church clothes into something more sporty. Once in the house, he put his size 13½ feet firmly on the floor and refused to budge until the inner boy had been satisfied.

You know how it is. You give a little and take a little and we are all quite fond of salami anyway.

Two-in-One Appliance Meets Every Cold Storage Problem

Fresh food, frozen food, family food, baby food — there's room for it all in the new electric refrigerator - freezers.

It's a good idea to store all the baby things together in one of the door shelves of the refrigerator section to make them easily accessible. Prepared formula, fruit juices, sterile water, puddings, jars of baby food that have been opened and recapped, vitamins, and medicines that require chilling can all go on one roomy door shelf.

ALL FOODS retain their quality longer in a new electric refrigerator - freezer than in units only a few years old. To make sure of top quality, follow these simple rules:

Keep refrigerator and freezer doors closed as much as possible, since opening them lets warm air in, causing the unit to work harder to maintain the right temperature. To cut down on the number of times doors have to be opened, take out everything you need for meal-making at one time. Use a tray or assemble the items on a countertop. After a meal, put everything away at once, too, for the same reason.

Meats deserve special attention. Always remove paper bags and butcher wrappings from fresh meat as soon as you bring it home. Store it immediately in the special meat compartment or in a shallow dish covered lightly with waxed paper or foil.

IN HOT weather, it's best to store fresh meat that's to be kept more than a day or two in the freezer section. In this case, it should be tightly wrapped in moisture - vapor - proof material such as plastic bags or freezer foil.

To avoid clutter, store unopened jars of pickles, olives, catsup, and cans or bottles of non-frozen fruit juices in a cupboard until it's time to chill them.

More Women Seen for Work Force

ST. LOUIS, (UPI) — Within 25 years the number of women employed outside the home will increase by 25 per cent, Miss Marguerite Gilmore, regional director of the women's bureau in the department of labor, said Monday.

Miss Gilmore, Chicago, was the main speaker at a "Human Rights and Economics Workshop."

"Women today make up 34 per cent of the work force, one of each three workers," she said. "The average age is 41 and 55 per cent are married."

Miss Gilmore said most single women work to support themselves while married women work to support members of their families and provide educational opportunities for their children.

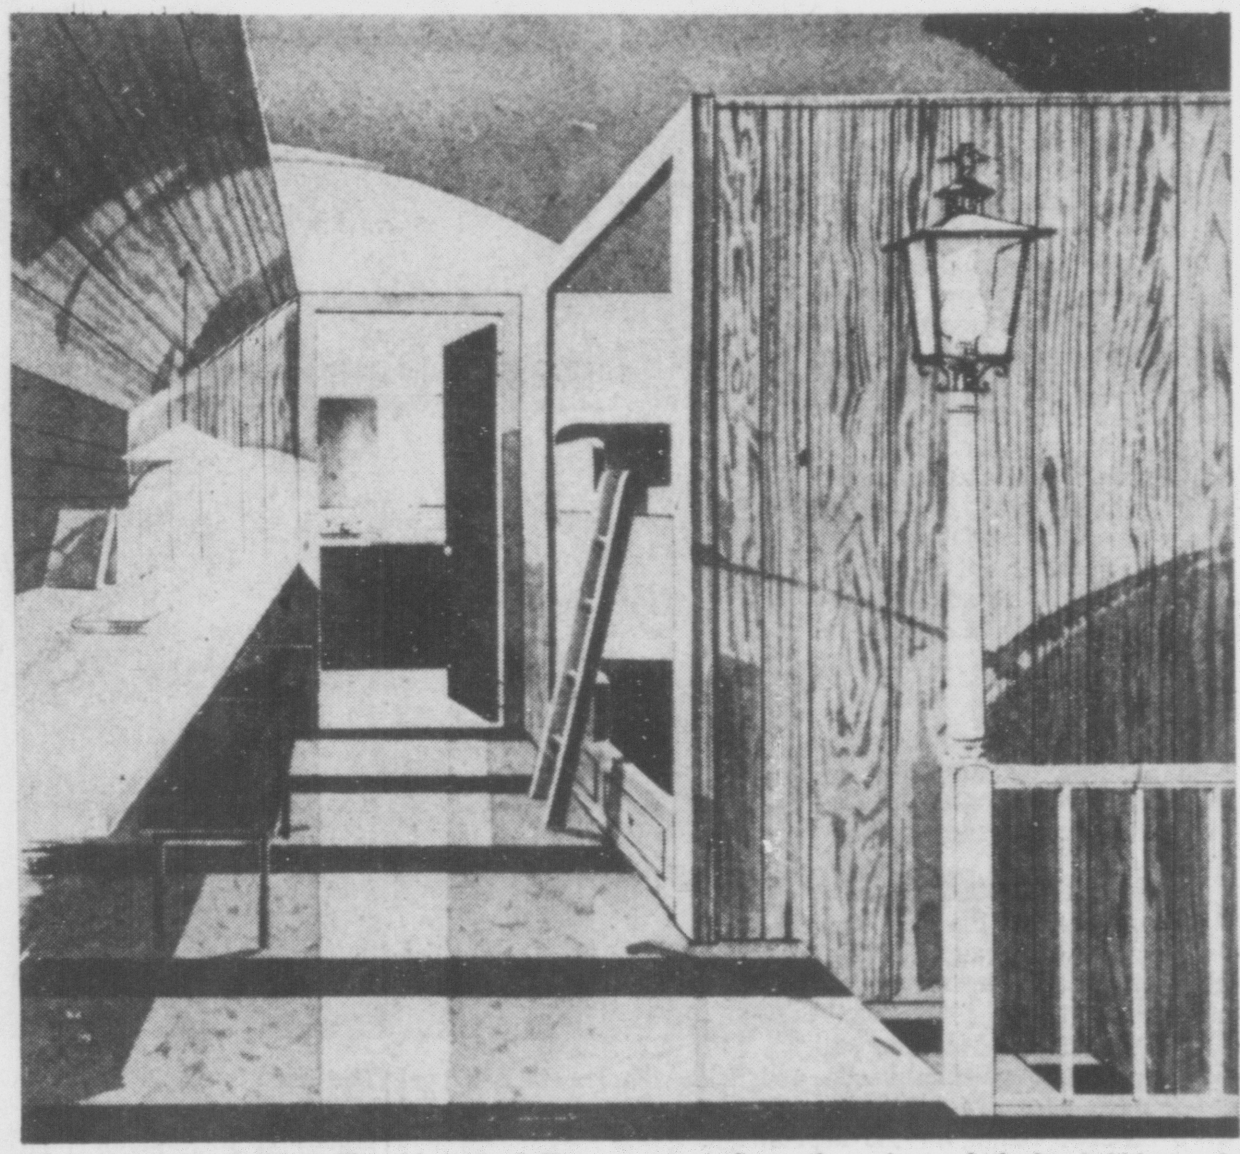
PRIVACY IS THE keynote to this girl's bedroom. The beds are lined up against one wall and separated by a divider wall. A full-length mirror and gay accessories make this an ideal room for teens. The room was designed for two sisters, but it also fits the bill for the teenager who likes to have girl friends over for the night.



WHAT BOY WOULDN'T like this setup? Here are just a few of the features in this versatile bedroom: built-in bunk beds with storage drawers underneath, a huge desk for hobbies and school work, a masculine decorative treatment and private bath.

With Proper Planning

Children's Bedroom Can Be More Useful, Flexible Area

A children's room should be much more than a bedroom. This is even more true if two school age children share a room.

With proper planning a children's room also can include a study and hobby work section . . . play area . . . and bathroom. Larger homes with plenty of space upstairs have the potential for these "bedroom living centers."

In some cases, of course, two smaller bedrooms can be consolidated into one larger, more flexible area. Ever-popular bunk beds are a good way to conserve space. To make the bathroom more accessible, another door could be added so that the children can enter directly. If space permits, a small bathroom with shower could be included in the remodeling.

ROBERT HUFF, home improvement expert, points out that older houses with a third floor or an irregular-shaped room have real potential for a children's living center.

"By providing a haven for the children," Huff says, "Mom and Dad will be able to enjoy their leisure in the living room of the house. If study areas are provided in the children's room, uninterrupted attention can be given to homework assignments. In addition, the area also can be used to entertain friends away from the rest of the family."

The decorative theme in a children's room is most important, Huff says, and he suggests that the family have a "council" when planning the area. Ideas for equipment, furnishings and color combinations should be discussed thoroughly before construction work is started.

"Don't be afraid to alter the layout of an area. Divider walls, for instance, can be put up quickly, even by a home handyman. Easy-to-handle planks can be put right over new framing."

TAILOR the decorative treatment to the children who will be using the room, the home improvement expert advises. Boys like a rugged, masculine decor. A nautical or Western theme might be appropriate. Woodgrain walls, accented by several appropriate accessories, will help create a particular theme.

Girls will want a more feminine decor, of course, and it is simple to create one with pastels or an interesting pattern, such as the gold lace design available on Marlite planks.

A plastic-finished hardboard is ideal for children's rooms because it is highly-resistant to hard wear and stains. It can be cleaned with a damp or sudsy cloth. This washable paneling never requires painting or refinishing.

By planning an easy-to-clean decor, you're making it easier for the children to maintain their own room!

Learning the Hard Way

There is a saying that is something about mind changing being a woman's privilege. I'm glad this is true, and I assume it is or why would they keep saying it. But, I don't think men really believe it. If they believe it, I don't think they like it.

I'm trying to condition my small son to the vagaries of the world. Particularly to the woman's world because he just has to put up with me and all of his sisters for quite a few years yet. I always say, you can't start teaching them too young. But, the lad got a little frustrated with it all.

All I said was it would be nice to go to Aunt Jemima's for brunch when church was out. He and she agreed as how that would be peachy. Once inside the pancake emporium, it was quite apparent we would be in line for a table for quite some time. I have been allergic to queueing up since the war when one hoped to get a stick of butter or a bobby pin.

MARY

Calling a council, we decided to change the menu to hamburgers and headed for the hamburger spot. Once inside it was apparent we would be in line for a table for an even longer time. We convened again but by this time the small boy whose gastric juices were becoming confused and whose shirttail was coming out from taking his jacket off and putting it back on, decided he had enough. He vetoed our new idea. Which was to head for a bowling alley. Which not only dispenses bowling but hamburgers as well.

As the 13-year-old and I constitute a majority, we pushed the measure through. However, as long as it was a bowling alley and we both like to bowl, we tore for home to change from our church clothes into something more sporty. Once in the house, he put his size 13½ feet firmly on the floor and refused to budge until the inner boy had been satisfied.

You know how it is. You give a little and take a little and we are all quite fond of salami anyway.

The dress had long sleeves, a high rounded neckline and a flaring detachable train. A satin bow-trimmed coronet headpiece held the bridal veil in place.

White cymbidium orchids arranged in a crescent formed the bridal bouquet.

THREE attendants came down the church aisle, all gowned alike in copper - glow peau satin sheath dresses which were street - length and had softly pleated overskirts. The front of each dress had an embroidered flower and leaf design.

The girls wore matching pillbox headpieces with blusher veils and carried crescent bouquets of bronze mums.

JULIE GARNER of Madison, Neb., was her cousin's maid of honor, and the two bridesmaids were Phyllis Muran of Arlington Heights, the groom's sister, and Mary Kay Davis of Council Bluffs.

The groom's three attendants were all from this area. His best man was Wayne Rolfs of Rolling Meadows, and ushers were his cousin, Ronald Herff, also of Rolling Meadows, and Austin Brodnan of Arlington Heights, his brother-in-law.

Now settled in their apartment, the newlyweds are both working in the area. The bride, a graduate of Mt. The groom, who attended Arlington High School and Drake University in Des Moines, is employed by Jewel Tea Co. in Melrose Park. (S

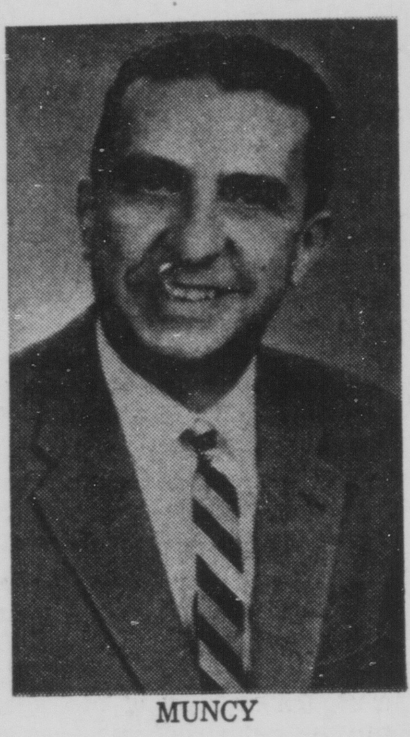
Feudin' and Fussin' over Coin Machines

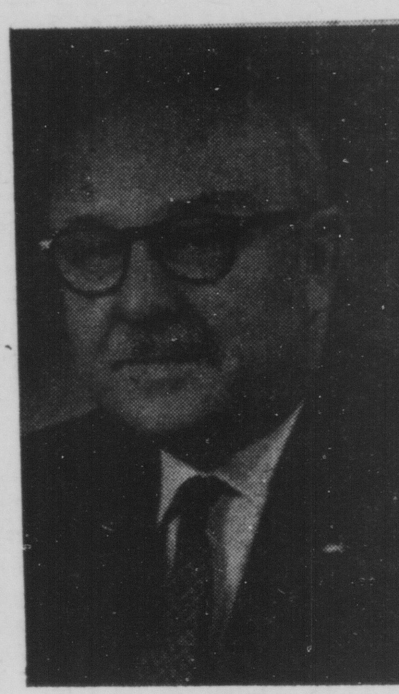
Five Experts to Tell Of Goods, Services

Because of the interest aroused by the unique panel discussion forum at the first National Suburban Homemakers Conference last year, the forum will be extended to two sessions at this year's conference. Both forums will take place Nov. 21, the opening day of the two-day conference to be held at Chicago's Drake Hotel.

The featured subject during the morning session will be "How goods and services can contribute to improved homemaking and better buying practices."



MUNCY



BAUER

Panelists will include prominent members from the medical, financial, retail and food fields. Reversing the usual procedure, this panel of experts will engage another group of experts in an exchange of ideas and opinions.

CURT KORNBLAU

ON THE RECEIVING end of the questions will be the group of homemakers selected from their respective suburban areas across the country to compete for the coveted award of National Suburban Homemaker of the Year. Each panelist will present a group of questions in his field directly to the homemakers. The latter part of the session gives the homemakers an opportunity to retaliate by directing questions to the panelists.

Representing the field of medicine will be Dr. W. W. Bauer, director of health education emeritus of the American Medical Association. Dr. Bauer headed the department of health education for 30 years, becoming director emeritus in 1962. He is now participating in a special project dealing with health education for the aging. Dr. Bauer was editor of the AMA magazine, "Today's Health," for eight years and in charge of AMA's health education programs on radio and television from 1932 to 1959.

Spokesman for the retail merchants, Hugh E. Muncy has been active in the retail association field in Illinois since 1949. Specializing in the area of retail public relations, Muncy works closely with local chambers of commerce and leaders in the fields of education, business, industry and agriculture. curriculum study committees and conducts student and adult leadership training sessions.

CURT KORNBLAU will address questions regarding the area in which he is a recognized authority, super markets. Director of research for Super Market Institute, Kornblau is a popular speaker with professional, academic and food industry groups. His position includes the responsibility for authoring annual reports for the institute. Two such reports, "The Super Market Industry Speaks" and "Facts About New Super Markets," have added valuable research material to the statistics in this field.

Representing yet another area of interest to the homemaker will be Frank R. Neu of the American Dairy Association. Neu refers to himself as a "cosmopolitan midwesterner," having been born in Iowa, raised in Minnesota, earned his degree at the University of Chicago and worked in Wisconsin as editor of a weekly newspaper. He joined the American Dairy Association in 1954 and serves as educational and public relations director.

Rounding out the morning panel is Lorraine L. Blair, recently referred to as "LaSalle Street's female financial whiz" for her activities on Chicago's equivalent of Wall Street. Mrs. Blair founded and is executive director of the Women's Finance Forum of America, the only women's organization whose sole purpose is to enlighten women in financial and related matters.

Mrs. Blair's new book, "Your Financial Guide for Living," incorporates all she has learned in a long career devoted to matters financial. (S

Homemaker Copes With Modern Age

by BETTY AINSLIE

Vending machines must have a personal grudge against me. Just like the dog who senses your fear of him, these mechanical contrivances know they have the upper hand once they have swallowed my coin.

With military precision they shift a series of gears at the insertion of a certain sum of money. They sigh, shiver and shake, hum and either spit out my coin or gulp the nickels, dimes or quarters and lapse into stoney silence.

Childhood gum machines always accepted my penny but hung on to the chewing material. No amount of small fists beating firmly on the metal box ever cause a response from the satiated machine, only some loud words from the store owner.

I'm strictly no match for their secret inner workings but always a sucker eager to try the product offered.

THE PENNY arcades of every amusement park always bring out my gambling instinct. Those diabolical glass enclosed steam shovels with their alluring display of small cameras, jewelry and miniature toys sitting in nests of candy-coated nuts always takes my mickels or dimes. No matter how carefully I aim the iron shovel, it usually returns to the starting point empty or opens jaws to drop a couple pieces of stale candy into the shoot.

The fortune telling machines hand me a blank card, or are marked "out of order" after they consume my small change.

Little boxes with perfume spraying contraptions inside, where for a dime you're entitled to the French perfume of your choice, usually spray me in the face causing the skin to burn the rest of the day.

THE PENNY vendors of my memory were small and contained uncomplicated inner workings. But with the modern vending machines their working mechanisms seem to remain secrets which only their inventors understand. Today we're faced with all sorts of amazing contrivances.

Going on a trip? Have your money ready to appease the open mouthed monster standing sentry duty every 20 miles or so on the Toll Road.

Invariably these machines and I never see eye to eye. My aim is poor and a nickel will pop out on the cement as I toss the specified sum into the hopper. This means I must get out of the car and searching the ground for the coin always find it under the car. So I must move it forward which in turn starts the red light flashing and the bell ringing to announce to everyone in the area that this gal thinks she's going to get through a nickel short.

ONCE THE LOST coin is popped in, the machine settles into satisfied silence while I creep away red-faced under the stares of the men in the little coin changing cages, and the horns of the cars behind me.

Stop at a gas station and the soft drink cooler issues bottle after bottle from its cold insides with each dime. But come my turn and the vendor will spit back my coin necessitating the attention of the station attendant.

One mechanical merchant which constantly amazes me with its straight thinking is the coffee machine. Here you can get your brew black, with cream and sugar, with just cream, just sugar, with double cream or an extra amount of sugar.

ALL WORKED fine I was told until I chanced along. Then the machine diabolically clamped on to my dime, coughed and issued to me a paper cup of thick milk liberally laced with sugar. Another dime and my order for black coffee was an empty cup with a few grains of sweetner on the bottom.

Even though these machines don't always perform correctly on my money, I'm still awed by their built-in thinking powers.

I'M OFTEN frustrated because you can't shake or kick these mechanical contrivances when they hold my money and offer nothing in return. But I'm always fascinated by these marvels which will change your money into smaller amounts, offer food, drink and amusement or demand a fee for services rendered.

I encourage these electrical miricales with my nickels and dimes because maybe someday something will be invented to be installed in the kitchen which for a coin will cook, wash, clean, baby-sit and run errands.

With my luck in things mechanical, though, my helper would noisily clash gears, ring bells, shake, grumble and end up spewing dust all over the house for my money.

Topic for Panel Is Communications

Homemakers from across the nation will express their opinions as to how well they are being served by their suburban newspapers, by their women's magazines, by radio and television, during the second session of a panel discussion held during the National Suburban Homemakers Conference in Chicago on Nov. 21.

THOMPSON

Subject for the session will be "How communications media can contribute to improved homemaking and better buying practices." Panel members offer varied backgrounds in the field of communications.

Chicago's own Martha Crane will represent radio. During her 35 years at station WLS she has consistently presented intelligent, informative, mature programs designed to be of service to homemakers.

THE FOURTH estate speaker comes from the Los Angeles area. Mrs. Nelda Thompson, women's editor and feature writer for North East Los Angeles Suburban Newspapers, has garnered many an award during her varied newspaper career.

Among them are the Matrix Table Award for feature writing in 1961 and a record of three citations in a row from the Greater Los Angeles Press Club.

Her background, she says, includes virtually all phases of newspapering including, on occasion, delivering the paper as a pinch - hitter for her carrier boy son.

Magazines will be well represented by two women with extensive backgrounds in the field of communications. Doris Doland, assistant to the publisher of Look magazine and a panelist in the 1962 National Suburban Homemakers Conference, will represent general magazines. Miss Doland's experience includes stints on the editorial staffs of Tide, an advertising trade publication, and Collier's prior to joining the staff of Look.

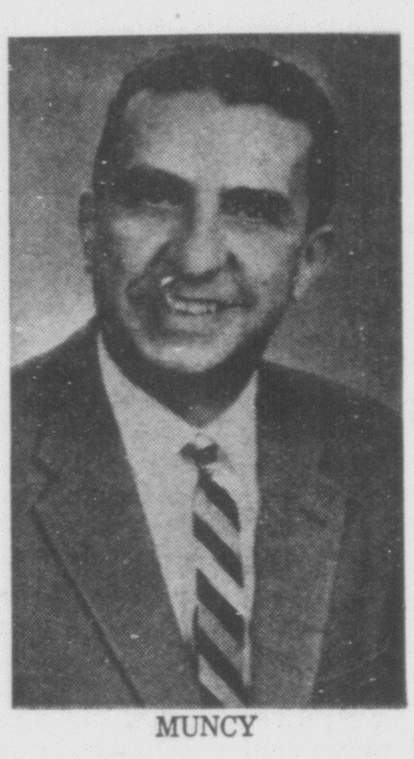
Five Experts to Tell Of Goods, Services

Because of the interest aroused by the unique panel discussion forum at the first National Suburban Homemakers Conference last year, the forum will be extended to two sessions at this year's conference. Both forums will take place Nov. 21, the opening day of the two-day conference to be held at Chicago's Drake Hotel.

The featured subject during the morning session will be "How goods and services can contribute to improved homemaking and better buying practices."



MUNCY

BAUER

Panelists will include prominent members from the medical, financial, retail and food fields. Reversing the usual procedure, this panel of experts will engage another group of experts in an exchange of ideas and opinions.

CURT KORNBLAU

ON THE RECEIVING end of the questions will be the group of homemakers selected from their respective suburban areas across the country to compete for the coveted award of National Suburban Homemaker of the Year. Each panelist will present a group of questions in his field directly to the homemakers. The latter part of the session gives the homemakers an opportunity to retaliate by directing questions to the panelists.

Representing the field of medicine will be Dr. W. W. Bauer, director of health education emeritus of the American Medical Association. Dr. Bauer headed the department of health education for 30 years, becoming director emeritus in 1962. He is now participating in a special project dealing with health education for the aging. Dr. Bauer was editor of the AMA magazine, "Today's Health," for eight years and in charge of AMA's health education programs on radio and television from 1932 to 1959.

Spokesman for the retail merchants, Hugh E. Muncy has been active in the retail association field in Illinois since 1949. Specializing in the area of retail public relations, Muncy works closely with local chambers of commerce and leaders in the fields of education, business, industry and agriculture. curriculum study committees and conducts student and adult leadership training sessions.

CURT KORNBLAU will address questions regarding the area in which he is a recognized authority, super markets. Director of research for Super Market Institute, Kornblau is a popular speaker with professional, academic and food industry groups. His position includes the responsibility for authoring annual reports for the institute. Two such reports, "The Super Market Industry Speaks" and "Facts About New Super Markets," have added valuable research material to the statistics in this field.

Representing yet another area of interest to the homemaker will be Frank R. Neu of the American Dairy Association. Neu refers to himself as a "cosmopolitan midwesterner," having been born in Iowa, raised in Minnesota, earned his degree at the University of Chicago and worked in Wisconsin as editor of a weekly newspaper. He joined the American Dairy Association in 1954 and serves as educational and public relations director.

Rounding out the morning panel is Lorraine L. Blair, recently referred to as "LaSalle Street's female financial whiz" for her activities on Chicago's equivalent of Wall Street. Mrs. Blair founded and is executive director of the Women's Finance Forum of America, the only women's organization whose sole purpose is to enlighten women in financial and related matters.

Mrs. Blair's new book, "Your Financial Guide for Living," incorporates all she has learned in a long career devoted to matters financial. (S

Homemaker Copes With Modern Age

by BETTY AINSLIE

Vending machines must have a personal grudge against me. Just like the dog who senses your fear of him, these mechanical contrivances know they have the upper hand once they have swallowed my coin.

With military precision they shift a series of gears at the insertion of a certain sum of money. They sigh, shiver and shake, hum and either spit out my coin or gulp the nickels, dimes or quarters and lapse into stoney silence.

Childhood gum machines always accepted my penny but hung on to the chewing material. No amount of small fists beating firmly on the metal box ever cause a response from the satiated machine, only some loud words from the store owner.

I'm strictly no match for their secret inner workings but always a sucker eager to try the product offered.

THE PENNY arcades of every amusement park always bring out my gambling instinct. Those diabolical glass enclosed steam shovels with their alluring display of small cameras, jewelry and miniature toys sitting in nests of candy-coated nuts always takes my mickels or dimes. No matter how carefully I aim the iron shovel, it usually returns to the starting point empty or opens jaws to drop a couple pieces of stale candy into the shoot.

The fortune telling machines hand me a blank card, or are marked "out of order" after they consume my small change.

Little boxes with perfume spraying contraptions inside, where for a dime you're entitled to the French perfume of your choice, usually spray me in the face causing the skin to burn the rest of the day.

THE PENNY vendors of my memory were small and contained uncomplicated inner workings. But with the modern vending machines their working mechanisms seem to remain secrets which only their inventors understand. Today we're faced with all sorts of amazing contrivances.

Going on a trip? Have your money ready to appease the open mouthed monster standing sentry duty every 20 miles or so on the Toll Road.

Invariably these machines and I never see eye to eye. My aim is poor and a nickel will pop out on the cement as I toss the specified sum into the hopper. This means I must get out of the car and searching the ground for the coin always find it under the car. So I must move it forward which in turn starts the red light flashing and the bell ringing to announce to everyone in the area that this gal thinks she's going to get through a nickel short.

ONCE THE LOST coin is popped in, the machine settles into satisfied silence while I creep away red-faced under the stares of the men in the little coin changing cages, and the horns of the cars behind me.

Stop at a gas station and the soft drink cooler issues bottle after bottle from its cold insides with each dime. But come my turn and the vendor will spit back my coin necessitating the attention of the station attendant.

One mechanical merchant which constantly amazes me with its straight thinking is the coffee machine. Here you can get your brew black, with cream and sugar, with just cream, just sugar, with double cream or an extra amount of sugar.

ALL WORKED fine I was told until I chanced along. Then the machine diabolically clamped on to my dime, coughed and issued to me a paper cup of thick milk liberally laced with sugar. Another dime and my order for black coffee was an empty cup with a few grains of sweetner on the bottom.

Even though these machines don't always perform correctly on my money, I'm still awed by their built-in thinking powers.

I'M OFTEN frustrated because you can't shake or kick these mechanical contrivances when they hold my money and offer nothing in return. But I'm always fascinated by these marvels which will change your money into smaller amounts, offer food, drink and amusement or demand a fee for services rendered.

I encourage these electrical miricales with my nickels and dimes because maybe someday something will be invented to be installed in the kitchen which for a coin will cook, wash, clean, baby-sit and run errands.

With my luck in things mechanical, though, my helper would noisily clash gears, ring bells, shake, grumble and end up spewing dust all over the house for my money.

Topic for Panel Is Communications

Homemakers from across the nation will express their opinions as to how well they are being served by their suburban newspapers, by their women's magazines, by radio and television, during the second session of a panel discussion held during the National Suburban Homemakers Conference in Chicago on Nov. 21.

THOMPSON

Subject for the session will be "How communications media can contribute to improved homemaking and better buying practices." Panel members offer varied backgrounds in the field of communications.

Chicago's own Martha Crane will represent radio. During her 35 years at station WLS she has consistently presented intelligent, informative, mature programs designed to be of service to homemakers.

THE FOURTH estate speaker comes from the Los Angeles area. Mrs. Nelda Thompson, women's editor and feature writer for North East Los Angeles Suburban Newspapers, has garnered many an award during her varied newspaper career.

Among them are the Matrix Table Award for feature writing in 1961 and a record of three citations in a row from the Greater Los Angeles Press Club.

Her background, she says, includes virtually all phases of newspapering including, on occasion, delivering the paper as a pinch - hitter for her carrier boy son.

Magazines will be well represented by two women with extensive backgrounds in the field of communications. Doris Doland, assistant to the publisher of Look magazine and a panelist in the 1962 National Suburban Homemakers Conference, will represent general magazines. Miss Doland's experience includes stints on the editorial staffs of Tide, an advertising trade publication, and Collier's prior to joining the staff of Look.

Launder Those Cottons Before Winter Storage

The passing of Indian Summer marks the end of season for lighter clothing. If you're a homemaker in the midst of housecleaning before the cold season sets in, no doubt you are also busily preparing to store your lightweight garments. Mrs. Anne Sterling, Director of Consumer Education for the American Institute of Laundering, recommends taking particular pains when storing your summer apparel for the long months ahead if you want them to be in good condition for the next season's wearing.

Summer weight blankets and jackets aren't the only articles that require special care when storing. Cottons and synthetic materials should be laundered and carefully packed also.

LAUNDERING of all fabrics before storage is especially important because stains, soil, body oil, and perspiration may become "set" in the fabric. These set blemishes are almost impossible to remove when the garment is needed at the next warm season. Body oil stains compound the difficulty for they pick up dust in storage if not covered.

Summer clothing should be stored in a dry place to avoid mildew. The garments should be loosely packed so that there will be fewer wrinkles when it comes time to don the lightweight attire again. (S

Women Get Credit For Tissue Hanky

Did you ever wish you could thank the genius who put disposable paper tissues on the market? Then take a bow. Because that genius was you—the American woman.

According to the Kimberly-Clark Corporation, which produced the first facial tissues just 40 years ago, you can take the credit for this indispensable household product. In fact, as the American Woman you not only put tissues on the market, you even decided how to use and package them.

IT ALL STARTED more than 40 years ago, during World War I. One of you was an Army nurse then, on duty just behind the front lines. A cotton shortage caused a scarcity of bandages, so you used a new product known as Cellucotton, which Kimberly - Clark made from wood pulp. Cellucotton was soft and absorbent, and ideal for bandages.

After the war ended, the company discovered that Cellucotton could be made into a tissue that was both soft and disposable. The only problem was that they weren't certain what could be done with it.

The American Woman had the answer.

IN THE EARLY 1920's when you called yourself a "flapper," you began using cosmetics in a big way. Cold cream care, to beautify skin and remove make-up, became a beauty ritual. Creams were removed with fabric towels, and the unsightly cold cream towel was a familiar bathroom eyesore.

Women wanted a convenient and sanitary way to remove creams, and the answer was disposable tissues.

IN 1924, these first disposable tissues appeared on the market for the "sanitary removal of cold cream." Those first tissues were expensive by present-day standards, two for a penny but, they were what the lady ordered.

In just a few years, women had more to say about tissues. By 1930, the company had received thousands of letters from women saying that its tissues were ideal disposable handkerchiefs. A consumer survey confirmed the fact that tissues had a hidden talent beyond their cosmetic use. The company followed the advice of women, advertised tissues as disposable handkerchiefs, and even packaged them in a purse - sized pocket pack. (S

Scenic Highways Proposed

WASHINGTON, (UPI)— The proposed national scenic highway system could prove to be a bonanza for Michigan, Sen. Philip A. Hart, said this week.

Hart is sponsor of a resolution which would authorize the senate public works committee to make a study of developing such a system. The committee approved the measure November 7 and forwarded it to the rules committee which must authorize the $50,000 sought for the study.

MICHIGAN, with its Upper Peninsula and myriad lakes, abounds in sites for scenic highways, Hart said. His state counts 3,121 miles of freshwater coastline, equal to the Atlantic Coast from Maine to Florida, and longer than the Pacific Coast from southern California to the northern tip of Washington.

Hart, in introducing the resolution, suggested two specific sites in his state for scenic highways: the eastern coast of Lake Michigan, where Hart has proposed the Sleeping Bear National Lakeshore be established, and the southern shore of Lake Superior, where he hopes to create the Pictured Rocks National Park.

The booklet has been out of print for a number of years but was revised recently by popular request.

Each trip is described in a short text with a map showing campsites, launching points and rapids. Pointers on planning a canoe trip are also included.

DOMINANT A-FRAME of "The Abbey," striking new resort in Fontana on the shores of Wisconsin's Lake Geneva, blends into the Wisconsin hills as "wood is wedded to stone and glass and all of nature." The design won the top national award of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association. The structure was cited as "the epitome of wood structure design." Containing 225 rooms at a cost of four million dollars, the Abbey offers complete resort facilities — from a 225-slip marina to horse racing on the ice of Lake Geneva.

Lake Geneva Resort Wins Top Award in Wood Design

Top national honors for wood structure design were bestowed this month by the National Lumber Manufacturers Association on A. Epstein and Sons, Chicago - based architectural and engineering firm, for the design on "The Abbey," a striking new resort in Fontana on Wisconsin's Lake Geneva.

The award was presented to Ralph Epstein, executive vice president of the Epstein firm, at the dinner climaxing the annual meeting of the association in the Shoreham Hotel. Mortimer B. Doyle, executive vice president of the lumber manufacturers group, cited the "epitome of wood structure design" in describing the $4 million, 225-room structure.

IN POINTING out that the unusual A-frame building contains more than one million board feet of lumber and timber, Doyle said. "It is a vital, breath-taking tribute to the enduring virtues of wood." He pointed out that the Abbey's design by the Epstein staff has been described as "wood wedded to stone and glass and all of nature."

The building, Epstein pointed out in receiving the award, "restores in modern A-frame the soaring majesty of the original stone and wood materials used in Europe for the abbeys of medieval times — the hospitable stopping places whose doors were always open to travelers."

Nominations for the national honor came from firms, individuals, and publications involved with lumber and wood products, the building industry, and "others concerned with design integrity," according to Doyle.

The Abbey features a 225-slip marina, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, a complete health club called "The Roman Baths," tennis courts, nearby golf courses and ski tows, and even, in season, horse racing on the ice of the lake.

'Happy Holidays' Trips

Low-Cost Winter Vacation Tours Listed by Eastern

Winter package vacation tours to Florida and the Caribbean area offered by Eastern Air Lines under its "Happy Holidays" label this winter are expected to receive great impetus from two major factors: (1) continuation of the airline's 50 per cent "Family Fare" discounts for first-class travel; and (2) Eastern's expanded jet and other schedules from the Chicago area. Non-stop jet flights are offered to Miami, Tampa/St. Petersburg and San Juan, as well as direct jets to Jacksonville and Orlando.

Rates for week-long visits to most of the popular East and Gulf Coast resorts are no higher than a year ago, and many new features have been added for the first time to the "Happy Holidays" vacation tours, which are sold chiefly through travel agents around the U.S. and Canada.

In the Miami Beach-Fort Lauderdale area of the "Sunshine Coast" some 98 hotels and motels, mostly along the oceanfront, are participating this winter, and many are offering seven days and six nights in a room (shared by two) for as little as $33.50 (European Plan) with free transportation from and to the airport included.

RATES VARY according to the season and types of accommodations, but sufficient variety is available to suit every purse and taste. In general, those who visit the resorts prior to mid-December or after mid-March can enjoy substantial savings.

Most of these hotels and motels have their own private beaches, pools and cabana colonies; some have putting greens and oher game facilities; all are air conditioned; the larger ones have cocktail lounges and night clubs; and increasingly available this year - as part of their strong appeal to the family trade - are movies, sports, and supervised programs for teenagers and smaller children, and baby sitting services for the very young. With few exceptions, free radios and/or TV sets are provided in every room.

On Florida's West Coast, "Happy Holidays" opportunities include a wide choice of hotels, and resorts in the Tampa/St. Petersburg/Sarasota areas, with rates as low as $38 for seven days, six nights (based on two in a room). Here, as on the East Coast, free airport transfers are provided, with generous allowances if the visitor elects to use a rental car instead.

IN THE MATTER of these "Fly-and-Drive" facilities, several competing car rental firms now offer a large choice of makes and types, ranging from small standard shift economy sedans at as little as $16.95 a week ($2.42 per extra day) plus 10 cents a mile, up to 9-passenger station wagons with automatic shift, power steering and other extras for $54.95 per week ($7.85 per extra day; plus 11 or 12 cents a mile.

Rates include gasoline, oil, maintenance, and proper insurance. Air-conditioned cars are available at a slightly higher charge. Some of the agencies permit a car to be picked up and left off at different cities in Florida without extra cost, and a number of them also give complimentary passes for boat rides and other South Florida's tourist attractions. In Florida, by the way, the minimum age for rental car users is 21 for men and 18 for women.

FOR THOSE who prefer being driven instead of driving, there are escorted Florida Circle Motor Coach tours starting every Sunday from Jacksonville, and winding up 13 days later in that same city, with rates ranging upwards from $292 (two in a room) for transportation throughout the state, 12 nights in deluxe hotels, all meals (except in Jacksonville) on the Modified American Plan, sightseeing, admission to all attractions, some evening entertainment, all baggage handling and gratuities.

Overnight stops are made in Jacksonville, Orlando, St. Petersburg, Miami Beach, Fort Lauderdale and Daytona Beach, but participants get a look at everything worth seeing from the waterskiing at Cypress Gardens and the wildlife of the Everglades to Cape Canaveral's rockets and the Kennedy Family's estates.

For those wanting a taste of foreign or overseas atmosphere, the "Happy Holidays" list includes Nassau and the Bahamas; Jamaica; Puerto Rico; the Virgin Islands; and a variety of other exotic outposts in the West Indies. In fact, it can be quite a lot of fun island-hopping around the map at home, planning and anticipating new winter vacation adventures along the old Spanish Main, with 112 resorts to choose among.

Travel and Adventure

Andes to Amazon Is 2nd Film

Because the second adventure of the Barrington Travel Club will take the armchair traveler through Venezuela, Surinam, Brazil and Peru, the Barrington High School Spanish Club has undertaken to sponsor the program.

Called "Andes to Amazon" by its author, John M. Goddard, it will highlight the vivid contrasts of modern and primitive; some major sequences will include Caracas, booming capital of Venezuela; ascent of Devil Mountain to reach "The Lost World;" expedition to Angel Falls (world's highest and most spectacular waterfall, 3,212 feet high), and rapids running down three swift jungle rivers.

Continuing the tour, Goddard will introduce the audience to an incredible fire - walking and glass-eating ceremony performed by the descendants of escaped African slaves in Surinam.

THE TRAVELER will then take a 1000-mile journey up the mighty Amazon from Belem to Monaus, continue on to Brazil's new capital, Brasilia, and join an expedition into the Mato Grosso, where fourteen white men were killed by Indians in 1962. It is there that one will actually see the fantastic saucer-lipped Suya Indians.

In contrast, the expedition visits Rio with Sugar Loaf and Copacabana Beach; then on to Peru, visiting costumed Indians who dance on the shores of the 12,500 foot Lake Titicaca. Majestic Machu Picchu, (The Lost City of the Incas) is next on the trip, culminating in a climb of Peru's highest mountain, 22,000 foot Huascaran.

John M. Goddard first gained international recognition with his expedition down the 4,000 mile Nile River. This was the first time in history that the world's largest river was explored from source to mouth, and this ranked, in the opinion of many, alongside the epic Kon Tiki and Mt. Everest expeditions. His explorations have taken him into some 84 countries and over 500,000 land, sea and air miles, equivalent to 20 times around the world. John Goddard's insatiable desire for knowledge has let him into numerous fascinating fields — from savage societies to complex civilizations — from tribal chiefs to chiefs of state — from witchcraft to spacecraft — from stone age to nuclear reactors — from blow guns to guided missiles — and from ocean floor to outer space!

HE IS STAR of his own television series, "This Exciting World," he has made frequent appearances on the famous national TV shows "Search for Adventure," "Bold Journey," and "True Adventure."

The film lecture will be presented Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Barrington High School auditorium.

At Illinois Conference

Improvements Are Sought For Crab Orchard Refuge

CARBONDALE, ILL., — Suggestions for improving the industrial and recreational potential of the 40,000-acre Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge were made last week at a meeting of federal and Southern Illinois officials.

The conference was born out of criticisms that recreational development of the refuge was lagging and because the number of industrial jobs at the refuge has dropped from 3,000 to about 1,500 during the past 10 years.

During World War II, the area was the scene of a shell loading plant operation and later was converted into a wildlife refuge. The World War II buildings were leased to industrial tenants.

Robert Paul, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Interior, said the Crab Orchard refuge is unique among federal refuges because of its additional industrial and recreation purposes.

HE SAID he was attending the meeting at the request of Interior Secretary Udall and Rep. Kenneth J. Gray of Illinois.

James W. Brigham of Marion, president of the Idagraph-Bradley Industries, Inc., one of the industrial tenants at the refuge, said buildings are 20 years old and in bad condition. He said tenants have been given no credit for improvements to buildings.

Brigham, representing an industrial sub-committee, suggested:

—Doing away with lower rental rates for storage and placing all rentals on the same rate;

—Improvements to buildings update the refuge's recreation plan.

He opposed the suggestion that the refuge create a fund to advertise its facilities.

Paul said more than half of the Interior Department's ap- on a rent-credit basis which should produce more tenants;

—Reduction of railroad switching rates by the government in the refuge;

—Better maintenance of roads and rail facilities;

—Creation of a fund to advertise the refuge facilities and creation of an industrial park are. along old Illinois 13 on which 50-year leases could be obtained.

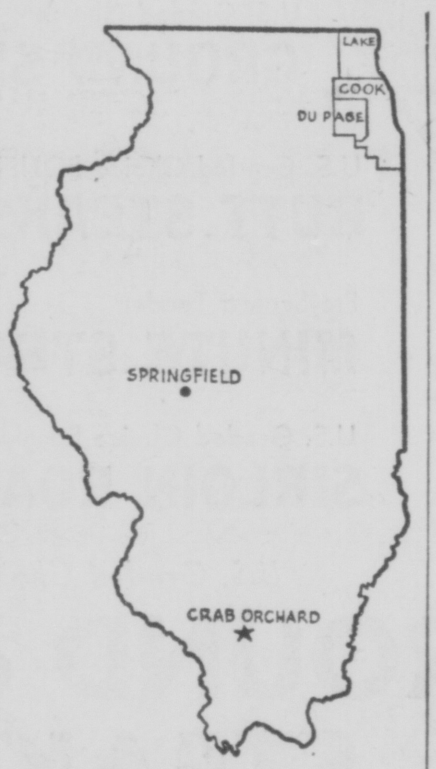
RECREATIONAL suggestions by Joe Cruse of Carterville, president of Crab Orchard Playground, Inc., included construction of a lodge and cottages and an information center as well as more footpaths, bridle paths and picnic tables.

The federal government would support establishment of an industrial park in part of the refuge, according to R. W. Burwell of Minneapolis, Minn., regional director of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife. He said, however, that the government would not transfer title of the land for the industrial park.

Burwell suggested that the industrial park could be located on either side of old Illinois 13 near its intersection with Illinois 148 and include both private and government-owned land.

Burwell said a consultant of the National Park Service will propriation for recreation went to the Crab Orchard refuge.

Burwell said the bureau also would entertain a proposal for a lodge to be built by private enterprise on the refuge if it were supported by a feasibility study.



CRAB ORCHARD National Wildlife Refuge, located 350 miles from suburban Chicago, is also one of Illinois' most extensive scenic and recreation areas.

Wildlife Refuge Donates Buffaloes

LAWTON, OKLA., (UPI) — Forty head of live, wild buffaloes were on their way to new homes on the range in nine states last week.

The animals have been sold or donated by the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge near Lawton, to thin the refuge herd to about 1,000 head.

Ten head were donated to the Taos Indians of New Mexico, to replace an infected herd. Other donations, of two animals each, were to the city zoo of Greensboro, N. C.; The Frank Buck Memorial Zoo in Gainesville, Tex., and the city of Albany, Ga.

THE OTHER two dozen were sold at $165 each. Applications from prospective buyers were selected by lot. Applications came from 41 states and the District of Columbia.

The buffaloes were sold to Sundowner Land & Cattle Co. of Prairie Grove, Ark., and O. J. McCullough Tool Co. of Houston, Tex., six each; Percy L. Cook of Mansfield, Tex., four; Timber Ridge Farms of Deer Creek, Ill., three; Lee Giles of Greeley, Kan., and Louis A. Wehle of Rochester, N. Y., two each, and Tally Johnson of Terlton, Okla., one.

To obtain the animals, buyers were required to certify that the buffaloes would be used for breeding purposes only and that they had adequate range and other facilities for their care.

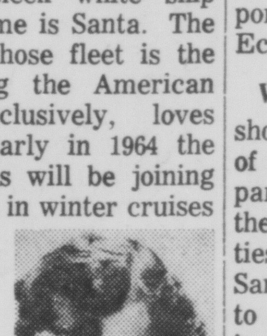
Is there a Santa in your future? Stare closely at the clouded crystal ball and you may see a sleek white ship whose first name is Santa. The Grace Line, whose fleet is the largest serving the American continents exclusively, loves that name. Early in 1964 the Santa Mercedes will be joining her sister ships in winter cruises to the Caribbean and South America.



WELCH

This is a large family of sisters. They include the Santa Rosa, Santa Paula, Santa Magdalena, Santa Mariana, Santa Maria, Santa Barbara, Santa Isabel, Santa Luisa, Santa Cecilia, Santa Elena and the Santa Margarita.

FROM AMONG that roster almost any cruise-minded traveler should be able to choose just the length of time, the kind of accommodations and the itinerary he has in mind.

Cruises vary in length from 13 days to 40. Accommodations available from Grace Line run the gamut from cruise ships like the Santa Rosa and the Santa Paula, which accsommodate 30 0passengers in all first-class luxury, to the Santa Elena and Santa Margarita which are 52-passenger cargo-passenger ships but which sacrifice few of the niceties. Staterooms on the latter are all outside rooms and there are outdoor swimming pools and air-conditioning.

Let's take an average length cruise to describe. The Santa Magdalena, Mariana, Maria and soon the Santa Mercedes will be on the 19-day run this winter, sailing each Saturday from New York. Those four ships, built exclusively for cruising, carry 117 passengers as they run along the Caribbean. They visit, alternately, Santa Marta, Cartegena, Jamaica, Haiti, Panama and the Panama Canal. Sailing down the Pacific Coast of South America they make ports of call in Colombia and Ecuador.

WHILE PORT touring and shopping is an important part of a cruise, the more important part, for most passengers, is the cruise itself and the activities of a cruise ship. On the Santas there is wonderful food to be enjoyed, swimming, dancing, lounging in deck chairs, watching the sea from the flying bridge observation decks, meeting new people, making new friends.

Grace Line also offers freighter voyages but that is a form of travel which merits a column all to itself for there are those who should take freighters and those who should not. We'll cover that subject in a later column.

To determine whether there's a Santa in your future, consult the Chicago office of Grace Line at 141 W. Jackson.

Setting the Table For Thanksgiving

If you're planning a "natural" table setting for the Thanksgiving holiday using fruits, vegetables, and perhaps nuts, better have a rehearsal first, suggests the American Institute of Laundering.

PLACE ALL items you plan to use on a damp towel and let them sit over night. If there is no discoloration on the towel the next day, you can safely use them on your linen tablecloth.

On the subject of table decorations, here's a tip for an emergency flower holder from the Institute. Cut a potato in half and make holes in it with a sharp pencil. Flowers may be inserted into the potato and will stay fresh if the potato is immersed in water.

Scenic Highways Proposed

WASHINGTON, (UPI)— The proposed national scenic highway system could prove to be a bonanza for Michigan, Sen. Philip A. Hart, said this week.

Hart is sponsor of a resolution which would authorize the senate public works committee to make a study of developing such a system. The committee approved the measure November 7 and forwarded it to the rules committee which must authorize the $50,000 sought for the study.

MICHIGAN, with its Upper Peninsula and myriad lakes, abounds in sites for scenic highways, Hart said. His state counts 3,121 miles of freshwater coastline, equal to the Atlantic Coast from Maine to Florida, and longer than the Pacific Coast from southern California to the northern tip of Washington.

Hart, in introducing the resolution, suggested two specific sites in his state for scenic highways: the eastern coast of Lake Michigan, where Hart has proposed the Sleeping Bear National Lakeshore be established, and the southern shore of Lake Superior, where he hopes to create the Pictured Rocks National Park.

Issued Revised Trails Edition

MADISON, WIS., (UPI)—A revised edition of "Wisconsin Water Trails," the popular booklet describing 48 trips on 36 Wisconsin rivers, can now be obtained from the Wisconsin Conservation Department.

The booklet has been out of print for a number of years but was revised recently by popular request.

Each trip is described in a short text with a map showing campsites, launching points and rapids. Pointers on planning a canoe trip are also included.

DOMINANT A-FRAME of "The Abbey," striking new resort in Fontana on the shores of Wisconsin's Lake Geneva, blends into the Wisconsin hills as "wood is wedded to stone and glass and all of nature." The design won the top national award of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association. The structure was cited as "the epitome of wood structure design." Containing 225 rooms at a cost of four million dollars, the Abbey offers complete resort facilities — from a 225-slip marina to horse racing on the ice of Lake Geneva.

Lake Geneva Resort Wins Top Award in Wood Design

Top national honors for wood structure design were bestowed this month by the National Lumber Manufacturers Association on A. Epstein and Sons, Chicago - based architectural and engineering firm, for the design on "The Abbey," a striking new resort in Fontana on Wisconsin's Lake Geneva.

The award was presented to Ralph Epstein, executive vice president of the Epstein firm, at the dinner climaxing the annual meeting of the association in the Shoreham Hotel. Mortimer B. Doyle, executive vice president of the lumber manufacturers group, cited the "epitome of wood structure design" in describing the $4 million, 225-room structure.

IN POINTING out that the unusual A-frame building contains more than one million board feet of lumber and timber, Doyle said. "It is a vital, breath-taking tribute to the enduring virtues of wood." He pointed out that the Abbey's design by the Epstein staff has been described as "wood wedded to stone and glass and all of nature."

The building, Epstein pointed out in receiving the award, "restores in modern A-frame the soaring majesty of the original stone and wood materials used in Europe for the abbeys of medieval times — the hospitable stopping places whose doors were always open to travelers."

Nominations for the national honor came from firms, individuals, and publications involved with lumber and wood products, the building industry, and "others concerned with design integrity," according to Doyle.

The Abbey features a 225-slip marina, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, a complete health club called "The Roman Baths," tennis courts, nearby golf courses and ski tows, and even, in season, horse racing on the ice of the lake.

At Illinois Conference

Improvements Are Sought For Crab Orchard Refuge

CARBONDALE, ILL., — Suggestions for improving the industrial and recreational potential of the 40,000-acre Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge were made last week at a meeting of federal and Southern Illinois officials.

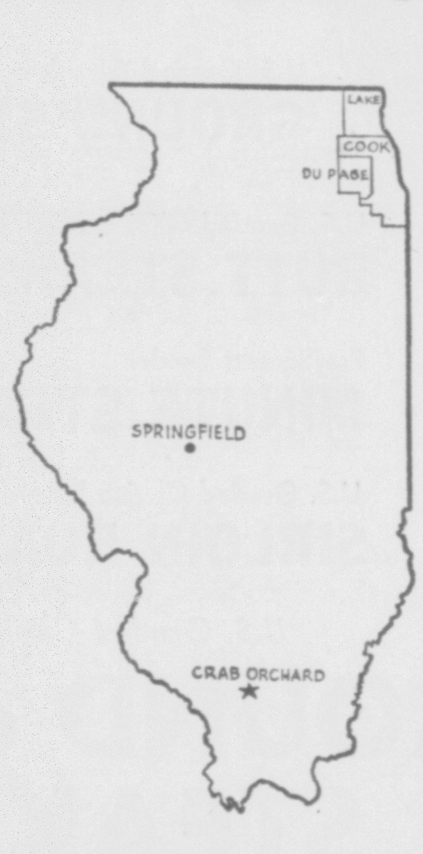
The conference was born out of criticisms that recreational development of the refuge was lagging and because the number of industrial jobs at the refuge has dropped from 3,000 to about 1,500 during the past 10 years.

During World War II, the area was the scene of a shell loading plant operation and later was converted into a wildlife refuge. The World War II buildings were leased to industrial tenants.

Robert Paul, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Interior, said the Crab Orchard refuge is unique among federal refuges because of its additional industrial and recreation purposes.

HE SAID he was attending the meeting at the request of Interior Secretary Udall and Rep. Kenneth J. Gray of Illinois.

James W. Brigham of Marion, president of the Idagraph-Bradley Industries, Inc., one of the industrial tenants at the refuge, said buildings are 20 years old and in bad condition. He said tenants have been given no credit for improvements to buildings.



CRAB ORCHARD National Wildlife Refuge, located 350 miles from suburban Chicago, is also one of Illinois' most extensive scenic and recreation areas.

Brigham, representing an industrial sub-committee, suggested:

—Doing away with lower rental rates for storage and placing all rentals on the same rate;

—Improvements to buildings update the refuge's recreation plan.

He opposed the suggestion that the refuge create a fund to advertise its facilities.

Paul said more than half of the Interior Department's apon a rent-credit basis which should produce more tenants;

—Reduction of railroad switching rates by the government in the refuge;

—Better maintenance of roads and rail facilities;

—Creation of a fund to advertise the refuge facilities and creation of an industrial park are.. along old Illinois 13 on which 50-year leases could be obtained.

RECREATIONAL suggestions by Joe Cruse of Carterville, president of Crab Orchard Playground, Inc., included construction of a lodge and cottages and an information center as well as more footpaths, bridle paths and picnic tables.

The federal government would support establishment of an industrial park in part of the refuge, according to R. W. Burwell of Minneapolis, Minn., regional director of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife. He said, however, that the government would not transfer title of the land for the industrial park.

Burwell suggested that the industrial park could be located on either side of old Illinois 13 near its intersection with Illinois 148 and include both private and government-owned land.

Burwell said a consultant of the National Park Service will propriation for recreation went to the Crab Orchard refuge.

Burwell said the bureau also would entertain a proposal for a lodge to be built by private enterprise on the refuge if it were supported by a feasibility study.

Wildlife Refuge Donates Buffaloes

LAWTON, OKLA., (UPI) — Forty head of live, wild buffaloes were on their way to new homes on the range in nine states last week.

The animals have been sold or donated by the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge near Lawton, to thin the refuge herd to about 1,000 head.

Ten head were donated to the Taos Indians of New Mexico, to replace an infected herd. Other donations, of two animals each, were to the city zoo of Greensboro, N. C.; The Frank Buck Memorial Zoo in Gainesville, Tex., and the city of Albany, Ga.

THE OTHER two dozen were sold at $165 each. Applications from prospective buyers were selected by lot. Applications came from 41 states and the District of Columbia.

The buffaloes were sold to Sundowner Land & Cattle Co. of Prairie Grove, Ark., and O. J. McCullough Tool Co. of Houston, Tex., six each; Percy L. Cook of Mansfield, Tex., four; Timber Ridge Farms of Deer Creek, Ill., three; Lee Giles of Greeley, Kan., and Louis A. Wehle of Rochester, N. Y., two each, and Tally Johnson of Terlton, Okla., one.

To obtain the animals, buyers were required to certify that the buffaloes would be used for breeding purposes only and that they had adequate range and other facilities for their care.

A four o'clock ceremony on Oct. 26 in St. Paul United Church of Christ, Palatine, united the former Yvonne D. Lindstrom of Des Plaines and Severin O. Roiland, 145 S. Linden, Palatine. The couple is now living in the home of the groom, while both are employed by Littelfuse, Inc., in Des Plaines.

The simple rites were performed by Rev. Glenn Gumm, with the mothers of the pair in attendance as well as close friends and relatives. The bride's mother is Mrs. Florence Figurski of Niles, and the groom's is Mrs. G. Roiland of Chicago.

THE BRIDE'S only attendant was Barbara Sleeth of Chicago, while Robert Anderson of Des Plaines stood at the altar with the groom.

Following the ceremony an open house was held in the groom's home for 100 guests.

The bride came to this area from Mauston, Wis., and attended Whitewater State College. The groom grew up in Chicago.

'Happy Holidays' Trips

Low-Cost Winter Vacation Tours Listed by Eastern

Winter package vacation tours to Florida and the Caribbean area offered by Eastern Air Lines under its "Happy Holidays" label this winter are expected to receive great impetus from two major factors: (1) continuation of the airline's 50 per cent "Family Fare" discounts for first-class travel; and (2) Eastern's expanded jet and other schedules from the Chicago area. Non-stop jet flights are offered to Miami, Tampa/St. Petersburg and San Juan, as well as direct jets to Jacksonville and Orlando.

Rates for week-long visits to most of the popular East and Gulf Coast resorts are no higher than a year ago, and many new features have been added for the first time to the "Happy Holidays" vacation tours, which are sold chiefly through travel agents around the U.S. and Canada.

In the Miami Beach-Fort Lauderdale area of the "Sunshine Coast" some 98 hotels and motels, mostly along the oceanfront, are participating this winter, and many are offering seven days and six nights in a room (shared by two) for as little as $33.50 (European Plan) with free transportation from and to the airport included.

RATES VARY according to the season and types of accommodations, but sufficient variety is available to suit every purse and taste. In general, those who visit the resorts prior to mid-December or after mid-March can enjoy substantial savings.

Most of these hotels and motels have their own private beaches, pools and cabana colonies; some have putting greens and oher game facilities; all are air conditioned; the larger ones have cocktail lounges and night clubs; and increasingly available this year - as part of their strong appeal to the family trade - are movies, sports, and supervised programs for teenagers and smaller children, and baby sitting services for the very young. With few exceptions, free radios and/or TV sets are provided in every room.

On Florida's West Coast, "Happy Holidays" opportunities include a wide choice of hotels, and resorts in the Tampa/St. Petersburg/Sarasota areas, with rates as low as $38 for seven days, six nights (based on two in a room). Here, as on the East Coast, free airport transfers are provided, with generous allowances if the visitor elects to use a rental car instead.

IN THE MATTER of these "Fly-and-Drive" facilities, several competing car rental firms now offer a large choice of makes and types, ranging from small standard shift economy sedans at as little as $16.95 a week ($2.42 per extra day) plus 10 cents a mile, up to 9-passenger station wagons with automatic shift, power steering and other extras for $54.95 per week ($7.85 per extra day; plus 11 or 12 cents a mile.

Rates include gasoline, oil, maintenance, and proper insurance. Air-conditioned cars are available at a slightly higher charge. Some of the agencies permit a car to be picked up and left off at different cities in Florida without extra cost, and a number of them also give complimentary passes for boat rides and other South Florida's tourist attractions. In Florida, by the way, the minimum age for rental car users is 21 for men and 18 for women.

FOR THOSE who prefer being driven instead of driving, there are escorted Florida Circle Motor Coach tours starting every Sunday from Jacksonville, and winding up 13 days later in that same city, with rates ranging upwards from $292 (two in a room) for transportation throughout the state, 12 nights in deluxe hotels, all meals (except in Jacksonville) on the Modified American Plan, sightseeing, admission to all attractions, some evening entertainment, all baggage handling and gratuities.

Overnight stops are made in Jacksonville, Orlando, St. Petersburg, Miami Beach, Fort Lauderdale and Daytona Beach, but participants get a look at everything worth seeing from the waterskiing at Cypress Gardens and the wildlife of the Everglades to Cape Canaveral's rockets and the Kennedy Family's estates.

For those wanting a taste of foreign or overseas atmosphere, the "Happy Holidays" list includes Nassau and the Bahamas; Jamaica; Puerto Rico; the Virgin Islands; and a variety of other exotic outposts in the West Indies. In fact, it can be quite a lot of fun island-hopping around the map at home, planning and anticipating new winter vacation adventures along the old Spanish Main, with 112 resorts to choose among.

Travel and Adventure

Andes to Amazon Is 2nd Film

Because the second adventure of the Barrington Travel Club will take the armchair traveler through Venezuela, Surinam, Brazil and Peru, the Barrington High School Spanish Club has undertaken to sponsor the program.

Called "Andes to Amazon" by its author, John M. Goddard, it will highlight the vivid contrasts of modern and primitive; some major sequences will include Caracas, booming capital of Venezuela; ascent of Devil Mountain to reach "The Lost World;" expedition to Angel Falls (world's highest and most spectacular waterfall, 3,212 feet high), and rapids running down three swift jungle rivers.

Continuing the tour, Goddard will introduce the audience to an incredible fire - walking and glass-eating ceremony performed by the descendants of escaped African slaves in Surinam.

THE TRAVELER will then take a 1000-mile journey up the mighty Amazon from Belem to Monaus, continue on to Brazil's new capital, Brasilia, and join an expedition into the Mato Grosso, where fourteen white men were killed by Indians in 1962. It is there that one will actually see the fantastic saucer-lipped Suya Indians.

In contrast, the expedition visits Rio with Sugar Loaf and Copacabana Beach; then on to Peru, visiting costumed Indians who dance on the shores of the 12,500 foot Lake Titicaca. Majestic Machu Picchu, (The Lost City of the Incas) is next on the trip, culminating in a climb of Peru's highest mountain, 22,000 foot Huascaran.

John M. Goddard first gained international recognition with his expedition down the 4,000 mile Nile River. This was the first time in history that the world's largest river was explored from source to mouth, and this ranked, in the opinion of many, alongside the epic Kon Tiki and Mt. Everest expeditions. His explorations have taken him into some 84 countries and over 500,000 land, sea and air miles, equivalent to 20 times around the world. John Goddard's insatiable desire for knowledge has let him into numerous fascinating fields — from savage societies to complex civilizations — from tribal chiefs to chiefs of state — from witchcraft to spacecraft — from stone age to nuclear reactors — from blow guns to guided missiles — and from ocean floor to outer space!

HE IS STAR of his own television series, "This Exciting World," he has made frequent appearances on the famous national TV shows "Search for Adventure," "Bold Journey," and "True Adventure."

The film lecture will be presented Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Barrington High School auditorium.

Raspberry Squares Score with Cook's 6 Sons

MARK, BILL AND PAT Kushner unanimously agree that their mother's delicious Raspberry Squares make a mighty appealing afternoon snack! This recipe, as well as several other of Mrs. Harry Kushner's favorites, are appearing in the adjoining column as well as in St. James Women's Guild cook book, which goes on sale this month. Pastry Has Rich Coconut Topping

by LOIS SEILER

Recipes have a way of getting around, and one of Mrs. Harry Kushner's favorites has come a long way. She received the recipe for raspberry squares from a nun who had, in turn, picked it up in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada.

These squares have a cake-like base with a raspberry filling and an unusual coconut topping. Although the base is firm, these pastries have a rich and flaky quality, and because they are fragile they must be eaten with a fork.

"The squares make a nice dessert for a luncheon or bridge party or after a light meal," Mrs. Kushner commented. "They can be served warm or cold and may be topped with whipped cream, if desired."

Because Mrs. Kushner has enjoyed this recipe so much, it is one she chose to submit to St. James Women's Guild's cook book, which will be on sale this month. As ways and means chairman for the Guild, this cook book is one of her pet projects and it will contain recipes from all the good cooks in the parish.

Two other favorites which Mrs. Kushner contributed to this book are a savory pork chop casserole and an easy-do French bread.

IN THIS casserole, browned chops are baked with an appealing combination of wild rice, chopped onion, celery, green pepper and mushrooms, with mushroom soup poured over all.

"The succulent rice has a delicious flavor from the chops and the soup," Mrs. Kushner said. "A salad and dessert is all that is necessary to complete this meal."

This casserole makes a nice Sunday meal for the family, and is elegant company fare.

Homemade French bread is a must when the Kushner family has spaghetti and meat balls for dinner. There is no kneading to this recipe, which is quite easy to put together and economical to prepare.

The method is unique in that the dough is rolled out and then rolled up in the same manner as for a jelly roll. The long loaves are left to rise, then baked for 30 minutes. The recipe yields two loaves, and the bread is soft with a nice crust.

THERE IS no doubt that in a family with six boys, fresh homemade bread disappears in a hurry! The Kushners' sons are: Tom, 18, a freshman at St. Mary' College in Winona, Minn.; Pat, 16, a junior at Quigley Preparatory Seminary; Bill, 13, an eighth grader; Mark, 11, in seventh grade; Robbie, 7, a second-grader, and Jamies, 5, a kindergarten student.

In addition to her activities at St. James Church, Mrs. Kushner is a member of the Arlington Heights Nurses' Club. The Kushners live at 1103 N. Haddow Court in Arlington Heights.

¼ teaspoon garlic salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 4-ounce jar mushrooms, including liquid
6 pork chops, about ¾-inch thick
2 tablespoons drippings
Salt and pepper
1 can undiluted mushroom soup
1 cup milk

Soak and cook wild rice according to package directions. Mix with vegetables, seasonings and mushrooms and turn into a buttered casserole.

Brown chops on both sides in drippings. Season with salt and pepper. Arrange on top of rice mixture. Combine soup and milk and pour over chops.

Cover and bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Serves 6.

FRENCH BREAD

1 package active dry yeast
1½ cup very warm water
1 tablespoon sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon soft margarine
4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
Melted butter or margarine

In a large bowl, dissolve sugar and salt in the remaining 1 cup water. Add shortening and yeast mixture and mix well. Add flour and mix thoroughly, using a wooden spoon.

Work through dough with spoon at 10 minute intervals for five consecutive times. Turn dough onto lightly-floured surface and divide in half. Shape into two balls and let rest 10 minutes.

Roll each ball into a 9 by 12-inch rectangle. Then roll firmly as for a jelly roll, starting with the long side, and seal the edge.

Place rolls on greased baking sheet; score top diagonally six times with a knife. Cover with a towel and let rise 1½ hours. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes. Brush with melted butter while warm. Yield: 2 loaves.

Raspberry Squares Score with Cook's 6 Sons

MARK, BILL AND PAT Kushner unanimously agree that their mother's delicious Raspberry Squares make a mighty appealing afternoon snack! This recipe, as well as several other of Mrs. Harry Kushner's favorites, are appearing in the adjoining column as well as in St. James Women's Guild cook book, which goes on sale this month. RASPBERRY SQUARES

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ cup butter or margarine
1 egg
1 tablespoon milk
1 cup raspberry jam or preserves

Sift flour and baking powder together into a bowl. Cut in butter or margarine with two knives or a pastry blender until mixture looks mealy.

Beat egg slightly and stir into flour mixture along with the milk. Mix well. Spread dough over the bottom of a greased 8-inch baking pan. Cover with a layer of jam. Prepare the following topping:

4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 egg
1 cup sugar
1 4-ounce can flaked coconut
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Melt butter or margarine. Beat egg until frothy. Beat in sugar and melted butter thoroughly. Add coconut and mix well.

Flavor with vanilla and spread on top of raspberry jam. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool and cut into squares. Serve with a dab of whipped cream, if desired.

PORK CHOPS WITH WILD RICE

1 cup wild rice
1 medium onion, minced
1 cup chopped celery
1 green pepper, chopped fine
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 4-ounce jar mushrooms, including liquid
6 pork chops, about ¾-inch thick
2 tablespoons drippings
Salt and pepper
1 can undiluted mushroom soup
1 cup milk

Soak and cook wild rice according to package directions. Mix with vegetables, seasonings and mushrooms and turn into a buttered casserole.

Brown chops on both sides in drippings. Season with salt and pepper. Arrange on top of rice mixture. Combine soup and milk and pour over chops.

Cover and bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Serves 6.

FRENCH BREAD

1 package active dry yeast
1½ cup very warm water
1 tablespoon sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon soft margarine
4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
Melted butter or margarine

Sprinkle yeast into ½ cup water and stir until dissolved.

In a large bowl, dissolve sugar and salt in the remaining 1 cup water. Add shortening and yeast mixture and mix well. Add flour and mix thoroughly, using a wooden spoon.

Work through dough with spoon at 10 minute intervals for five consecutive times. Turn dough onto lightly-floured surface and divide in half. Shape into two balls and let rest 10 minutes.

Roll each ball into a 9 by 12-inch rectangle. Then roll firmly as for a jelly roll, starting with the long side, and seal the edge.

Place rolls on greased baking sheet; score top diagonally six times with a knife. Cover with a towel and let rise 1½ hours. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes. Brush with melted butter while warm. Yield: 2 loaves.

EARLY CHINESE TEA actually "took the cake." Leaves were sun-dried, steamed and pressed into flat circular cakes for later use. Then it took 24 pieces of equipment to make tea, but now homemakers can easily serve good quality tea with the help of R. C. Bigelow, Inc. They produce a variety of teas, including "Constant Comment," available at the Sanitary Market, Palatine.

Pastry Has Rich Coconut Topping

by LOIS SEILER

Recipes have a way of getting around, and one of Mrs. Harry Kushner's favorites has come a long way. She received the recipe for raspberry squares from a nun who had, in turn, picked it up in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada.

These squares have a cake-like base with a raspberry filling and an unusual coconut topping. Although the base is firm, these pastries have a rich and flaky quality, and because they are fragile they must be eaten with a fork.

"The squares make a nice dessert for a luncheon or bridge party or after a light meal," Mrs. Kushner commented. "They can be served warm or cold and may be topped with whipped cream, if desired."

Because Mrs. Kushner has enjoyed this recipe so much, it is one she chose to submit to St. James Women's Guild's cook book, which will be on sale this month. As ways and means chairman for the Guild, this cook book is one of her pet projects and it will contain recipes from all the good cooks in the parish.

Two other favorites which Mrs. Kushner contributed to this book are a savory pork chop casserole and an easy-do French bread.

IN THIS casserole, browned chops are baked with an appealing combination of wild rice, chopped onion, celery, green pepper and mushrooms, with mushroom soup poured over all.

"The succulent rice has a delicious flavor from the chops and the soup," Mrs. Kushner said. "A salad and dessert is all that is necessary to complete this meal."

This casserole makes a nice Sunday meal for the family, and is elegant company fare.

Homemade French bread is a must when the Kushner family has spaghetti and meat balls for dinner. There is no kneading to this recipe, which is quite easy to put together and economical to prepare.

The method is unique in that the dough is rolled out and then rolled up in the same manner as for a jelly roll. The long loaves are left to rise, then baked for 30 minutes. The recipe yields two loaves, and the bread is soft with a nice crust.

THERE IS no doubt that in a family with six boys, fresh homemade bread disappears in a hurry! The Kushners' sons are: Tom, 18, a freshman at St. Mary' College in Winona, Minn.; Pat, 16, a junior at Quigley Preparatory Seminary; Bill, 13, an eighth grader; Mark, 11, in seventh grade; Robbie, 7, a second-grader, and Jamies, 5, a kindergarten student.

In addition to her activities at St. James Church, Mrs. Kushner is a member of the Arlington Heights Nurses' Club. The Kushners live at 1103 N. Haddow Court in Arlington Heights.

Sorority Activities

Delta Gammas Seek Used Eye Glass Frames to Help Needy

DELTA GAMMA

Northwest Suburban Chapter of Delta Gamma is again conducting a drive for used eye glass frames and has installed containers for the frames in drugstores throughout Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights.

National philanthropy of Delta Gamma is aiding the blind and visually handicapped and this month's campaign will aid New Eyes for the Needy, Inc., in Short Hills, N. J. A non-profit, non-sectarian organization, New Eyes for the Needy gathers glasses from all over the country and redistributes them to those who cannot afford to buy them. To date, more than 250,000 have been helped by this group, including lepers, whose eyes are so sensitive to the sun that they cannot be outdoors without sunglasses.

CHI OMEGA

A beehive of activity will mark the November meeting of the Chicago Northwest Suburban Alumnae of Chi Omega. Mrs. Donald House of Arlington Heights has planned a Holiday Crafts presentation, Christmas tray favors for an old people's home will be completed, and alumnae members will display their talents and hobbies, with emphasis on Christmas and the exchange of ideas.

The meeting will take place at 8:15 Tuesday evening, Nov. 19, in the Park Ridge home of Mrs. E. Bradley Huedepohl.

All Chi Omega alumnae are invited to attend meetings, which are held the third Tuesday of each month. For reservations those interested may telephone Mrs. Verne Whitnell at CL 3-1150.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

How it felt to be one of 10 girls in a class of 300 boys, all trying to become good attorneys, was the topic of Miss Teresa Conway, an attorney, who spoke to members of Zeta Tau Alpha Nov. 5.

During the business portion of the meeting, members discussed becoming a chartered chapter and a committee was formed to investigate the procedure. On the first Tuesday of December, a "make it and take it" party will be held in the Park Ridge home of Mrs. Peter Holt. Proceeds will be given to charitable organizations, such as Cerebral Palsy, the national philanthropy of the sorority, announced Mrs. Robert Kopke of Prospect Heights a member of the group.

SIGMA KAPPA

Sigma Kappa will honor its five founders with a Founders Day dinner Nov. 18 in the Mount Prospect home of Mrs. William O'Donnell.

The sorority was founded in 1874 at Colby College, Waterville, Me. At present there are 101 college chapters in the United States.

At a recent meeting of the northwest suburban alumnae, Mrs. R. Davis of Arlington Heights was elected treasurer. Reservations for the Nov. 18 dinner may be made with Mrs. R. W. Scheck, 253-1894.

ALPHA XI DELTA

Characteristics and care of various fabrics will be the subject of the program to be presented by a laundry representative following the regular monthly meeting of the North Area Alumnae of Alpha Xi Delta.

Hostess for the Nov. 20 meeting will be Mrs. George Smith, 237 Placid Way, Elk Grove Village. The business portion of the meeting will begin at 8 p.m.

Any Alpha Xi Delta alumna in the northern and north-western Chicagoland area is welcome to attend. Further information or arrangements for transportation may be made by calling 437-4632. (S

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

A "silent auction" will highlight the November meeting of the Northwest Suburban Alumnae Club of Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority. Countless items, many handcrafted by club members, will be auctioned to other members. Proceeds of the sale will go to two philanthropic projects, the Kappa Alpha Theta Illinois State Project for Handicapped Children and the Institute of Logopedics at Wichita.

The auction will be held Thursday, Nov. 21, at 1 p.m. in the home of Mrs. John Lindstrom, 824 S. Beverly, Arlington Heights. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. James Kelly and Mrs. Edward Graf.

It is urged that Theta alumnae who have recently moved into this area contact Mrs. Lindstrom at CL 3-2226 or Mrs. Kelly at TA 3-6931 prior to the meeting. (S

DELTA DELTA DELTA'S recent fund-raiser, Night of Cards, found Mrs. Robert Stone, Mrs. William Carroll and Mrs. Robert Pace, all of Arlington Heights, among the players. The affair was the area group's ways and means project for the season. Next on the agenda of the Chicago Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter is the Founders Day luncheon to be held Nov. 20 in Old Orchard Country Club, when the women will mark their sorority's 75th anniversary. Mrs. George Busse, 255-3932, is in charge of reservations. (S

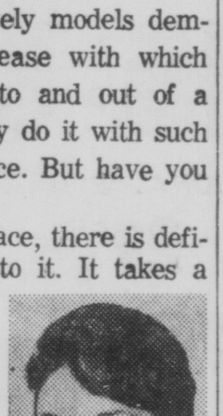
Sports Car Poses Problem For Women Being Graceful

by JODY CARR

If you're a television viewer, you've seen lovely models demonstrating the ease with which one can get into and out of a sports car. They do it with such fluidity and grace. But have you tried it?



CARR

In the first place, there is definitely a knack to it. It takes a certain dexterity and a lot of patience to avoid bumping your head, tearing your left stocking with the heel of your right shoe, and dislocating your knee on the steering column.

The sports car designers had good reason, of course, for designing their products as they did. They didn't exactly have a walk-in milk truck in mind when they lowered the chassis and minimized surplus sheet metal. They were shooting for handling and roadability, and that's what they achieved. The small price we pay for these benefits is a few practice sessions on agile exit and entry.

IF YOU'RE planning to try your hand at driving a "four on the floor," practice before you make your public splash. Just as there are established procedures for entering and leaving a room gracefully, there are also ways to look as though you've been driving a sports car most of your life.

The first step is to dress the part. When you step out in a tweed suit or your most "casual" suede separates, onlookers just assume you know what you're doing.

Now to the actual mechanics of the thing. Getting in is only half the battle, but let's start there. This involves a backing up process, a ducking of the head, and a graceful bending of the knees (legs together) with the feet reaching near hip level before the legs can be straightened out again. Now, relax and breathe deeply.

ONCE IN, of course, there's bound to be the problem of getting out. You can try the knee bending routine again . . . this time in the opposite direction and accompanied by a gradual twisting of the torso until you are facing the curb. Then, with feet together, and using the old stomach muscles, pull yourself smartly out to an upright position.

As far as I know, this is the only successful method. Probably, you'll have to figure out what's best for you. But remember that those models on television studied somewhere, long and arduously, to learn how to do it. Getting into and out of a sports car is standard curriculum now in better modeling schools. It takes just as much practice as learning to descend a flight of stairs without so much as a hint of a downward glance.

Don't let me discourage you, though. There is no reason why you can't learn to bounce in and out. One parting thought . . . sports cars are lots of fun. Enjoy yours and . . GOOD LUCK!

Guild to Hear Social Workers

Sociology and Social Studies students from Valparaiso University will discuss the fields in which they are specializing Wednesday, Nov. 20, when members of Northwest Suburban Chapter of the Valparaiso University Women's Guild meet at 8 p.m. in Immanuel Lutheran Church, Des Plaines.

The students are being brought to the program by Dean Margaretta Tangerman, head of the Department of Sociology and Social Studies at the University.

Paddock area high school students interested in entering the field of social work are invited to attend the meeting with their parents. Area women interested in joining the guild may call Mrs. Edward Rateike of Mount Prospect, at CL 3-7478.

Robert Peterson Takes Skokie Girl as Bride

Now living in Fayetteville, N. C. while the groom completes a year of military service are Mary Louise and Robert G. Peterson, whose marriage was solemnized on Oct. 12. The double ring rites took place in St. Peter Catholic Church, Skokie, the parish in which the couple both worshipped as children.

The groom and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor G. Peterson, 1116 Westgate, Mount Prospect, formerly lived in Skokie. The bride is the daughter of the John L. Schmidlings of that suburb.

REV. HAROLD J. Liebl, a cousin of the bride, performed the 11:30 a.m. ceremony as St. Peter children's choir sang appropriately. Immediately following, a reception was held in the Orrington Hotel, Evanston, for relatives and friends of the pair. Later an open house was hosted by the bride's parents.

White bouquet taffeta was chosen for the bridal gown, the neckline and bouffant skirt appliqued with inserts of chantilly lace trimmed with pearls. A tiara of pearls held the bride's veil in place, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

GOLD COLORED silk faille sheaths with matching overskirts were worn by the bridal attendants, the three gowned alike with headpieces and shoes to match. Each carried a cascade of spider mums in gold tones, trimmed with ivy.

The bride's sister - in -law, Mrs. Schmidling, was her matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Carol Peterson, the groom's sister, and Mrs. Steventon Wagner of Ft. Campbell, Ky.

William Meneilley of Skokie was best man, and ushers were Richard Schmidling, the groom's brother, and George Russell of Northbrook.

FOR THE DAY'S festivities Mrs. Peterson wore a cocoa taffeta and lace dress with brown accessories and a white orchid corsage. The bride's mother chose a 3-piece moss green ensemble with matching hat and shoes, and she, too, wore an orchid corsage.

The bride is a graduate of St. Scholastica High School and worked for Allstate Insurance before her marriage. The groom attended Niles Township High School and the University of Illinois and then worked for American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Delta Gammas Seek Used Eye Glass Frames to Help Needy

DELTA GAMMA

Northwest Suburban Chapter of Delta Gamma is again conducting a drive for used eye glass frames and has installed containers for the frames in drugstores throughout Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights.

National philanthropy of Delta Gamma is aiding the blind and visually handicapped and this month's campaign will aid New Eyes for the Needy, Inc., in Short Hills, N. J. A non-profit, non-sectarian organization, New Eyes for the Needy gathers glasses from all over the country and redistributes them to those who cannot afford to buy them. To date, more than 250,000 have been helped by this group, including lepers, whose eyes are so sensitive to the sun that they cannot be outdoors without sunglasses.

DELTA DELTA DELTA'S recent fund-raiser, Night of Cards, found Mrs. Robert Stone, Mrs. William Carroll and Mrs. Robert Pace, all of Arlington Heights, among the players. The affair was the area group's ways and means project for the season. Next on the agenda of the Chicago Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter is the Founders Day luncheon to be held Nov. 20 in Old Orchard Country Club, when the women will mark their sorority's 75th anniversary. Mrs. George Busse, 255-3932, is in charge of reservations. (S

by JODY CARR

If you're a television viewer, you've seen lovely models demonstrating the ease with which one can get into and out of a sports car. They do it with such fluidity and grace. But have you tried it?

CARR

In the first place, there is definitely a knack to it. It takes a certain dexterity and a lot of patience to avoid bumping your head, tearing your left stocking with the heel of your right shoe, and dislocating your knee on the steering column.

The sports car designers had good reason, of course, for designing their products as they did. They didn't exactly have a walk-in milk truck in mind when they lowered the chassis and minimized surplus sheet metal. They were shooting for handling and roadability, and that's what they achieved. The small price we pay for these benefits is a few practice sessions on agile exit and entry.

IF YOU'RE planning to try your hand at driving a "four on the floor," practice before you make your public splash. Just as there are established procedures for entering and leaving a room gracefully, there are also ways to look as though you've been driving a sports car most of your life.

The first step is to dress the part. When you step out in a tweed suit or your most "casual" suede separates, onlookers just assume you know what you're doing.

Now to the actual mechanics of the thing. Getting in is only half the battle, but let's start there. This involves a backing up process, a ducking of the head, and a graceful bending of the knees (legs together) with the feet reaching near hip level before the legs can be straightened out again. Now, relax and breathe deeply.

ONCE IN, of course, there's bound to be the problem of getting out. You can try the knee bending routine again . . . this time in the opposite direction and accompanied by a gradual twisting of the torso until you are facing the curb. Then, with feet together, and using the old stomach muscles, pull yourself smartly out to an upright position.

As far as I know, this is the only successful method. Probably, you'll have to figure out what's best for you. But remember that those models on television studied somewhere, long and arduously, to learn how to do it. Getting into and out of a sports car is standard curriculum now in better modeling schools. It takes just as much practice as learning to descend a flight of stairs without so much as a hint of a downward glance.

Don't let me discourage you, though. There is no reason why you can't learn to bounce in and out. One parting thought . . . sports cars are lots of fun. Enjoy yours and . . GOOD LUCK!

'Snowflake Holiday' Set By Fashion Board Teens

"With Winter whispering ever so softly in their ears," enthusiasm is running high for members of Wieboldt's Junior Fashion Board as they complete plans for their "Snowflake Holiday" Friday, Nov. 22. The presentation at 7:30 p.m. in Randhurst Town Hall, emphasizes "the 12 looks of fashion."

Wearing outfits keyed to this theme, 16 area girls will be a full season ahead of the audience by modeling cold weather apparel for 'round the clock wear.

EVERYTHING new in the world of junior fashion will be shown, including the "Frankly Fake" look, the "Scrambled" look, which moves away from dull color coordinates; and the very soft and feminine "Hi-Line" look. Runners - up which should hold special appeal for suburbanites is the "Country" look for complete relaxation and the slim, flattering "Ski" look.

Meat by 'Hour'

An American can buy more meat with one hour of work than anyone else in the world. The American can obtain 37 ounces of meat, the Englishman gets 18, the Frenchman 7 and the Russian 4 ounces of meat per hour of work.

Pork Sandwich

A delicious and seasonal suggestion for leftover pork is to prepare sandwiches of pork slices, canned cranberry sauce, mayonnaise and lettuce leaves.

Nutritious Gravy

Don't throw away the appealing flavor found in the drippings from roasts. These drippings make delicious pan or cream gravies, and the nutrients found in gravy contribute to the food value of your meal.

Storage Space Vital in Home

Planning a new house offers an ideal opportunity to tailor storage areas to your family's needs. According to University of Illinois extension housing specialist, Glenda Pifer, "good" storage space is both adequate and accessible.

For planning your storage areas, she suggests this checklist:

What kinds of items do you plan to store? How many? Do you need to store all of them? How much space do these items require?

Will the items be at the point of first use? Will they be easy to see, reach and grasp? Will space be flexible to permit changes in storage?

MISS PIFER points out that one good reference on designing storage areas is University of Illinois College of Agriculture bulletin 557, "Space Design for Household Storage." This 80-page publication contains illustrated information about storage units for every kind of household article and clothing. The publication, available from the Office of Information, 112 Mumford Hall, University of Illinois, Urbana, costs $1.25. Illinois residents should add 5 cents for sales tax. (S

Using Scaled Furniture

Small Bedroom Can Effect Feeling of Comfort, Space

A small bedroom can be a decorating delight.

It can be made to express a feeling of spaciousness and comfort if you will keep in mind some of the principles that decorators and designers follow when faced with a similar decorating problem.

Furniture manufacturers have come to your aid by producing lightly scaled furniture pieces designed for today's smaller rooms. Use proportioned pieces, pushing them against the wall whenever possible, and you'll find the arrangement contributes much to the illusion of space and openness. An imaginative use of wall decorations, colors, and curtains will further help increase the room's apparent size.

THE FIRST step in any decorating plan is to size up your room to insure a pleasing furniture arrangement and to avoid buying pieces that are not right for room proportions. It's a good idea to draw the floor plan to scale on graph paper, indicating the windows and doors. Use cut outs for your furniture and shift them about until you find the best arrangement. This beats shifting heavy furniture.

If you take special care in arranging your furniture, you'll find you can stretch space and enjoy comfortable, attractive surroundings.

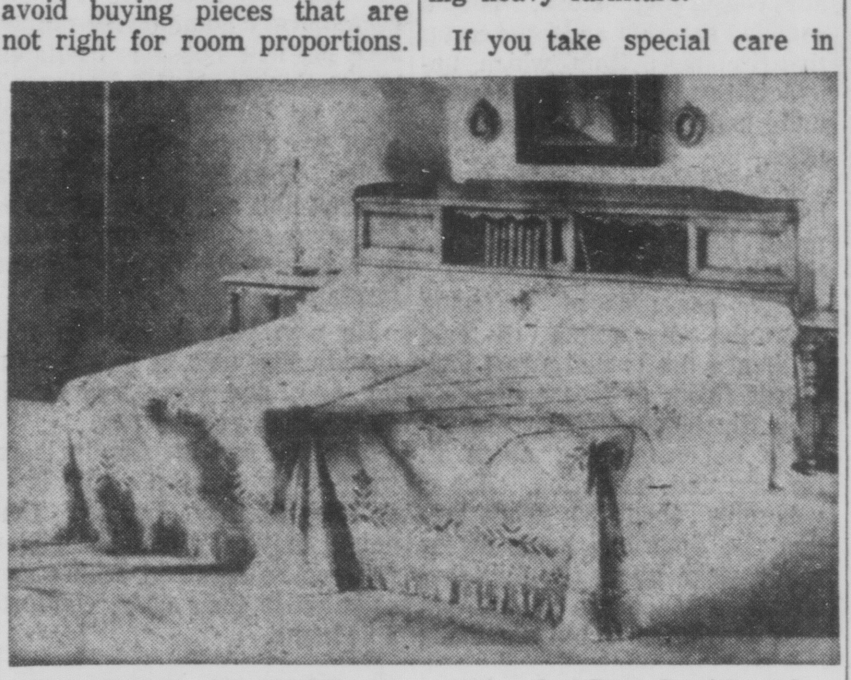
Always keep in mind that your primary purpose is to provide a refuge for restful sleep. To do this your bed must be large enough for comfortable relaxation. Depending upon your personal preferences and on the effectiveness of your planning, there is a variety of mattresses from which to choose—the new king or queen sizes, separate twin beds, or the popular swing-away twins that attach to a king sized headboard.

A SUPERSIZE mattress will add only about six inches to the length of your bed and less than two feet to the width—an insignificant difference in floor space when measured against the increase in comfort and rest you will enjoy. The improved quality of new cotton-innerspring mattresses adds to the life and comfort of supersize bedding.

A king size bed calls for about 11 feet of unbroken wall space. This allows for night stands on either side. Twin beds with a night stand in between take 9 feet, the same amount of wall space required by the obsolete double bed with night stands on each side.

If you have 155 square feet of floor space in your bedroom, you can fit in twin beds, two chests, a dressing table, and a lounge chair. You can substitue a king size bed, eliminate a chest, and still enjoy the spacious retreat you want.

Whenever you buy an extra-length or extra-width bed, you must also remember to get the best quality. The extra size requires adequate strength and support, and sound workmanship and materials. Most king size mattresses are of cotton innerspring construction, according to government surveys, and are preferred by nine out of 10 king-sized buyers. (S



SUPERSIZE COMFORT—An oversize headboard with twin beds equals the space requirements of a king-size bed, calling for 11 feet of unbroken wallspace. The beds swing away in the center and together, increase the room's size.

Meat Eating Record

The latest estimates released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture indicate that Americans will break their previous meat-eating record set in 1956, when an average of 166.7 pounds of meat were consumed per person. The 1963 figure may reach 167 pounds. The result is a better diet for our people.

Suburban Living

Especially for Women

SPORTING THE SLIM, flattering "Ski Look" are members of Wieboldt's Junior Fashion Board, Cathy Zito of Sacred Heart of Mary High and Mary Inzerello, a student at Forest View. The outfits will be among those shown Nov. 22 in Randhurst Town Hall during the staging of Wieboldt's "Snowflake Holiday." (S

'Snowflake Holiday' Set By Fashion Board Teens

"With Winter whispering ever so softly in their ears," enthusiasm is running high for members of Wieboldt's Junior Fashion Board as they complete plans for their "Snowflake Holiday" Friday, Nov. 22. The presentation at 7:30 p.m. in Randhurst Town Hall, emphasizes "the 12 looks of fashion."

Wearing outfits keyed to this theme, 16 area girls will be a full season ahead of the audience by modeling cold weather apparel for 'round the clock wear.

EVERYTHING new in the world of junior fashion will be shown, including the "Frankly Fake" look, the "Scrambled" look, which moves away from dull color coordinates; and the very soft and feminine "Hi-Line" look. Runners - up which should hold special appeal for suburbanites is the "Country" look for complete relaxation and the slim, flattering "Ski" look.

Snowflake hostesses that evening will be Ellen Harrison and Sherry Washburn of Forest View High School and Pam Cameron, Prospect High. All were members of the last fashion board.

Meat by 'Hour'

An American can buy more meat with one hour of work than anyone else in the world. The American can obtain 37 ounces of meat, the Englishman gets 18, the Frenchman 7 and the Russian 4 ounces of meat per hour of work.

Pork Sandwich

A delicious and seasonal suggestion for leftover pork is to prepare sandwiches of pork slices, canned cranberry sauce, mayonnaise and lettuce leaves.

Nutritious Gravy

Don't throw away the appealing flavor found in the drippings from roasts. These drippings make delicious pan or cream gravies, and the nutrients found in gravy contribute to the food value of your meal.

Storage Space Vital in Home

Planning a new house offers an ideal opportunity to tailor storage areas to your family's needs. According to University of Illinois extension housing specialist, Glenda Pifer, "good" storage space is both adequate and accessible.

For planning your storage areas, she suggests this checklist:

What kinds of items do you plan to store? How many? Do you need to store all of them? How much space do these items require?

Will the items be at the point of first use? Will they be easy to see, reach and grasp? Will space be flexible to permit changes in storage?

MISS PIFER points out that one good reference on designing storage areas is University of Illinois College of Agriculture bulletin 557, "Space Design for Household Storage." This 80-page publication contains illustrated information about storage units for every kind of household article and clothing. The publication, available from the Office of Information, 112 Mumford Hall, University of Illinois, Urbana, costs $1.25. Illinois residents should add 5 cents for sales tax. (S

Using Scaled Furniture

Small Bedroom Can Effect Feeling of Comfort, Space

A small bedroom can be a decorating delight.

It can be made to express a feeling of spaciousness and comfort if you will keep in mind some of the principles that decorators and designers follow when faced with a similar decorating problem.

Furniture manufacturers have come to your aid by producing lightly scaled furniture pieces designed for today's smaller rooms. Use proportioned pieces, pushing them against the wall whenever possible, and you'll find the arrangement contributes much to the illusion of space and openness. An imaginative use of wall decorations, colors, and curtains will further help increase the room's apparent size.

THE FIRST step in any decorating plan is to size up your room to insure a pleasing furniture arrangement and to avoid buying pieces that are not right for room proportions. It's a good idea to draw the floor plan to scale on graph paper, indicating the windows and doors. Use cut outs for your furniture and shift them about until you find the best arrangement. This beats shifting heavy furniture.

If you take special care in arranging your furniture, you'll find you can stretch space and enjoy comfortable, attractive surroundings.

Always keep in mind that your primary purpose is to provide a refuge for restful sleep. To do this your bed must be large enough for comfortable relaxation. Depending upon your personal preferences and on the effectiveness of your planning, there is a variety of mattresses from which to choose—the new king or queen sizes, separate twin beds, or the popular swing-away twins that attach to a king sized headboard.

A SUPERSIZE mattress will add only about six inches to the length of your bed and less than two feet to the width—an insignificant difference in floor space when measured against the increase in comfort and rest you will enjoy. The improved quality of new cotton-innerspring mattresses adds to the life and comfort of super-size bedding.

A king size bed calls for about 11 feet of unbroken wall space. This allows for night stands on either side. Twin beds with a night stand in between take 9 feet, the same amount of wall space required by the obsolete double bed with night stands on each side.

If you have 155 square feet of floor space in your bedroom, you can fit in twin beds, two chests, a dressing table, and a lounge chair. You can substitue a king size bed, eliminate a chest, and still enjoy the spacious retreat you want.

Whenever you buy an extra-length or extra-width bed, you must also remember to get the best quality. The extra size requires adequate strength and support, and sound workmanship and materials. Most king size mattresses are of cotton innerspring construction, according to government surveys, and are preferred by nine out of 10 king-sized buyers. (S

SUPERSIZE COMFORT—An oversize headboard with twin beds equals the space requirements of a king-size bed, calling for 11 feet of unbroken wallspace. The beds swing away in the center and together, increase the room's size.

Meat Eating Record

The latest estimates released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture indicate that Americans will break their previous meat-eating record set in 1956, when an average of 166.7 pounds of meat were consumed per person. The 1963 figure may reach 167 pounds. The result is a better diet for our people.

We Want Comfort

Shelter Not Enough

In case you've wondered, comfort is good for you.

Psychologists have found that physical comfort helps students to learn and workers to earn. It helps prevent accidents and illness and it can turn a disgruntled parent into a lamb and a screaming infant into a cherub.

What is comfort? It might be defined as the absence of discomfort.

Ask a handful of people what comes to mind when they think of comfort and you'll get an assortment of replies — "easy shoes," "a light in your room at night," "a soft bed," "a nice, neat, warm home," for examples.

The more people you ask, the more often you'll hear the word "warm." Sometimes it means the psychological warmth of friendship and security, but it's more apt to refer to physical warmth—a warm bed, warm clothes, a warm house.

Starting with the day in the dim past when Fred Flintstone the First stumbled out of the cold wind into a cave and found himself saying "ahhh" instead of "ugh," man has been trying to provide more comfort for himself and his family — often at any cost.

MAN HAS built fires, pitched tents, constructed open shelters, invented windows and storm windows, doors and storm doors. He has hung tapestries on cold castle walls, built walk-in fireplaces, and warmed his beds with hot stones, warming pans, and electric blankets. When Benjamin Franklin invented a heat-conserving stove, people snapped them up and bricked up the fireplaces from which untold billions of British thermal units had escaped up the chimneys.

Today we're unbricking them, but we're not, by gosh, letting much heat escape from our homes.

After centuries of suffering from the discomfort of cold walls and drafts that swept icily across floors to freeze innocent feet, Nineteenth Century Man finally did something about it. He invented insulation. But it was only about 30 years ago that the American home owner really woke up to the fact that wrapping his house in mineral wool insulation would not make him comfortable, but would also save fuel. Now almost everybody's doing it.

INSTEAD OF buying bigger, more expensive furnaces and burning more and more fuel, the contemorary home owner makes sure his new house is insulated to recommended standards with batts or blankets of mineral wool in floors, ceilings and walls. Then he buys a smaller heating unit and burns less fuel. He saves enough money on fuel in a few years to pay for the insulation.

He also buys a smaller air conditioning unit, if he's installing one, and pays less for it and less to run it, too.

Then he and his family learn what living comfort really is — as long as they live in that house they're warm in winter and cool in summer, secure and satisfied in their cozy, comfortable home.

Buy Frozen Foods Carefully—U. of I.

The frozen foods industry aims to please consumers with high-quality products. But bringing these products to the table depends on wise buying and home care, says a University of Illinois home economist.

Consumers should follow these practices:

Buy from a reputable dealer who stands back of his merchandise. He will appreciate knowing consumers' dissatisfactions.

Select packages that are clean and hard. If the food has warmed up enough to soften, it has lost some of its quality. Avoid food that has the packaging torn. crushed or stained. Frozen food that is exposed to air dries out and develops off-flavors quickly.

PURCHASE frozen foods last. Then hurry home, making the time without freezer storage as short as possible. An insulated or double paper bag offers only limited protection.

Store frozen foods at 0 degrees F. If your home freezer does not provide such a temperature, buy only quantities for immediate use. The length of time that foods can be successfully stored without loss of quality depends on the kind of food and its quality when purchased.

Fruits maintain quality longer than vegetables—a year compared with about eight months. Frozen beef maintains quality longer than pork, and thick cuts keep longer than ground meat. Cut-up chicken remains good quality for six months.

In general, precooked foods lose quality more rapidly than uncooked foods, so food specialists recommend a storage limit of two to three months. They recommend about the same time limit for baked products.

Carolyn Ericson Is Eugene Allen's Bride

A romance that began when they met at a gathering of the Northwest Suburban Young People's Club, culminated in marriage Nov. 2 for Miss Carolyn Sue Ericson, daughter of the Donald M. Ericsons, 16 Webster Lane, Weathersfield, Schaumburg, and Eugene V. Allen of Des Plaines, son of Mrs. Alma Dankowski of Caldwell, N.J.

The double ring wedding took place during 6:30 p.m. candlelight service in The Village Church of Northbrook with Dr. Harry P. Lundell officiating. A reception, which included dinner for 100 guests, followed in Landls Restaurant in Skokie, after which the newlyweds left on a week's wedding trip to Las Vegas and Phoenix.

ESCORTED BY her father, the bride wore a peau sheath fashioned with scooped neck-neckline, long sleeves, and sheath skirt, the front of which was detailed with beading. The dress also featured a detachable train held in place by a self fabric bow at the back of the waist. A pill box headpiece trimmed with beading held her 4-tier illusion veil and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Myles C. Kunz of Elgin was matron of honor and Mr. Kunz was the groom's best man. Bridesmaids were the bride's cousin, Miss Donna Schmidt of Deerfield, and a life-long friend, Miss Karen Read of Clarendon Hills. Ushers were Robert B. Amann of Libertyville and the bride's brother, Donald Ericson Jr. of Schaumburg.

KELLY GREEN floor-length sheath gowns were worn by the bride's attendants. The gowns were fashioned with white crepe bodices with cowled collars, faille skirts and tailored long-sleeved jackets of the faille. They also wore pill box headpieces with illusion veiling and carried pale yellow glamellia corsages.

Mrs. Ericson's choice was a blue A-line empire dress with matching redingote and a corsage of white cymbidium orchids. The groom's mother chose a beige lame sheath with matching accessories and a corsage of white cymbidium.

The new Mrs. Allen was graduated from Palatine High School and also attended the James Ward Thorne School of Nursing. Mr. Allen was graduated from the University of Miami in Florida and is now a special investigator for an airline. The Allens are now making their home in a Des Plaines apartment. (S

Husbands are invited.

Speaker will be Mrs. John Kinney of Des Plaines, mathematics consultant for Elk Grove School District. The meeting will be held Thursday, Nov. 21, at 8:15 p.m. in South Park Field House, Des Plaines.

Psychologists have found that physical comfort helps students to learn and workers to earn. It helps prevent accidents and illness and it can turn a disgruntled parent into a lamb and a screaming infant into a cherub.

What is comfort? It might be defined as the absence of discomfort.

Ask a handful of people what comes to mind when they think of comfort and you'll get an assortment of replies — "easy shoes," "a light in your room at night," "a soft bed," "a nice, neat, warm home," for examples.

The more people you ask, the more often you'll hear the word "warm." Sometimes it means the psychological warmth of friendship and security, but it's more apt to refer to physical warmth—a warm bed, warm clothes, a warm house.

Starting with the day in the dim past when Fred Flintstone the First stumbled out of the cold wind into a cave and found himself saying "ahhh" instead of "ugh," man has been trying to provide more comfort for himself and his family — often at any cost.

MAN HAS built fires, pitched tents, constructed open shelters, invented windows and storm windows, doors and storm doors. He has hung tapestries on cold castle walls, built walk-in fireplaces, and warmed his beds with hot stones, warming pans, and electric blankets. When Benjamin Franklin invented a heat-conserving stove, people snapped them up and bricked up the fireplaces from which untold billions of British thermal units had escaped up the chimneys.

Today we're unbricking them, but we're not, by gosh, letting much heat escape from our homes.

After centuries of suffering from the discomfort of cold walls and drafts that swept icily across floors to freeze innocent feet, Nineteenth Century Man finally did something about it. He invented insulation. But it was only about 30 years ago that the American home owner really woke up to the fact that wrapping his house in mineral wool insulation would not make him comfortable, but would also save fuel. Now almost everybody's doing it.

INSTEAD OF buying bigger, more expensive furnaces and burning more and more fuel, the contemorary home owner makes sure his new house is insulated to recommended standards with batts or blankets of mineral wool in floors, ceilings and walls. Then he buys a smaller heating unit and burns less fuel. He saves enough money on fuel in a few years to pay for the insulation.

He also buys a smaller air conditioning unit, if he's installing one, and pays less for it and less to run it, too.

Then he and his family learn what living comfort really is — as long as they live in that house they're warm in winter and cool in summer, secure and satisfied in their cozy, comfortable home.

Buy Frozen Foods Carefully—U. of I.

The frozen foods industry aims to please consumers with high-quality products. But bringing these products to the table depends on wise buying and home care, says a University of Illinois home economist.

Consumers should follow these practices:

Buy from a reputable dealer who stands back of his merchandise. He will appreciate knowing consumers' dissatisfactions.

Select packages that are clean and hard. If the food has warmed up enough to soften, it has lost some of its quality. Avoid food that has the packaging torn. crushed or stained. Frozen food that is exposed to air dries out and develops off-flavors quickly.

PURCHASE frozen foods last. Then hurry home, making the time without freezer storage as short as possible. An insulated or double paper bag offers only limited protection.

Store frozen foods at 0 degrees F. If your home freezer does not provide such a temperature, buy only quantities for immediate use. The length of time that foods can be successfully stored without loss of quality depends on the kind of food and its quality when purchased.

Fruits maintain quality longer than vegetables—a year compared with about eight months. Frozen beef maintains quality longer than pork, and thick cuts keep longer than ground meat. Cut-up chicken remains good quality for six months.

In general, precooked foods lose quality more rapidly than uncooked foods, so food specialists recommend a storage limit of two to three months. They recommend about the same time limit for baked products.

Carolyn Ericson Is Eugene Allen's Bride

A romance that began when they met at a gathering of the Northwest Suburban Young People's Club, culminated in marriage Nov. 2 for Miss Carolyn Sue Ericson, daughter of the Donald M. Ericsons, 16 Webster Lane, Weathersfield, Schaumburg, and Eugene V. Allen of Des Plaines, son of Mrs. Alma Dankowski of Caldwell, N.J.

The double ring wedding took place during 6:30 p.m. candlelight service in The Village Church of Northbrook with Dr. Harry P. Lundell officiating. A reception, which included dinner for 100 guests, followed in Landls Restaurant in Skokie, after which the newlyweds left on a week's wedding trip to Las Vegas and Phoenix.

ESCORTED BY her father, the bride wore a peau sheath fashioned with scooped neckneckline, long sleeves, and sheath skirt, the front of which was detailed with beading. The dress also featured a detachable train held in place by a self fabric bow at the back of the waist. A pill box headpiece trimmed with beading held her 4-tier illusion veil and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Myles C. Kunz of Elgin was matron of honor and Mr. Kunz was the groom's best man. Bridesmaids were the bride's cousin, Miss Donna Schmidt of Deerfield, and a life-long friend, Miss Karen Read of Clarendon Hills. Ushers were Robert B. Amann of Libertyville and the bride's brother, Donald Ericson Jr. of Schaumburg.

KELLY GREEN floor-length sheath gowns were worn by the bride's attendants. The gowns were fashioned with white crepe bodices with cowled collars, faille skirts and tailored long-sleeved jackets of the faille. They also wore pill box headpieces with illusion veiling and carried pale yellow glamellia corsages.

Mrs. Ericson's choice was a blue A-line empire dress with matching redingote and a corsage of white cymbidium orchids. The groom's mother chose a beige lame sheath with matching accessories and a corsage of white cymbidium.

The new Mrs. Allen was graduated from Palatine High School and also attended the James Ward Thorne School of Nursing. Mr. Allen was graduated from the University of Miami in Florida and is now a special investigator for an airline. The Allens are now making their home in a Des Plaines apartment. (S

Shoulder Butt

Smoked pork shoulder butt is one of the most versatile meat cuts. It can be cooked whole in water, or baked whole or as slices. It may also be sliced and panbroiled. Cooked smoked shoulder butt may be sliced or diced for a variety of casseroles or sandwiches.

Storing Cooked Meat

Meat left after dinnertime should be chilled rapidly and immediately without letting it stand at room temperature. It should then be covered tightly and stored in the coldest part of your refrigerator to insure good keeping quality. Use cooked meat within 3 to 5 days.

Shoulder Butt

Smoked pork shoulder butt is one of the most versatile meat cuts. It can be cooked whole in water, or baked whole or as slices. It may also be sliced and panbroiled. Cooked smoked shoulder butt may be sliced or diced for a variety of casseroles or sandwiches.

Storing Cooked Meat

Meat left after dinnertime should be chilled rapidly and immediately without letting it stand at room temperature. It should then be covered tightly and stored in the coldest part of your refrigerator to insure good keeping quality. Use cooked meat within 3 to 5 days.

KNITTERS

Why buy at the Knitter's Nook? First of all, we offer you one of the most complete yarn selections in the middle west.

Second—and even more important—are the services we offer. Most of our customers have patterns made to their specifications using the yarn and needles they choose and the style they wish — a free service when the yarn is purchased at THE KNITTER'S NOOK. This does require you to knit a swatch for us so that we know how YOU knit—not your neighbor or best friend.

Then we check your knitting after you've gone a ways to make any necessary changes to insure fit. Sound like you don't need that help? We have a HUGE selection of books— choose yours, and we'll help you get the right yarn. Can't understand your instructions? We'll help with that, too.

We'll help make your Christmas knitting successful.

OUR HOURS: 10-5 Mon. thru Sat. Mon. 7-9. Closed Wed.

Says Plan Commission May Sue

Illinois Atty. Gen. William G. Clark has held that a regional planning commission has power to sue in its own name in a court of law. The opinion was requested by State's Attorney James V. Cunningham of Peoria county, who stated that Peoria, Tazewell and Woodford counties have formed the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission.

The statutes empower a Regional Planning Commission to enter into contracts to carry out its functions, Clark's opinion said.

"It seems clear," Clark's opinion stated, "that if a Commission organized pursuant to the Act was to enter into a contract within the scope of its authority, it should possess, by implication, all powers incidental to its enforcement, including the power to sue in its own name in a court of law." Suburban Parents to Visit Local Schools

Parents from suburban Cook and DuPage Counties will join an estimated 30 million of their counterparts across the nation this week in going back to school.

Schools in northwestern Cook County and northern DuPage County will have the welcome mat out for parents and area residents in a mass "open house" program.

The "visit your schools" and the community-oriented effort to explain what is going on today inside the classroom is a part of the national American Education Week, being observed this week.

THEME OF the 1963 American Education Week is "Education Strengthens The Nation."

Each day of the week carries a separate sub-theme. Starting on Sunday, Nov. 10, and running through Saturday, Nov. 16, the sub-themes are 1) Values of Free Men; 2) Learning Opportunities for All; 3) Quality Teaching; 4) Balanced Curriculum; 5) Community Resources; 6) Financial Support; and 7) Goals for Tomorrow.

In each school district, committees of administrators and teachers have worked to plan special programs, for "open house," have issued invitations to parents, have scheduled classroom demonstrations and have sought to bring the story of American education to the public.

American Education Week was founded after World War I when statistics showed a high proportion of the American people were illiterate and physically unfit. The first American Education Week was sponsored in 1921 by the National Education Assocation (NEA) and the newly - formed American Legion. In 1922 the observance was joined by the U.S. Office of Education. In 1938 the National Congress of Parents and Teachers became the fourth national sponsor.

THE WEEK has been proclaimed by President Kennedy and Gov. Kerner, both with messages urging parents and the public to learn more about local schools and the important role education plays in the economy of the nation and the state.

American Education Week is described by the NEA as "a time during which the nation's schools and colleges report to their owners — the general public — about their purposes, methods, achievements, needs and problems."

The purpose of the week, according to the NEA, is to "make every American aware of the important role education plays in a democracy and to help him realize that good schools and colleges are opportunities in which he may share."

THE SPECIFIC objectives of local schools in observing American Education Week is to increase public understanding and appreciation of education at all levels — elementary, high school and college-university. Local school teachers and administrators try to explain today's curriculum, current teaching methods and modern instructional materials. Some school districts use the opportunity to promote the cause of greater financial support by taxpayers.

"Every generation must decide whether it shall levy upon itself taxes to pay for the education of the boy or for the ignorance of the man." This statement by a school superintendent is cited by the NEA in its summary covering the subtheme of Financial Support.

Racial Bias Costs Taxpayers Big Sums

(Third Article of a Series)

The racial riddle may offer America a golden opportunity to beef up its lagging rate of economic growth. Ending Jim Crow, it seems, could put dollars in everybody's pocket.

Add up what the public spends on relief, crime, juvenile delinquency, and then calculate how much of this money is wasted because society insists on confining Negroes and other minority peoples to slums and ghettos. In Chicago three years ago, it was found that Negroes made up 65 per cent of those in the House of Correction, 87 per cent of those in public housing and 85 per cent of those on relief.

(Bigots please note: At least a half dozen downstate counties — places having only a sprinkling of Negroes — have higher public assistance rates than does Cook County. This doesn't mean that Negroes are racially superior, only that downstaters have taken a terrible beating from automation.)

Then toss in the cost of maintaining those slums — the drain on the fire department and building department and the courts; the robbery of the tenants by vicious landlords; the diseases spread by unsanitary and overcrowded conditions.

Taxpayers must also figure up (in billions, please,) how much we spend overseas in Africa and Asia to win the good will of nations who'd love us without charge if we only treated their colored brothers and sisters here right.

ALSO, FIGURE in the cost of wasted Negro brainpower — the school drop-out and the delinquent, the man who can't find work because of racial exclusion practices in labor unions, employment agencies and offices. Calculate, too, the cost of the Negro Ph.D. working in the post office sorting mail — the "underemployed worker." The National Urban League says that racial bias in employment alone costs Americans $26 billion each year!

Feeling the pinch, yet? Remember, every last penny of the above expenditures are unnecessary. It's wasted money, money down the drain. On the other hand, if we wanted to correct conditions, there'd be money in our pockets. For example, last year, Negroes earned a total of $14 billion. Their income, as a group is only about half that of whites. By opening the doors of equal opportunities to them, by lifting their income to that of whites, our gross national product would increase $14 billion. This is the opinion of Walter W. Heller, Chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Wiping out racial bias won't just help Negroes. It'll pump additional dollars into our sluggish, slow-growing economy. Everybody will benefit, even people in Mississippi and Alabama, who need economic help the most. It will also make the American dream a reality for millions of Negroes, frustrated and embittered by unemploymen, ghettos, and the feeling of alienation from the main currents of American life and American opportunities.

And conditions can be improved. That's the challenging aspect of the racial problem, and the promise and opportunity of it.

(Hear Sherwood Ross interview integration leaders every Sunday at 9:30 a.m. over WAAF.) (A14

Says Plan Commission May Sue

Illinois Atty. Gen. William G. Clark has held that a regional planning commission has power to sue in its own name in a court of law. The opinion was requested by State's Attorney James V. Cunningham of Peoria county, who stated that Peoria, Tazewell and Woodford counties have formed the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission.

The statutes empower a Regional Planning Commission to enter into contracts to carry out its functions, Clark's opinion said.

"It seems clear," Clark's opinion stated, "that if a Commission organized pursuant to the Act was to enter into a contract within the scope of its authority, it should possess, by implication, all powers incidental to its enforcement, including the power to sue in its own name in a court of law." Suburban Parents to Visit Local Schools

Parents from suburban Cook and DuPage Counties will join an estimated 30 million of their counterparts across the nation this week in going back to school.

Schools in northwestern Cook County and northern DuPage County will have the welcome mat out for parents and area residents in a mass "open house" program.

The "visit your schools" and the community-oriented effort to explain what is going on today inside the classroom is a part of the national American Education Week, being observed this week.

THEME OF the 1963 American Education Week is "Education Strengthens The Nation."

Each day of the week carries a separate sub-theme. Starting on Sunday, Nov. 10, and running through Saturday, Nov. 16, the sub-themes are 1) Values of Free Men; 2) Learning Opportunities for All; 3) Quality Teaching; 4) Balanced Curriculum; 5) Community Resources; 6) Financial Support; and 7) Goals for Tomorrow.

In each school district, committees of administrators and teachers have worked to plan special programs, for "open house," have issued invitations to parents, have scheduled classroom demonstrations and have sought to bring the story of American education to the public.

American Education Week was founded after World War I when statistics showed a high proportion of the American people were illiterate and physically unfit. The first American Education Week was sponsored in 1921 by the National Education Assocation (NEA) and the newly - formed American Legion. In 1922 the observance was joined by the U.S. Office of Education. In 1938 the National Congress of Parents and Teachers became the fourth national sponsor.

THE WEEK has been proclaimed by President Kennedy and Gov. Kerner, both with messages urging parents and the public to learn more about local schools and the important role education plays in the economy of the nation and the state.

American Education Week is described by the NEA as "a time during which the nation's schools and colleges report to their owners — the general public — about their purposes, methods, achievements, needs and problems."

The purpose of the week, according to the NEA, is to "make every American aware of the important role education plays in a democracy and to help him realize that good schools and colleges are opportunities in which he may share."

THE SPECIFIC objectives of local schools in observing American Education Week is to increase public understanding and appreciation of education at all levels — elementary, high school and college-university. Local school teachers and administrators try to explain today's curriculum, current teaching methods and modern instructional materials. Some school districts use the opportunity to promote the cause of greater financial support by taxpayers.

"Every generation must decide whether it shall levy upon itself taxes to pay for the education of the boy or for the ignorance of the man." This statement by a school superintendent is cited by the NEA in its summary covering the subtheme of Financial Support.

Racial Bias Costs Taxpayers Big Sums

(Third Article of a Series)

The racial riddle may offer America a golden opportunity to beef up its lagging rate of economic growth. Ending Jim Crow, it seems, could put dollars in everybody's pocket.

Add up what the public spends on relief, crime, juvenile delinquency, and then calculate how much of this money is wasted because society insists on confining Negroes and other minority peoples to slums and ghettos. In Chicago three years ago, it was found that Negroes made up 65 per cent of those in the House of Correction, 87 per cent of those in public housing and 85 per cent of those on relief.

(Bigots please note: At least a half dozen downstate counties — places having only a sprinkling of Negroes — have higher public assistance rates than does Cook County. This doesn't mean that Negroes are racially superior, only that downstaters have taken a terrible beating from automation.)

Then toss in the cost of maintaining those slums — the drain on the fire department and building department and the courts; the robbery of the tenants by vicious landlords; the diseases spread by unsanitary and overcrowded conditions.

Taxpayers must also figure up (in billions, please,) how much we spend overseas in Africa and Asia to win the good will of nations who'd love us without charge if we only treated their colored brothers and sisters here right.

ALSO, FIGURE in the cost of wasted Negro brainpower — the school drop-out and the delinquent, the man who can't find work because of racial exclusion practices in labor unions, employment agencies and offices. Calculate, too, the cost of the Negro Ph.D. working in the post office sorting mail — the "underemployed worker." The National Urban League says that racial bias in employment alone costs Americans $26 billion each year!

Feeling the pinch, yet? Remember, every last penny of the above expenditures are unnecessary. It's wasted money, money down the drain. On the other hand, if we wanted to correct conditions, there'd be money in our pockets. For example, last year, Negroes earned a total of $14 billion. Their income, as a group is only about half that of whites. By opening the doors of equal opportunities to them, by lifting their income to that of whites, our gross national product would increase $14 billion. This is the opinion of Walter W. Heller, Chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Wiping out racial bias won't just help Negroes. It'll pump additional dollars into our sluggish, slow-growing economy. Everybody will benefit, even people in Mississippi and Alabama, who need economic help the most. It will also make the American dream a reality for millions of Negroes, frustrated and embittered by unemploymen, ghettos, and the feeling of alienation from the main currents of American life and American opportunities.

And conditions can be improved. That's the challenging aspect of the racial problem, and the promise and opportunity of it.
